Why Go to Town?
To Discourage Vice
Had He Said I Flew
Borah and Best-Minds

France and England "fear Mussolini may involve three continents in the Ethiopian war." Has Europe heard of the New England farmer who said "I'm on my way to town to get drunk, and Lord, how I dread it." He need not have gone to town. European nations need not be dragged into a tri-continental war, if they don't want to be dragged.

France has her big slices of Africa, Britain took their lands from the Boers which just happened to include the gold mines, and the diamond mines. Italy, with population increasing far more rapidly than that of France or England, lacks colonies. If it was correct for France and England to take what they wanted in Africa, why is it a crime for Mussolini to take what he thinks Italy needs? Why is it necessary for "three continents" to go to war about it?

That doesn't take into consideration the right of the Ethiopians, but France did not worry about the rights of the Algerians, or England about the rights of the Boers, Zulus or others.

The Prince of Monaco has discharged his entire army, seventy-six men, because profits of gambling have fallen off. They get three months' notice with pay, and some will try to be generals in the Ethiopian army. They have beautiful uniforms, that ought to help.

What a pity, France, England, Italy, Germany, Russia could not say, let us discharge all our armies and make other countries in Europe do the same. It would be marvelous, but it will not be done.

A very old poker player of New York Press Club, when he "raised the pot" remarked usually: "The only way to discourage vice is to make it expensive." That idea seems to be working in Germany.

Dr. Schacht, head of the great German bank, leading financier of the Reich, warns Germany that Nazi individuals indulging themselves in the pleasure of treating defenseless Jews brutally, are endangering Germany's prosperity.

Such wanton brutality constitutes a great menace to German trade everywhere, according to Dr. Schacht, who knows.

An old gentleman of 81 strolled into a New York police station, remarking "I have just walked from Kansas City and shall walk back again tonight." He was removed to a psychopathic ward.

If he had substituted the verb "fly" for "walk," the police would not have disturbed him, for he could have flown in from Kansas City during the day very easily and flown back again at night.

If 25 years ago he had said, "I just flew in from Kansas City," he would have been sent to the dangerous ward.

So there is progress.

Republicans report greatly increased demand for the nomination of Senator Borah, since the announcement that, if nominated, he will run. This will be mournful news for some Republican corporation-beat minds, for whether they have to be "lashed with scorpions," or with something else, would make little difference to some of them who consider Senator Borah distinctly in the "scorpion" class.

Senator Borah comes from Idaho, talks the language of people outside the magic corporation circle. Republicans will have to pick out somebody whose language is understood and who will be able at least to try to wean cotton and wheat farmers, and the recipients of the Works Relief Bill's $4,880,000,000 from the "flesh pots" of the New Deal.

All that you read ordinarily will be as unimportant a hundred years from now as this week's railroad time table.

But this news will be news one million years hence, if it develops, and is confirmed.

Dr. Roger Williams of Oregon State College, has isolated a minute quantity of pantothenic acid. Several hundred pounds of liver were needed to supply an amount of the acid weighing half as much as a drop of water, but it was worth the trouble and the liver.

This is the mysterious substance that makes things grow, from grass to men. A tiny speck, like the point of a pin, caused young alfalfa plants to shoot upward. It is a life fertilizer, and will aid defective human and animal bodies, as well as plants.

Russia intends that Russians shall know what to do "if anything happens to the plane."

On Monday, all at the same moment, one hundred and fifty parachute jumpers leaped from six airplanes over Tushino Airport. It was a Soviet aviation day celebration and the "jumo" set a new world record.

$60,000 JEWEL HOLDUP IN RITZ-CARLTON LOBBY

MACHINE GUN USED TO COWER CLERKS

Machine-gun bandits held up the Hodgson Kennard jewelry store in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel this afternoon and escaped with diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other gems valued at $60,000.

The store is on the first floor of the hotel, with show windows on Arlington and Newbury streets, opposite the Public Gardens.

There were four men in the gang.

Two remained in a black sedan parked on Newbury street while the other two went into the store. One carried a Thompson sub-machine gun, the other a revolver.

Two men clerks were backed against the wall and forced to keep their hands high in the air.

The machine-gunner commanded Montgomery Reed, one of the clerks:

"Touch no buttons, pull no guns, or you're a dead man."

He turned to Thomas Stanton, the other clerk:

"You, too."

A wave of the machine-gun toward the bookkeeper's cage kept two girl clerks, Selma Whitehead of Dimock street, Quincy, and Helen Vorman of Clarendon avenue, Somerville, out of the way.

Joseph Place came up from downstairs and was ordered back.

Then the bandits swiftly cleaned out the show-cases. They tossed everything into a bag which the man with the revolver pulled from under his coat.

The robbers backed away to the Newbury street exit and made a dash for the sedan.

CARRIES N. H. PLATES

They sped down Newbury street toward Massachusetts avenue, while Stanton telephoned police headquarters. Radio flashes put all available squad cars on the trail.

The black sedan was lined with red stripes and carried New Hampshire number plates, 22,832. It had been stolen in Lowell August 6.

The probable value of the loot was stated by E. W. Hodgson, a member of the firm.

The Hodgson Kennard summer store in Magnolia was robbed of $214,000 in jewels early last summer. The andits were never caught.

The Ritz-Carlton store was robbed by the "amateur" method of smashing a show window with a covered brick a year or two ago.

The store had an exclusive clientele. The clerks believe that robber gang watched until no customer was in the place.

The two bandits entered at about 1:42. Both guns were kept under cover until they were inside. They entered from the Arlington street side.

KEEP VOICES LOW

Their voices were never raised and nobody on the sidewalk or in the adjoining hotel lobby had any inkling of what was going on.

Stanton said the man with the revolver muttered to him:

'One word out of your mouth and I'll drill you."

Police again tried to shut off the exits from the city over the Charles river bridges.

Radio and teletype flashed the alarm throughout New England within 15 minutes and all main arteries were being watched but it is believed the bandits abandoned their car on some suburban road and went into hiding.

Both the men who entered the store were described as between 25 and 30 years old. The machine-gunner wore a Panama straw and brown suit. The other was hatless and wore a checked suit.

They were of medium height and weight and either of dark complexion or heavilytaned by the sun.

U. S. INDICTS JARVIS, 10 IN FRAUD

William L. Jarvis, Boston broker, and 10 others allegedly associated with him in the $625,000 Polymet Manufacturing Co. stock swindle, were indicted today by the Federal grand jury.

Joseph Barger, reputed owner of the Winchester Institute of Finance, and Arthur L. Gibbs, Springfield broker, were among those named in a joint indictment charging conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

The Winchester Institute of Finance is the organization for which Dean Homer Albers of Boston University Law School was counsel.

OTHERS INDICTED

Others indicted today are: Samuel L. Gaines of New York; Arthur Waldo of Winthrop; John L. Callahan of Newton; Albert A. Crosby and Charles Vroomam, both of Chicago; Sidney Pollock of Boston; Morris B. Shuman of New York and Henry Flackman of New York.

Several of these are among the 25 previously indicted for using the mails to defraud, in connection with the Curtis Manufacturing Co. stock swindle.

The government alleges in connection with Polymet sales that Jarvis and Gaines financed the stock promotion and Barger directed solicitation from the Springfield brokerage office of Gibbs & Company.

Indictments resulted from the cooperative investigation of SEC and United States Attorney Francis J. Ford's office.

'SoakHeirs Tax' Off; OK Bill

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 20—Senate and House conference committee members today reached a final agreement on the $250,000,000 tax bill, leaving out the new inheritance levies proposed by President Roosevelt.

Instead of the inheritance taxes, the bill agreed upon would increase the existing estate and gift tax rates.

The bill was summed up this way by Chairman Harrison (D-Mississippi) of the Conference Committee:

Graduated corporation income taxes: 12½ per cent on the first $2000 of income; 13 per cent on income from $2000-$15,000; 14 per cent on $15,000-$40,000 and 15 per cent on all above $40,000.

TAX ON PROFITS

Capital stock tax: Increased from the present $1 on $1000 to 1.40.

Excess profits: Permit new declaration of capital value and then tax at a 6 per cent rate those profits between 10 and 15 per cent and tax at 12 per cent the profits above 15 per cent.

Individual income surtaxes: Start levies, as in the House bill, at a tax of 31 per cent on income from $50,000 to $56,000, increasing rates to a maximum of 75 per cent on the excess over $5,000,000.

EXEMPTIONS REDUCED

Intercorporate dividends: A 90 per ce. exemption, instead of the existing 100 per cent exemption, on dividends received by one corporation from another. This rate would amount to about 1½ per cent.

Estate taxes: Ranging from 2 per cent on the first taxable $10,000 to 70 per cent on the excess over $50,000,000.

Gift taxes: Approximately three-quarters of the estate levies.

The Borah amendment, forbidding future issues of federal tax-exempt securities, and the McCarran amendment repealing much of the silver purchase act, were eliminated.

Harrison estimated these taxes would bring in $265,000,000 a year.

ITALY TO QUIT LEAGUE

That Premier Mussolini is prepared to deliver another telling blow was indicated by Baron Aloisi, his spokesman at the Paris conference, who said "circumstances" may compel Italy to withdraw from the League of Nations within a few weeks. Aloisi stated:

"Italy does not want to leave the League unless she is pushed out. Italy's presence in the League September 4 (when the council meets to consider the Italo-Ethiopian crisis) will depend on intervening circumstances."

The baron said Italy's objective is to obtain security for her East African colonies by disarming Ethiopi. This achieved, he added, Italy's position in Europe would be reinforced.

Captain Anthony Eden, chief British delegate to the four-cornered parley, informed Premier Laval of France of Britain's intention to permit arms shipments to belligerent Ethiopia. Eden asked what France proposed to do about its ban on similar exports to Emperor Haile Selassie's realm.

Laval declared the matter had not yet been considered by the French government, but he suggested that Britain go ahead with measures London believes necessary.

Eden then left Paris by airplane and arrived at Croydon airport, near London, last evening.

SECRET TALKS

Meanwhile, in London, British cabinet ministers were ordered to hold themselves in readiness for an emergency cabinet meeting, probably Thursday or Friday.

Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, who went to Sandringham to report the gravity of the situation to King George, returned today and conversed with Eden.

France, in secret diplomatic conversations during the past twenty-four hours, has expressed fear of the efficacy of Britain's naval, air, and military strength, in relation to the crisis threatening in Africa and the Mediterranean. a crisis precipitated by Mussolini's blunt announcement that only Italian military occupation of Ethiopia will satisfy Italy's needs.

French doubts on the ability of the British navy and air force to counter quickly any moves by Mussolini, if Il Duce's challenge is to be faced, have resulted in hesitation on the part of the French government to commit itself to any step which would bring about a break with Italy.

FORCE INADEQUATE

British military forces at present in Egypt and the Sudan and other Near East points are considered inadequate, if Britain is called upon to enforce economic and military sanctions against Italy, action which would mean war.

Sir Robert Van Sittart, permanent under secretary of the British foreign office, will leave Paris for Aix-Les-Baine tomorrow to report to Prime Minister Baldwin the critical aftermath of the breakdown of the three-power parley.

Sir Robert will urge Baldwin to summon a meeting of the British cabinet either this week-end or early next week. The British Parliament will probably be summoned in September, since the British government will require Parliamentary sanction for major decisions.

PREPAREDNESS STEPS

Meanwhile the British government is taking these preparedness steps:

1—Increase of the British Mediterranean fleet by diverting part of the home fleet to the Mediterranean sea.

2—Reinforcement of the British air forces at Heliopolis, Egypt.

3—A plan is being studied to protect Lake Tana, headwater of the Blue Nile in Ethiopia, from falling into Italian hands.

Italian refusal to reaffirm the British sphere of influence in Ethiopia around Lake Tana and discounting news about Premier Mussolini's military plans in the lake region, which the British have received, are worrying the British government.

POSITION AT STAKE

Powerful members of the British cabinet consider that the British empire is facing a historic moment. If Italy, by conquering Ethiopia, gets control of the Nile headwaters, Britain's position and policy in the Near East and Mediterranean would be at stake.

By holding Lake Tana and diverting its waters from the Blue Nile, Italy could make the British position in Egypt untenable, and, with Britain pushed out of Egypt, England's control of the Suez Canal and its routes to India would be endangered.

Italy would become a powerful imperial nation with interests in the Near East and Africa rivaling those of Britain.

The British cabinet and its committee on imperial defense is now considering realistically whether or not Britain, at this juncture, should meet Mussolini's challenge to the British Empire, no matter to what length Britain would have to go.

Behind the screen of the League of Nations and taking advantage of public opinion in Britain in support of the League, the British government could take bold action and propose sanctions against Italy.

Then, by enforcing those sanctions, it could strike at Il Duce's dream of reviving the Roman Empire in Africa, an empire when might eventually be built at the expense of the British Empire.

Meanwhile the moribund committee for the arbitration of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute met in Paris, but failed to name a fifth member to break the existing deadlock in its negotiations.

The two Italian representatives showed opposition to Nicholas Politis of Greece, whom the Ethiopian representative, Pitman B. Potter, of the United States, and Alfred de la Pradelle, of France, apparently favored. The committee will remeet tomorrow.

Il Duce Orders High Chiefs to African Duty

By Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 20—Authoritative sources disclosed today that a large proportion of Premier Mussolini's governmental chieftains will be transferred to East Africa.

Following the receipt of orders to the Cabinet ministers and other government officials to turn out for the war maneuvers next Saturday in the North of Italy, it became known that many of them are destined for active, or administrative service in Eritrea.

Despite previous orders to the contrary, the war maneuvers may be viewed by representatives of the foreign press. The Ministry of the Press reversed the former ruling, which would have barred foreign journalists.

Among the first ministers agreed upon for East African service are Count Celeazzo Ciano, minister of the press; Augusto Valle, undersecretary of aviation, and G. H. Venturi, undersecretary of posts, telegraphs and telephones.

Other ministers, particularly that of public works, will be represented either by the ministers themselves or by undersecretaries.

Officials of the Fascist party also are to go. General Peruzzi, head of the Fascist militia, will sail in a few days.

During these personages' absence their offices will be filled by "regents" and their jobs will be kept open for them until they return.

Il Duce commanded representation of the entire government at the maneuvers involving approximately 500,000 troops along the Austrian frontier starting Saturday.

The order included some 300 senators and deputies. Military circles said it would constitute something more than a sham war.

Ethiopians Want War; Troops Rushed to Borders

By Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Aug. 20—Reports from the interior said today the natives were becoming restive because Emperor Haile Selassie continued to hope for peace instead of starting war to rebuff the Italian threat.

The natives in those regions were said to resent the Emperor's conciliatory policy and to be asking that hostilities commence immediately.

The army is dispatching reinforcements daily to the frontier along the Italian colonies of Somaliland and Eritrea.

Many soldiers are drilling in the capital. The Ethiopian guards at the United States legation have recently been equipped with the latest model American rifles and bayonets. They are the envy of other Ethiopian soldiers.

The emperor, who is conducting the country's business almost single-handed, is showing signs of the nervous strain under which he has been working for six months. He looks tired, thin, and careworn, yet remains calm.

Addis Ababa was interested in a message from Brussels saying the United States government had refused to issue export licenses to munitions destined for Ethiopia.

Ethiopia, meanwhile, sped war preparations in secrecy.

An cartridge factory was completed in Addis Ababa to remedy the army's most serious weakness—lack of ammunition.

Troop movements were carefully camouflaged. Army divisions were ordered to keep away from the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad, Ethiopia's only modern means of communication with the outside world.

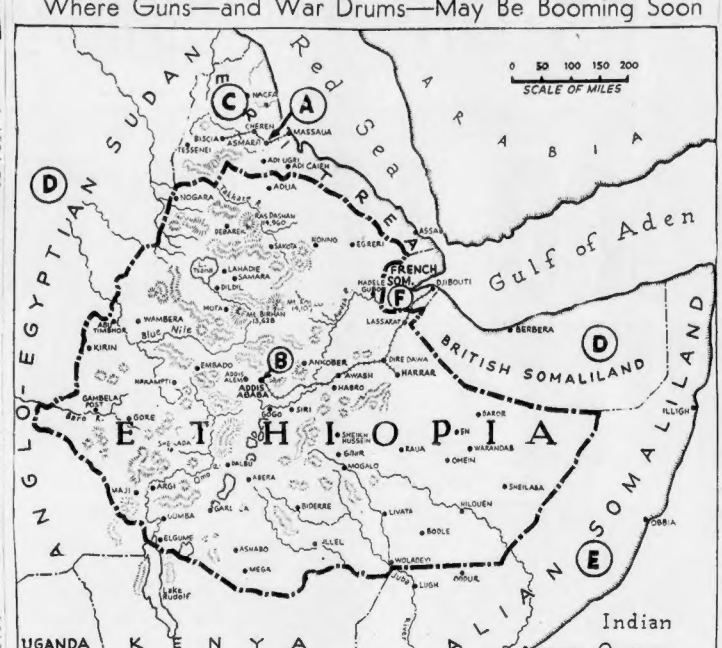
Children, too, were carrying on their own drills with improvised lances, scimitars and daggers.

Drilling of recruits continued about the capital. Quantities of arms and munitions, reported reaching Ethiopia through the Sudan, were said to be far short of what was needed to meet the demands of tribesmen.

Women clamored for permission to join the army, but it was evident that most of those accepted would go to the front as cooks, nurses or munitions bearers.

A medical service is being rapidly organized, following the arrival for the inauguration of an Ethiopian Red Cross. Eighteen Greek doctors, headed by Colonel Argiropoulos, who served under France in the World War, have been enlisted.

Where Guns—and War Drums—May Be Booming Soon



This map shows the potential war area in Ethiopia and indicates the proximity of East African possessions of principal European powers. (A) is the city of Asmara, in Italian Eritrea (C). Asmara is the depot center which is being used as a base by Italian troops preparing to invade Ethiopia from the Eritrean side. Italian transports and supply ships reach Eritrea through the Red Sea. (B) is the Ethiopian capital, Addis Ababa, the objective of Mussolini's attacking columns. Areas marked (D) are British possessions: the Egyptian Sudan, British Somaliland and Kenya. (F) is French Somaliland. (E) is Italian Somaliland, where occurred the alleged clashes between Ethiopians and native Italians which have been used as an excuse for the Italian invasion.

2 Somerville Men Hurt in Crash

Wilmington, Aug. 20—Two Somerville men were critically injured in an automobile crash here today.

They are Andrew Harris, of Quincy street, and George Barlow, of Marshall street. Both were taken to the State Infirmary, Tewksbury. Their names were placed on the danger list.

Harris has a possible fracture of the skull and deep cuts, and Barlow may have internal injuries, doctors said.

According to police, the car went out of control at a railroad crossing and struck a pole.

HUNTING OVER Shot Man for Deer

Towanda, Pa., Aug. 20—Because Door Bailey of Granville wounded Clyde Harringame of Canton in mistake for a deer last December, he may not hunt again in Pennsylvania for five years.

That was made the condition here when Judge Charles M. Culver suspended a jail sentence of a year after Bailey pleaded guilty to shooting a human in mistake for an animal.

Woman Again Victim of Poison

Miss Annabelle Carr, 29, of Glade avenue, Jamaica Plain, who barely survived poison last March, collapsed today in Cambridge and is again at the point of death.

She told a policeman, before she lost consciousness, that she had taken a sleeping potion.

She refused to give her name, but a paper in her handbag gave a clue to her identity which was later verified.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carr, hurried to Cambridge City Hospital, but she was still in a coma after several hours. Her father is a member of the Boston fire department.

The young woman collapsed on Massachusetts avenue, near Albany street, Cambridge. She was found by William Lynch, a lunch wagon employe, shortly after 1 a. m.

Lynch carried her to a railroad crossing shanty, where Patrolman Arthur Coffey questioned her while waiting for an ambulance. He quoted her as saying:

"I won't tell anybod; my name. I took seven capsules, 27 grains. I was in a sanitarium."

The girl has been in ill health for a long time, her mother said.

Noise Irks Newton

To please residents of Centre street, Newton police have routed heavy trucks through Cabot street. Residents of Cabot street aren't as indignant over the noise and dirt of the heavy vehicles as those of Center street were.

COUPLE DIE IN TRAIN CRASH

Newburyport, Aug. 20—Mr. and Mrs. George E. Meserve of Hollis Center, Me., both about 65 years old, were killed when their automobile and a Boston & Maine Railroad train collided today.

A Portsmouth-to-Boston train, which reaches this crossing at 8:18 a. m. after taking on passengers in Newburyport, struck the rear of the automobile and hurled it against two other automobiles. The occupants of one were shaken up. The two automobiles against which the Meserve machine was hurled were standing side by side about 50 feet away on the Bolton side of the crossing.

The driver of one was Wyman E. Adams of Maple street, Georgetown, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Hart of Tower avenue, Lynn. They were shaken up.

In the other car were Edward A. Berry, Greenwood street, Wakefield, his driver, his wife, her mother, Mrs. Sarah C. Trott, 74, of Beale street, Wollaston, and Miss Bernice Pendergrass, 45, of Summer street, Wakefield.

TOO FAT TO TEACH

Teacher Fights N. Y. Ruling

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20—Rose Friestater, 180 pounds, has decided to fight at that weight.

The 26-year-old biology teacher has hired a lawyer. If necessary she is going to take to court the Board of Education's ruling that if she wanted a regular teaching job in the public schools she would have to make the middleweight limit, or thereabouts.

For the last six weeks she has ridden horseback, played tennis, and taken 10 mile hikes daily at Ithaca, N. Y., trying to take off the 20 pounds the board ordered. She hasn't lost a pound, and she's through trying.

"I am not going to ruin my health trying to get thin to teach New York City school children," she said today.

"She's a natural heavyweight, built like a football player," added Harry Mabel, her attorney. "She doesn't come under the head of a fat woman."

He asserted that if the commissioner of education does not reverse the board's ruling he would demand a jury trial. The board looked at her application and decided a woman who was only five feet two and weighed 180 might find teaching too strenuous.

Dynamite Cache On Rogers Ranch

By Associated Press

Santa Monica, Cal., Aug. 20—Sufficient dynamite to "blow up the bay" was discovered on property belonging to the Will Rogers estate in Santa Monica canyon by a group of small boys, Captain K. G. Norris, army air representative at the Douglas Aircraft Works here, reported to police today.

Detectives said they believed the explosives may have been stolen from road construction gangs on the Roosevelt highway.

The conjecture also was expressed that the dynamite may have been stolen from the Rogers ranch, where the humorist had conducted much road building at his own expense.

The find included 145 sticks of 40 per cent extra heavy dynamite, a box of 300 percussion caps, 200 wired fuses and 75 feet of ordinary fuse.

Forest Fire Near Roosevelt Camp

Eastport, Me., Aug. 20—A new forest fire in the series ravishing Maine and New Brunswick woods today threatened President Roosevelt's summer home on Campobello Island.

Although still burning, it appeared to have been brought under control a quarter mile from the Roosevelt estate.

Other new fires threatened summer homes here and three villages at Fairhaven on Deer Island in New Brunswick territory.

Quoddy dam officials offered a crew of 800 men to help fight fires which have already laid waste 2000 acres in Washington and Hancock Counties.

Only rain, in the opinion of Forest Commissioner Neil L. Violette, will extinguish several fires that have been burning in the Calais and East Calais district since last week.

411 WPA Projects Get Rotch O.K.

A total of 411 WPA projects, amounting to $6,257,916, were approved and sent to Washington today by Arthur G. Rotch, state ERA-WPA administrator.

Rotch sent telegrams to mayors and selectmen through the state, urging them to forward their other projects immediately.

Delay of two or three days in ERA payrolls throughout the state may result from a change in payrolls and disbursing procedure, Administrator Rotch announced.

Rotch said, beginning August 16, ERA workers will have two pay days. Thereafter payrolls will be cleared through a central disbursing office here.

ERA pay checks will be mailed by the finance department at the Boston headquarters.

Payrolls will not be certified by local certifying officers. They will be approved by new officers to be appointed this week.

Gloucester Skipper On Treasure Hunt

Gloucester, Aug. 20 — Captain Clayton Morrissey was notified today to take command of the old pilot boat Liberty at Providence, R. I., tomorrow and proceed to Delaware Bay where efforts are being made to recover treasure estimated at $17,000,00 from the British warship De Brank, which sank in 1789.

Those interested in the project are satisfied they have located the hulk. Among the leaders of the expedition are Charles N. Colstad of Attleboro and Richard T. Wilson of Providence.

ROGERS, POST PART AT LAST IN DEATH

Read Will Rogers' life story by Jack Lait on Page 12 today.

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Aug. 20—In the darkened cabin of a transport plane, the body of Wiley Post began its last aerial voyage today, while thousands waited to pay final homage to Will Rogers, who met death with the aviator in a tragic Alaskan air crash.

The body of the famous humorist lay in a Glendale mortuary awaiting public and private funeral services Thursday, as the huge plane sped toward Oklahoma City where services for Post will be conducted.

Aboard the plane, which took off at 10 a. m. (E. D. T.), were Colonel Clarence M. Young, airline executive; Joe Crosson, who brought the bodies from Alaska; William A. Winston, chief pilot; J. L. Fleming, junior pilot; T. W. Dowling, radio operator, and Engineer Tom Ward.

IN 7½-HOUR FLIGHT

Only a few persons were present when the big ship took off from the airport—the same flying field from which Post started many aerial adventures, including the one which ended in death for him and Rogers.

The flight was expected to take about 7½ hours, with refueling stops at Albuquerque, N. M., and probably Amarillo, Tex.

POLICE HALT PICTURES

The 3,500-mile journey from the northern Alaska wilds, where they crashed in Post's ship last Thursday ended at dusk yesterday, when Pilot Winston set down his big Pan American transport at Burbank Airport.

The arrival was attended by the first display since the bodies of the celebrated dead were brought from Point Barrow.

Police and the curious clashed at the airport after the officers had sought to halt the taking of photographs.

The incident delayed transfer of the bodies to the mortuary a half hour.

Crosson had relinquished the controls for the flight from Seattle, which was broken by a brief fueling stop at Alameda.

The body of the famous humorist-actor will lie in state five hours, beginning at 7 a. m. Thursday in a grove of pine and olive trees in Forest Lawn memorial park, Glendale.

Private services were set for 2 p. m. in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, and will be conducted by Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, an old friend.

For the time being the remains will rest in a crypt at Forest Lawn, to be transferred by Mrs. Rogers at some later date to the family burial plot in Chelsea, Okla.

POST TO LIE IN STATE

Mrs. Rogers, accompanied by her three children, Will, Jr., Mary and James, and by relatives from Oklahoma, including Rogers' sister, Mrs. Tom McSpadden of Chelsea, were en route to Los Angeles by train from the East.

Mrs. Post, waiting at Maysville, Okla., with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Post, said the funeral plans depend on when the aerial hearse arrived.

Governor E. W. Marland received permission to have the body lie in state in the rotunda of the State Capitol.

Relatives indicated the remains may rest a few hours in rural Maysville, 60 miles south of Oklahoma City, as a gesture to home folk of the area, where the country-bred experimenter in stratosphere flight was reared.

Services will be at the First Baptist church in Oklahoma City, with interment in Memorial Park, nearby.

At noon here (corresponding to 10 a. m., California time, when funeral services will be conducted for Rogers) Governor Marland and his staff will direct public memorial services.

2 Runaway Girls Fed by Lynn Police

Lillian Dustin and Agnes Smith, both 18, residents of Concord, N. H.—and both very hungry—had their first meal in 24 hours today, at the expenses of Lynn police.

The girls said they set out on a hiking tour because there was never anything to do in Concord. Police notified their families.

Rogers' Last Gift Home

By Associated Press

Beverly Hills, Cal., Aug. 20—The last expression of Will Rogers' affection for his family reached here today.

It was a small package, addressed to Mrs. Rogers in care of J. K. Blake, her brother. The careless, rambling scrawl was the comedian's typical handwriting.

In the package was a small red fox fur, a souvenir of the land where death overtook him. It was postmarked Juneau, Alaska.

Vet Slays His Salem War Bride

Salem, Aug. 20—A Salem wartime romance has been ended in a California tragedy.

Ernest Calhoun, veteran of the 102d Field Artillery, Yankee Division killed his wife and himself in Sacramento, dispatches said today.

According to her relatives Mrs. Calhoun always wanted to come back from the West, but she feared her husband.

Dying, she told a nurse:

"Tell my family I'll be home now, anyway."

Her last words were conveyed to her mother, Mrs. Hattie L. Osgood of Andrew street, by telegram.

Calhoun shot himself and his wife in their home after an argument. He died before help arrived.

Calhoun, a native of Vandergrift, Penn., was transferred to the Salem artillery unit. There he met Grace Osgood. They were married in 1920 and hitch-hiked to California.

Afterwards they returned to Salem, were he worked in a store. They went West again seven years ago.

Expecting her home again in November, Mrs. Calhoun's mother was preparing a room for her.

Mrs. Calhoun was 39 and her husband 38. Building Inspector William Osgood of Salem is her uncle. She also leaves four sisters, Miss Bertha Osgood, Mrs. Myrna Dulessis and Mrs. Helen O. Thompson of Salem and Mrs. Sarah Dunn of Lynn. Four brothers also survive. They are Lucius Osgood, Jr., of Danvers, Theodore of Middleton and Herbert and William of Salem.

Karpis Threatens G-Man Hoover

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 20—Alvin Karpis, ranked Public Enemy No. 1, has threatened the life of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the "G" men, long hunting him.

Newspapermen were told at the Department of Justice today that the threat was contained in a letter to Hoover from Ohio about a month ago.

Hoover himself declined to say anything on the matter.

Sought by federal agents since the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul, banker, in January, 1934, Karpis was last seen by officers when he escaped from a prison in an Atlantic City hotel last winter.

He and Harry Campbell abandoned their girl friends, Wynona Burdette and Delores Delaney, who now are serving sentences.

Karpis is the only important member of his notorious kidnap and bank bandit gang who has escaped the government crime hunters.

Three members have met death as guns barked in Chicago and Florida.

Widow Wants Post To Lie With Heroes

By Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Aug. 20—While a transport plane bore the body of Wiley Post toward Oklahoma today, relative made plans to place it in a temporary resting place here until it can be decided where the aviator is to rest in Arlington National Cemetery.

Friends of the family said the flier's widow is inclined to place the ferried remains in the cemetery of national heroes.

Meanwhile Billy Parker, aviator friend of Post and Rogers, the flier who died in Alaska with Will Rogers, was instructed to obtain a temporary crypt in Fairlawn mausoleum.

Blind Witness Tells of Crash

A blind man was a witness today in an auto accident case in Cambridge court.

He is Robert Barrett of Boston, who testified that just before a collision between a car operated by Frank C. Sweetman of Grant street, Stoneham, and another car on Harvard Bridge August 11, he heard a report that sounded like a blowout.

Sweetman, despite his blind companion's testimony, was fined guilty of driving under the influence of liquor, and operating so as to endanger, and fined $100 on each charge.

Flees Police Shots

Escaping from two police officers who fired repeatedly at him, a man wanted for theft of $200 worth of dresses in Dorchester led police a chase through the South End. He is still being hunted.

Millen's Widow Must Stay in Jail Until Morning

Norma Millen will not get her freedom this midnight.

Sheriff Samuel H. Capen announced today that, although her "time" will have been served at 12 o'clock, Dedham jail's most famous prisoner will not be allowed to leave until 8:30 tomorrow morning.

He said this was "the custom," and that no exception would be made in the case of the violet-eyed young widow of the executed machine-gun killer, Murton Millen.

Norma "primped" today, awaiting her debut into a world which, for her, has undergone a topsy-turvy change since her arrest a year ago last February for participation as an accessory in bank robbery and double-murder.

Another woman prisoner cut and waved Norma's hair and helped her "let out" four dresses.

She has lost her schoolgirl complexion and has added considerable weight.

"She went into jail a little girl, and she will come out a woman," said her father, Rev. Norman Frichion, of Natick.

The change, he indicated, is mental as well as physical.

The woman who helped Norma "do" her hair was released today after four months in the same wing with the minister's daughter.

Norma helped her prepare for departure, bobbing her hair and pressing a dress.

Aside from these preparations, the day was no different than any of the others she has spent since beginning her one year sentence.

She sewed wastebands on prison trousers, made buttonholes in coats and scrubbed a corridor floor.

Father Stands By

But she watched the clock.

The hideous nightmare of murder, terrified flight from the law, and months of harrowing cross examination will be left behind.

The desolation of a blasted love, a state-executed husband, the merciless glare of publicity—all these will be left behind in the grim walls of her Dedham jail.

Before will be hope; hope of forgetfulness, hope of a new order of things, hope of a deep peace.

If she wins her battle against the bitter circumstances which made her Massachusetts' least envied daughter, Norma will owe much of her thanks to her father.

It was he who stood by her, unwavering in his faith that Norma was a "good girl."

As often as the rules and his practice would permit, he visited her at the jail, encouraged her with trusting smiles, pleaded with her to "keep her chin up."

And it is to his home, which was her home once, that she will go for shelter from the eyes of the curious, to rest and to rebuild her faith in herself, and her trust in mankind.

Plan Cremation For Woman Suicide

By Associated Press

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 20—Arrangements neared completion today to cremate the body of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, 75, social worker and writer, who chose to die after deciding her value to society had ended.

Mrs. Gilman, born in Hartford, Conn., of the noted Beecher family, died Saturday night from an overdose of anaesthetic.

In a farewell note, she had written: "when all usefulness is over, when one is assured of an unavoidable and imminent death, it is the simplest of human rights to choose a quick and easy death in place of a slow horrible one."

She had been in ill health.

WOMAN BEATEN, Robbed of $3

Held up today by four men in Tremont street near Appleton street, South End, Mrs. Mary Hayes, 26, of Dover street, was beaten and robbed of her pocketbook containing $3.

Teacher's Murder Trial Postponed

By Associated Press

Wise, Va., Aug. 20—Upon the plea of defense attorneys, Judge H. A. W. Skeen today postponed until October the trials of Edith Maxwell, pretty school teacher, and her mother, Mrs. Anne Maxwell.

They are charged with killing their father and husband, Trigg Maxwell, by striking him with a shoe in a family quarrel.

Jim Toland, Gym Owner, Drops Dead

Another noted figure in the sports world was lost today when James E. Toland, 47, for years proprietor of Toland's Gym, dropped dead in his home at 312 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

Toland, who had trained many wrestlers and fighters, apparently had been attempting to reach the telephone when he collapsed.

He was found on the floor, with an arm outstretched toward the telephone and with a bottle of medicine, commonly used in heart affections, on another table.

John P. Murphy, who lives downstairs, heard the fall. When he rushed up to the Toland apartment, however, he found the athletic trainer dead.

GRAFTON Love Lessons LEARNED

12 SEE LINDEN, RUSH TO WED

Grafton, Aug. 20—So this, murmurs drowsy old Grafton—viewing the lovemaking of Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker—is love!

And six young couples, bashful for lo, these many moons before "Ah Wilderness" came upon them, echo:

"This is love."

Whereupon they up and descend upon Town Clerk Robert S. Leonard and say:

"Have you any nice fresh marriage licenses?"

And when he says he has, and plenty, they say:

"We guess we'll take some."

Record Rush

And Town Clerk Robert S. Leonard scratches out the names of the twelve young deacons of Cupid and rings the cash register.

He turned to the world today and remarked:

"Can you figure this? Year in and year out, man and boy, I've been watching the marriage statistics in this town.

"I guess maybe there are no more weddings than one a week—45 a year anyhow—that's the average.

"I never saw anything like the rush I got in the last few days.

"That 'Ah Wilderness' tropne has only been here a week, too.

"But I have to confess that that Eric Linden and Cely Parker sure can make love. I've seen them myself.

"Now take those love scenes being repeated and repeated and everyone looking on.

"I figure, maybe, it must have got the young folks thinking . . . It's a record high, anyhow."

Whereupon Town Clerk Robert S. Leonard drew the shade a bit to keep out the sun, but the office is still open for business.

Fleeing Fire "Habit" Now

Waking up in the night and escaping from a burning building is getting to be almost a habit for Margaret Beacham of Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge, and her pet dog, "Tibby". The blaze which drove them from their home today is the second in the same building within 36 hours. Police are investigating. [Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.]

Medford Gas Victim Revived

Overcome by illuminating gas, Charles Mead, 47, an accountant, was found unconscious today in his home at 63 Water street, Medford. Police and firemen revived him with an inhalator.

Liner Olympic Goes to Scrap Heap

Southampton, Aug. 20—The famous old S. S. Olympic was placed on the scrapping list today by the Cunard-White Star Line.

The four-funnel liner was launched in 1910. She rammed and sank a German submarine during the war.

SALEM Mill Heads STONED

STRIKE RIOTS FLARE ANEW

Salem, Aug. 20—The Pequot Mills were re-opened with strike-breakers working today. Violence flared again.

Five carloads of strike-breakers were sped into the mill grounds at 5:30 a. m., a half hour before the picket lines were established for the day.

Reports of their presence resulted in 200 pickets, double the normal number, going on duty.

Night Riot

A car driven by Bernard N. Hood, who was accompanied by another executive of the mills, was stoned when it appeared several hours later.

Stones struck the car and broke glass, but the occupants were not hurt.

Police feared a demonstration when the strikebreakers leave the mills tonight.

The Pequot reopening with strikebreakers may indicate a general attempt on the part of officials to lock out 2200 union workers who went on strike a week ago yesterday, union leaders said.

Long Siege

Wilfred T. Levesque, business agent of the Independent Sheeting Workers Union, said he heard such a report.

"It looks like a long seige," he added.

Although the strikers have dropped their demand for a 25 per cent wage increase, J. Foster Smith, agent for the mills, declined to meet a committee of strikers to discuss settlement of other union stipulations.

He said he required more time to study the situation.

There were no pickets on duty in Peabody and no attempt was made to reopen the Danvers Bleachery.

Silent Film Star Cheers For Huey

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20—Marguerite Clark, former star of silent pictures, may take the stump this fall in behalf of Senator Huey P. Long.

It depends, she said today, on whether Long becomes a presidential candidate "and whether my husband is willing."

The former actress, who is only 4 feet 10 inches tall, is now Mrs. Harry P. Williams, of Palmerston, La., and New Orleans.

"And if Long becomes a candidate, he'll certainly mess things up," she added. "That's what I think of his election prospects."

Mrs. William's husband, former partner of the late Sen. "Jimmy" Wedell, is a strong supporter of Senator Long.

The brown-haired former actress said that "Huey Long has made Louisiana."

"I believe in him," she continued. "And I think he is absolutely sincere. He's the best politician I have ever known, and the greatest fighter.

"When he goes out to get something, he gets it.

"He gave us paved roads, free bridges, free textbooks, night schools, and he did a lot for charity hospitals. That appealed to me more than anything else.

"I don't know much about politics, but I do know about sick children."

Mrs. Williams said that Senator Long is "tremendously popular" and that "you could never ignore him."

"I'd much rather be disliked than ignored," she added.

GARNER'S VISIT TO JAPAN SEEN AS VITAL

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 20—The Washington Post says Vice-President Garner has disclosed plans to stop in Japan this fall while en route to the Philippines for the inauguration of the island's new government.

The paper says plans for the visit are regarded as significant — possibly momentous—in American-Japanese relations.

Garner insisted the stop in Japan will be unofficial and informal, the paper asserts.

"Japanese here asserted, however," it adds, "that should the Vice-President stop in their country his visit certainly will be made a formal occasion, especially since the Vice-President is understood to be the personal emissary of President Roosevelt on his journey to Manila.

"In Japanese quarters it was asserted that not only would officials of Nippon's government welcome Mr. Garner, but that the Japanese government would quickly seize such an occasion as an opportunity to express friendship for the United States and to disavow any designs on the Philippine Islands.

"Indeed some Washington observers regard the Garner visit as affording an unusual opportunity for improving relations between this country and Japan."

Accompanying the Vice-President will be a party of 48 congressional leaders.

MacLeod Clan Chief Dead

London, Aug. 20 (AP)—Sir Reginald MacLeod, chief of the Clan MacLeod and deputy chairman of the Anglo-American Debenture Corporation, died today in his home, Dunvegan Castle, Isle of Skye.

Suffering Memory Loss

At the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, apparently suffering from amnesia, is this unidentified young woman, who says she can remember neither her name nor her past. She came to police headquarters, saying she was "lost". (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

WOMAN VICTIM OF AMNESIA

Apparently an amnesia victim, a woman about 30 years old walked into Medford police headquarters early today and asked that she be sent to a hospital.

The woman declared she did not know her name and could not remember where she lived.

After questioning by police, a quiz that elicited nothing except repeated replies that she was lost, the woman was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

She is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 115 pounds, has brown eyes and brown bobbed hair. She has a bruise over her left eye and an abrasion on her left elbow.

She was wearing a red gingham dress, black shoes, gray stockings and no hat when she entered the police station.

On her left hand she wore a wedding ring, the inscription inside of which reads "L. P. to E. K., 10, 12, 1920."

N. H. Strike's On, But 200 Hold Jobs

By Associated Press

East Rochester, N. H., Aug. 20—Two hundred employes of the Cocheco Woolen Company continued work today despite a ruling last night by Attorney-General Francis W. Johnston that a strike existed at the plant.

The effect of the ruling, however, remained in doubt as John R. Hickey, president of the Employes' Protective Association, representing workers at the plant, declined to comment on Johnston's decision.

United Textile Workers of American local officials asserted the workers now employed were "strike-breakers." The UTWA called the strike early in the summer after a wage increase was refused.

Antiques Held For Police Check

Providence, R. I., Aug. 20—Massachusetts police were asked today to view more than $1500 worth of allegedly stolen antiques, seized in a warehouse here.

State police are holding a former aerial performer and two men of Wickford R. I., on suspicion of larceny.

The three were arrested on the story of a former 15-year-old Providence girl, who had answered an advertisement three months ago, for a job as companion to the woman. Since then she has been touring New England with them, leading the woman, who posed as blind.

Art-Musical and Nude--- Affirmed in Love Suit

Washington, Aug. 20—Art—both cello-playing and the living nude—spiced the $18,000 alienation of affection suit the U. S. Court of Appeals affirmed today against Mrs. Marie De Beauvais Richards, a native of Cambridge, Mass.

And like most of such cases this one, which started by the defendant taking music lessons from the now estranged husband of the plaintiff, Richard Lorieberg, a former member of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, was not without the usual melodramatic climax.

The enraged wife raided the "other woman's" home and found her husband hiding in a servant's room in the basement.

The musician's views of the nude entered the case, the court's decision said, when Mrs. Richards remarked while motoring with Mr. and Mrs. Lorieberg that her husband said she (Mrs. Richards) looked better without any clothes on "and Lorieberg agreed."

Her husband is Ralph Webster Richards, a native of Waterville, Me., and a geologist for the department of the interior.

SOUGHT REVERSAL

Mrs. Richards had asked the appellate court to reverse the supreme court's decision.

Mrs. Nancye M. Lorieberg originally sued Mrs. Richards for $100,000. A jury in the lower court recommended $30,000, but that court cut this amount to $18,000.

Chief Justice Martin, of the appellate court, said the testimony tended to show:

"In February, 1925, he (Musician Lorieberg) started to give music lessons to the defendant, and defendant started to telephone him daily.

"Defendant (while motoring with Mr. and Mrs. Lorieberg) remarked that her husband said she looked better without any clothes on, and Lorieberg agreed.

"Lorieberg told his wife that she could not appreciate his art like defendant did.

OFFERED TO BUY HOME

"Witness testified Lorieberg . . . said defendant had offered to buy him a $135,000 home.

"On the night of December 9, 1932 . . . plaintiff, accompanied by her sister and several detectives, demanded admission to defendant's home. After a delay of about 15 minutes they were admitted by defendant . . . Lorieberg eventually was found hiding in the servant's room in the basement with his hat over his face."

SUSPECT TRIO Faces Line-Up

Arrested on suspicion of breaking into a number of Boston and Brookline houses, three young men face a police line-up today. According to Brighton police, who made the arrests, Timothy J. Tuohey, 19, of Converse street, Brighton, confessed to several breaks.

Pope Names 6 for Cleveland Meet

By Associated Press

Castel Gandolfo, Aug. 20—Pope Pius today announced the pontifical mission to accompany Patrick Cardinal Hayes, papal delegate, to Cleveland for the eucharistic congress.

The mission will be headed by the pope's secretary, Monsignor Diego Venini, who will take with him the pope's message and a gold chalice the pope will present Cleveland Cathedral.

Others named are Monsignor Michael Lavelle, vicar-general of New York diocese; Monsignor Joseph Smith and Monsignor Carlo Grano, papal master of ceremonies.

Lay members of the mission are George MacDonald of New York and Gerard Borden, papal chamberlain.

Paralysis Spread Reduced to Two

Two cases of infantile paralysis were reported today in Boston—the lowest number for any one day in the past three weeks. They brought the total in the city to 130 cases since July 15.

Those reported today were David Daley, 3, of Silver street, South Boston, the third in his family to become afflicted with the disease, and Burton Bravo, 5, of Balsam street, Dorchester.

HOPSON ADMITS PROFITS WERE $3,187,000

By Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 20—Threatened with contempt proceedings if he did not answer questions, Howard Chopson agreed today that he and his family had drawn profits of $3,187,000 from the Associated Gas and Electric system from 1929-1933 inclusive.

The testimony was elicited in the Senate lobby investigation through persistent interrogation by Senator Schwellenbach (D), Washington.

Hopson acknowledged that during half the time covered, the utility system under him was not paying dividends on its stock.

The earnings were made by private companies owned by him and his family which sold services to companies in the system.

It was the first time he had agreed publicly to his profits. He had characterized them as inaccurate before the House rules committee.

Tension pervaded the hearing. At the outset the committee warned the witness it would "no longer permit him" to evade questions or make speeches, and unless he complied an additional contempt citation would be presented in the Senate.

One already impends against him there, as well as against William A. Hill of Boston of his counsel.

The latter was close by his side today. As were other advisers.

Across the way sat Chesley W. Jurney, Senate sergeant-at-arms who makes contempt arrests.

Hopson agreed, at the end of a long recital, that he and J. I. Mange had maintained control of the A. G. E. system until the company passed dividends on its stock.

They now hold less than 15 per cent of the voting stock, he said, because additional stock is eligible to vote as long as dividends are not being paid.

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE, SELF

By Associated Press

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 20—Police today recorded the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Calhoun, middle-aged couple, as a slaying and suicide, which followed a family quarrel.

The body of Calhoun, shot through the head, was found in their residence early yesterday. Mrs. Calhoun later died from an abdominal wound.

In statements before she died, Mrs. Calhoun said the shooting climaxed a quarrel. Calhoun was a worker for the State Emergency Relief Administration.

Investigating officers reported Calhoun shot the woman and then ended his own life.

Calhouns Former Salem Residents

Salem, Aug. 20—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Calhoun lived on Lemon street in this city until about seven years ago.

The couple were married shortly after the World War and had no children.

Mrs. Calhoun was formerly Grace Osgood and has many relatives in this section. Her mother, Mrs. Hattie L. Osgood, widow of Lucius Osgood, lives on Andrew street. An uncle, William Osgood, is Salem building inspector.

Mrs. Calhoun leaves four sisters, Miss Bertha Osgood, Mrs. Myrna Dulesais and Mrs. Helen O. Thompson, all of this city, and Mrs. Sarah Dunn of Lynn. Four brothers also survive her. They are Lucius, Jr., of Danvers, Theodore of Middleton and Herbert and William of Salem.

Roosevelt Losing

Weakening Politically Paul Block Finds

New Deal Facing Defeat

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 20—President Roosevelt is politically weaker today than at any time since his election.

If the present political trend continues, the New Deal will unquestionably go down to defeat next year.

Paul Block, noted publisher, thus summarized his findings on a recent extended tour of western states.

In an address over the nation-wide network of the National Broadcasting Company, entitled "The Political Trend As I Find It," Block spoke from San Francisco.

Paul Block

A year ago, Block said, workers were still hopeful that New Deal experiments might succeed, and farmers seemed satisfied, although businessmen were distrustful and skeptical of administration policies.

Today, the publisher reported, "not only is business stronger than ever against the New Deal but workers in both industry and agriculture, who were previously either satisfied or 'on the fence' are definitely turning against it."

He said:

"My investigations of the political trend have convinced me that the people are beginning to recognize the President's broken promises; his assault on the Constitution and his intimation that he would pack the United States Supreme Court.

"I am also convinced that our citizens have awakened to the fact that the New Deal administration is not an American administration, not a democratic administration.

"It is a group of men who perhaps innocently but at least ignorantly are trying to create one national state, with a regimentation not only of business and agriculture but of the people themselves."

"RADICAL CLIQUE"

The President, Block said, has either followed or led "in the policies suggested to him by a coterie of inexperienced professors and young lawyers, A 'radical clique,' instead of adhering to the Democratic platform of 1932.

Further, the publisher stated, when he lunched with President Roosevelt the day after the Supreme Court's NRA decision, His (the President's) statement outlining his plans were most disturbing and if known would shock every staunch American."

The full text of Block's speech follows:

"A little over a year ago, I visited a number of mid-western and far-western states and talked to a great number of people in all fields of endeavor about political and economic conditions.

"I met business men, farmers, workers, railroad men and others.

"At that time, I found a strong undercurrent of distrust and skepticism among business men toward the administration's effort to "spend our way to prosperity."

"The working people, however, were still hopeful that the New Deal experiment might succeed.

"As for the farmers, most of them seemed satisfied, especially those who had benefited materially from AAA subsidies.

SENTIMENT CHANGED

"I have just made another trip through the same states and a number of others which I did not visit the last time and have found a most striking change in sentiment.

"Not only is business stronger than ever against the New Deal but workers in both industry and agriculture, who were previously either satisfied or "on the fence," are definitely turning against it.

"And what is most interesting to note how very clear visioned these workers are on problems existing today and facing them for the future.

"This trip has also made it more clear than ever, why the recent election in Rhode Island brought a change within one year of 34,000 votes, electing a Republican congressman by nearly 13,000 to replace a New Deal Democrat who last November had received a plurality of 21,000 votes.

"From my observations many of the states which I have just visited would show the same results as Rhode Island did, were an election to take place today.

"And investigations and inquiries which I made in the eastern states including New England, convinces me that the workers there, are in accord with those of Rhode Island, who were responsible for the recent Republican victory.

"All this does not mean a Presidential election, if held this fall or even in 1936, would definitely bring about the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt and his new deal policies, but that the President is weaker today than at any time since his election.

"Of this there is not a question of doubt.

"And if this trend continues, then in the elections of 1936 the new dealers will unquestionably go down to defeat.

"Should this occur, it will NOT be a defeat of a Democratic party because that party is not in power today.

"It is the new deal party which would be eliminated.

"President Roosevelt was elected by nearly 23 million votes on a frank and honorable Democratic platform which he accepted in whole.

"That platform, among other planks, included:

"Immediate reduction of government expenditure by 25 per cent.

"Balanced budget through taxes based on ability to pay.

"A sound currency to be preserved at all hazards.

"Strict and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

"Opposition to the unsound policy of restricting agricultural production.

"The whole country now knows how many of these promises the President has fulfilled. NOT ONE.

"Instead, almost from the day of his election, he has either followed or led in the policies suggested to him by a coterie of inexperienced professors and young lawyers, a radical clique, which as one of them wrote, wanted to "remake" America.

FOREIGN IDEAS COPIED

"Ideas were copied from countries where Fascism, communism or national socialism is the order and many of these experiments have been made into laws for our people. By a Congress, which has acted as a body of rubber stamps and followed the dictation which came from the White House.

"The day after the supreme court declared the NRA measure unconstitutional I had the privilege of lunching with President Roosevelt.

"His health could not have been better but his statements outlining his plans were most disturbing and if known would shock every staunch American.

'PROMISES BROKEN'

"My investigation of the political trend has convinced me that the people are beginning to recognize the President's broken promises; his assault on the constitution and his intimation that he would "pack" the United States supreme court.

"I am also convinced that our citizens have now awakened to the fact that the New Deal administration is not an American administration, not a Democratic administration, but a group of men who perhaps innocently but at least ignorantly are trying to create one national state, with a regimentation not only of business and agriculture, but of the people themselves.

"All this means Fascism mixed with Communism.

"Personally, I do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt had any such thought before he became President.

"As governor of New York, he properly fought for state rights and it is only since his election.

"After he surrounded himself with such alien-minded Socialists as the Frankfurters, the Wallaces Tugwells, Cohns, Corcorans and others of this breed, that he suddenly started to 'remake' America.

LIVING COSTS RISING

"Through the most asinine experiments ever invented by the inexperienced Secretary Wallace, the cost of living is rising and the relief rolls increasing, and all at the expense of the thrifty and the men and women who are fortunate enough to have jobs today.

"At the President's request a new tax bill is now being pushed through Congress.

"It is admitted the bill is to soak the successful.

"This means that every holder of stock and every holder of a life insurance policy will suffer because of this new bill.

"Millions of our people urged further consideration of this extremely harmful measure, but the White House demands that it be passed and a weak Congress simply acts as it is told.

"Is it, therefore, surprising that a change in sentiment has at last come to the American people?

"Everywhere you turn there is evidence that President Roosevelt's popularity is falling—and if this continues, it will mean that November, 1936, will find the New Deal administration, brain-trusters and all, not only eliminated but deservedly disgraced."

BISHOPS PLAN FIGHT TO FOIL NAZI'S WAR

By Associated Press

Fulda, Germany, Aug. 20—The German Catholic bishops met in secret today to prepare a counter attack on the Nazi drive against "political Catholicism."

The conference, described by the Nazis as one that "will have a decisive influence on the relationship of the church to the national socialist state," was regarded by Catholics as the most important assemblage of bishops in recent years.

The entire German Catholic hierarchy—three cardinals, three archbishops and nineteen bishops, presided over by Senior Cardinal Bertram of Breslau—discussed the "serious situation facing the German church."

The bishops meet in this old Catholic center of learning annually over St. Boniface's tomb in the cathedral. They sit for three days, in private except for the opening and closing sermons.

3 BIG QUESTIONS

One of the main questions under discussion today was how to protect the clergy from the order of Hermann Goering, head of the secret police, for the arrests of priests who "misuse their authority and their holy position for political ends."

Other topics were:

What to do about the concordat between the Reich and the Vatican, which the church claims has been violated in many ways, principally by the dissolution of Catholic Youth societies and enforcement of the sterilization law.

How to combat Alfred Rosenberg's "German faith movement," denunciation of which recently brought retaliation from Rosenberg and Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, to Bishop Muenster of Clemens, who sought to restrain Rosenberg from delivering an address.

This "Godless movement," the clergy said, was quietly spreading throughout the Reich, undermining youth.

FINALLY UP TO ROME

Whatever the results of the three-day session, the matter will be referred to Rome and developed slowly.

An officially-inspired Nazi statement took the position that the church had broken the concordat, not the Nazis.

The statement urged the bishops' meeting to order priests to abstain from further blows at national socialism.

Berlin, Aug. 20—Jews in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, international resort and center of next year's winter Olympic games, found themselves barred from the public parks today. The municipal council issued the order barring all non-Aryans from the public recreation center.

Banners inscribed with such warnings as "Jews are not allowed" were posted at park entrances.

Further weeding out of Jews from public life was reported from Hanover.

Lobby Probers Should End Notoriety Hunting

THE congressional lobbying investigation committees of both House and Senate are giving a conspicuous exhibition of partisan bias and selfish personal interest which is not the less offensive because it is customary and characteristic.

The committees of both the upper and lower houses—and it is hard to tell which is the lower if measured in public esteem—have ignored entirely the huge scandal of administration strong-arm lobbying and political coercion, and have endeavored to distract public attention from the administration's flagrant abuse of power and position, and to focus inquiry entirely on the Hopson case which, in the last analysis, is obviously the less violation of public morals, and the less dangerous to public safety.

Apparently it is no evil in the narrow vision of a servile Congress for the administration to use public moneys, plus its tremendous political power, to destroy private properties and ruin innocent stockholders in private enterprises; but it is a sin of the most unforgivable kind for private property to use its own money to protect itself and to try to present to Congress and to the public its side of the crucial question at issue.

According to this myopic Congress, whatever the incumbent socialistic administration does to try to discredit the private property it seeks to destroy is righteous exposure; but whatever the private property holders do to defend themselves from attacks which may be entirely socialistic and wholly unjust, undemocratic, and un-American, is outrageous and altogether indefensible lobbying.

What is sauce for the goose apparently is apple sauce for the gander.

THE fearful injustice of the situation, the crying evil of it, the dangerous menace of it, not only to private rights but to public liberties, are aggravated by the cheap and tawdry and absurd competition between House and Senate committees to secure the corpus of Hopson purely for advertising purposes.

Senator Propagandist Black is an old offender at the blatant self advertising game.

He has always been leading publicity hound of the Congress.

He and Nye run neck and neck for first page prominence of any kind secured by any means and method.

No sense of good taste or good judgment, no feeling of propriety or decency, restrains them.

Heaven only knows how much of the people's money has been squandered by this precious pair of self seeking politicians for personal advertising.

Their one idea of their duties and obligations as public men is to attract public attention and to gain public notoriety, no matter how unenviable.

Arthur McEwen once said that any man could gain attention by walking down Broadway with his shirt tail hanging out, but that it might not be altogether favorable attention.

Senators Black and Nye should ponder that point, tuck in their shirt tails, and adopt a more modest and less ridiculous method of notoriety hunting.

CONGRESS NEAR FINISH FEARS EXPLOSION

By International News Service

Washington, Aug. 20—Congress sped toward its goal of "must" legislation today, with leaders nervously watching for an explosion that might upset adjournment plans.

Unless the Democratic machines in Senate and House are stalled, adjournment is in sight by Saturday night.

Within 24 hours after a new list of "must" legislation was framed at a White House conference, Senate and House both were operating at top speed.

The omnibus banking bill, revising the Federal Reserve law and making the $5,000 maximum bank deposit insurance permanent, was sent to the White House today.

A railroad retirement bill also passed both bodies.

COAL BILL IN SENATE

While the Senate began debate on the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, setting up "a little NRA" for the soft coal industry, the House hammered away at an accumulation of miscellaneous bills.

A showdown on the utilities holding company bill—perhaps the biggest stumbling block to enactment of the "must" program of 10 bills—was expected today.

President Roosevelt himself held the key. He was reported to be willing to accept a compromise on the "death sentence" clause, but the report was disputed in some quarters.

As the Senate-House conference committees met, the House group offered a six-point alternative compromise plan. This included making the measure purely regulatory, limiting it to operating companies, restricting service charges of holding companies, or merely passing what can be agreed on and letting the rest go until next session.

WHEELER LEADS FIGHT

Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, bitter foe of the holding companies, was fighting for a "death sentence" even though less drastic than that contained in the Senate bill.

Democratic councils were torn over the prospect of making the utilities bill a campaign issue in 1936. Leaders among the 150 Democratic senators and representatives who opposed the President on the issue declared that the party would be split if it is made an issue.

Status of other "must" measures included:

Agreement in sight on TVA amendments, federal alcohol control bill, and tax measure, the gold clause bill was in conference, the House judiciary committee held the government contracts bill and Senate approved of the railroad reorganization bill was expected.

Senate passage of the Frazier-Lemke three-year farm moratorium bill put House Democratic leaders "on the spot." Scores of members clamored for action, but the White House was said to disapprove the measure.

Bergdoll's Wife Plans New Plea

By Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 20—Mrs. Grover C. Bergdoll said she planned to seek an interview with President Roosevelt in Washington soon, to ask for a pardon for her husband, World War draft dodger now in exile in Germany.

Wild Hogs Hunted

San Saba, Tex., Aug. 20 (AP)—The high price of pork has made the hunting of wild hogs a paying sport. The meat brings about nine cents a pound.

Handful of Nickels Will Be Vogue at Revere

One handful of nickels becomes the vogue again tomorrow at Revere Beach.

Today, in the Boston Evening American, is the strip of Nickel Day tickets that will make possible a day of fun at the popular beach resort at cut rates—a weekly feature that has become an institution.

In today's editions of the American are coupons entitling the holders, for the payment of a nickel here and there, to refreshments, food, cooling drinks, entertainments, rides and general amusements at Revere—all for but a fraction of the usual cost.

Clip the coupons in today's editions of the Boston Evening American and have a day of fun tomorrow at comparatively slight expense.

Berlin Radio Fire Injured Toll Is 29

W. End Boy Chums Reported Missing

Irving Wolinsky, 10, of Parkman street, South End, and Arthur Di Gregorio, 12, of North Russell street, West End, chums, were reported missing by their parents today.

They left their homes for a West End playground yesterday morning.

HORSE TRAMPLES Man to Death

William Hook, 58, of Lancaster street, North End, was dragged 50 feet to his death beneath the hoofs of a run-away horse in the South Boston yards of the New Haven railroad.

He was attempting to back the animal into a freight shed when it became frightened.

RUSSIAN FAMINE MAN-MADE, FORMER OFFICIAL DECLARES

Herewith is the third of a series of revealing articles by Adam J. Tawdul, a lifelong Communist, who went from the United States to Russia to occupy an important engineering position under the Soviet Government and who now tells vividly what he found there.

ARTICLE THREE

By ADAM M. TAWDUL

Was the great Russian famine organized by the Soviet government as was it the unforseen result of Stalin's planned economy?

Emperors and autocrats have in the past often waged war, in which millions have perished, for wilful reasons. Governments and militaristic Juntas have been known to send great masses of people to slaughter for the sake of conquest.

But has a government ever in the history of man been known, before this fateful era in Russia, to sow and to reap death among its people so as to strengthen its own power?

In the highest Communist circles in Moscow and in Kharkov and Cheliabinsk I have heard it said, in confidential talks, that the famine helped break down the opposition of the peasantry to the collectivisation drive.

In the Ukraine the Soviet government warred against the Russian population. In the Urals it fought the Moslem tribes.

Famine Useful

"The famine must be aggravated and actively exploited as a means of 'finishing with the Kulak' once for all," were the whispered views which I herad expressed more than once among the superior G. P. U. functionaries in Kharkov.

These wishful thoughts of the ruling class in Soviet Russia somehow or other permeated into the population. In many localities I had occasion to hear workers and peasants express the conviction the Bolsheviks had organized the famine.

I was surprised to have this opinion expressed to me by certain political exiles in Cheliabinsk.

The cynicism of the Soviet mandarins is beyond Western understanding. I shied away from the things which I heard, and preferred not to believe my own ears.

It was too monstrous a thought the Soviet government would use the famine to cement the dictatorship.

Then came an intimate conversation with Lovin, the mandarin of Cheliabinsk and the kinsman of Stalin, whose attitude towards the famine reflected that of the Kremlin. Said Comrade Lovin:

"The famine has been of great benefit to us in the Urals, in western Siberia and in the Trans-Volga. In these regions the losses from starvation have mostly affected the alien races. Their place is being taken by Russian refugees from the central provinces.

"We are, of course, no nationalists. But as realists in politics we cannot overlook this advantageous fact.

"The Slav population in the border-lands is COMPELLED, for its own self-protection, to support the Soviet government.

Like Kings

"On the other hand, the native tribesmen have their religious and racial ties with Afghanistan, Persia, Turkey and other Asiatic or Moslem countries. They look forward to help from these nations.

"These tribesmen perished in greater numbers than Russians because they adapted themselves less to the Bolshevik experiments, especially the policy of turning the nomads into colonists.

"My personal observations and eye-witness accounts show with what fatalism these Moslems and Buddhists submitted meekly to death. They did not even try to resist."

If these Communist apologists in America who prattle about the freedom of nationalities in Russia could have heard Lovin's cold-blooded statement of Russian imperialism and subjection of the minority races by the scourge of famine, they might have gained an insight into the real nature of the Soviet government.

For Lovin is a typical member of the new oligarchy in control of Russia.

Although the Communists and Socialists have always denounced nepotism as an evil of capitalism, it was under the Communist dictatorship that it has blossomed forth in all its beauty.

Every important commissar installs all his relatives in powerful posts, and the relationship is known to the population and is a badge of unquestioned authority.

Kin Favored

Lovin's power sprang from his kinship to the Stalin family. A man of about 50, Lovin's revolutionary past was insignificant.

How does a man of Lovin's position live in present-day Russia?

His apartment in Cheliabinsk, consisting of a dozen rooms, was the last word in modern comfort and luxury. Such apartments are rare even among the leaders in Moscow.

There were two electric refrigerators in it. Lovin had at his command two foreign automobiles with chauffeurs. He had a staff of trained servants, a chef, a wine cellar.

This apartment of Lovin's, during his absence in Moscow, was exhibited to foreigners as the typical home of a Soviet engineer!

Since my return to America I have run into a tourist who has been in the Urals, and who told me how well the technicians fare in the Soviet Union.

As an instance, he described to me in detail Lovin's apartment. He wouprised he was when I told him to whom it belonged.

Outside of Cheliabinsk, this "Representative of Proletariat" has a magnificent villa on the Salt Lake Smolnoye, with a staff of attendants and gardeners.

In addition, Lovin has his own villa in the Crimea. And, in spite of the terrific congestion in Moscow, he has a modern apartment there with all up-to-date improvements.

People Pay

Yet, Lovin's salary is only 800 rubles a month, or $20 in American purchasing power.

It goes without saying that the Soviet Government supplies free of charge all the Lovin quarters and comforts, in the interests of the "Workers' Government," to which he is so devoted.

Sitting in Lovin's apartment, before a table laden with the choicest wines, it was cut to the bone while listening to his detached analysis of the advantages of the famine. I knew what was going on outside, in the city and in the suburbs.

There people were dropping from hunger in the streets. This is literally true.

Peasants were digging up weeds and roots in the fields, to boil them and prepare some kind of mash for their children.

All over the country at that time hungry people were stripping bark from trees for food.

And how happy they were when they were able to pick up some potato peelings, peelings which were as thin as paper, so as to enjoy a "real meal" by the grace of the government of the workers and peasants, the government which chose famine as the road to plenty.

COURT RESERVES NURSE DEATH DECISION

FLORENCE MAY MURPHY
A Rifle Ended All

Murphy Girl Is Called Suicide

Attleboro, Aug. 20—Although a medical examiner declared that Miss Florence May Murphy's death at her home May 5 was a suicide, Judge Walter A. Briggs reserved his decision today.

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said he believed that the 19-year-old student nurse shot herself with a rifle.

He said that the fact that the rifle was found some distance from the body led him to believe that her family had taken steps to assure an accidental death finding so she might be buried on consecrated ground.

The family reiterated their opinion, however, that Miss Murphy was murdered.

Gas Tax Shows Big Increase

The Massachusetts state treasury has been increased in the last eight months by $341,682 more from the gasoline tax than in the same period last year.

This year the total received is $10,482,075, and in the same period last year, according to Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, the state received $10,141,393.

TRIBUTE HERE Urged for Rogers

In memory of Will Rogers, Boston's citizens should suspend all activity at 2 p. m. Thursday and observe a minute of silent prayer, Mayor Mansfield suggests. He said:

"The people of Boston share with their fellow-citizens throughout the nation the deep sorrow that has come to Mrs. Rogers and her children."

SHORTS AND SHOCKS

Gapes for One-Girl Parade

From Park square the walked—up Boylston street, along Tremont street and into Bowdoin square, where she disappeared into a movie.

Hundreds along the line of the one-girl parade stopped to gape and to comment, but she apparently was unaware of the remarks. From time to time, she would halt in front of a store window to comb out her blonde, bobbed locks.

Now, any other girl of her age and weight would have gone unnoticed—but this girl wore white linen shorts, a pink-and-white checked blouse, flaming red socks and white shoes.

The first eyes picked up the girl as she emerged from Park square. Her gait was leisurely and there was a lot of time lost by the usually hurried throng as individuals stopped to gaze.

In Hyannis or Kennebunkport or Old Orchard or Glens Falls or Cape May she would have gone unnoticed—just another girl in shorts—but in Boston, in mid-morning, a 155-pound lass of some 28 years was very noticeable.

Brockton Pals Foes After Race Row

Brockton, Aug. 20—Tony Stonkus of Glendale street was in district court today, charged with assault and battery.

Police said it was because Stonkus and William J. Kelly, returning from the races a day or so ago, got to talking about the horses, and then about each other, until Stonkus threw a drinking glass at Kelly.

Stonkus furnished $1,000 bail. His case was continued to August 21.

LACK OF FUNDS FORCES LAYOFF

"You can't hire people for pay unless you have something to pay them with!"

That was the observation today of George Delano, head of the maintenance department of the State Department of Public Works, as he viewed the army of youthful objectors to the general layoff of persons under 21.

Delano said:

"In the emergency created by the lack of funds for road work and similar projects, and with appropriations nearly exhausted, we have had to curtail employment.

"Young people can better find jobs than the older workers. That has been our reason for letting the younger workers go first.

"Until we are provided with funds to meet payrolls, it must be apparent we cannot hire them."

'RAIN', MAINE PRAYS

Towns Battle Forest Fires

Eastport, Me., Aug. 20—Fire crackled and dense yellow smoke curled sluggishly upward as several forest fires moved slowly toward a score of helpless towns near here today.

While residents of scattered farms in the eastern part of the state scanned the sky and prayed for the overdue rains which would save them, forest fire fighters battled grimly to hold the flames in check.

Already more than 700 acres of woodland have been burned to blackened stump. But 15,000,000 more acres, dry as tinder from the 30 day drought may burst into flame at any moment, watchers said.

Eat Machias and Machias have been in constant jeopardy since last Friday, a fire that several times has come within a quarter of a mile of the little towns still blazing fitfully.

The peril was working danger-ously close to the little settlement of Hadley Lake today, and a strong force of CCC men and volunteers worked feverishly to stem the blaze.

Deer Island, 14 miles from here in Lord's Cove on the Canadian side of Quoddy bay, seemed doomed. Most of the wooded section of the island was demolished.

FOUR SURVIVORS TELL OF FIGHT WITH SHARKS

A tale of a narrow escape from a shark-infested sea was unfolded today by four fishermen who arrived on the Norwegian freighter Belpamela, which saved them.

The crew of their boat, the Juneau, numbered eight, but four shipmates lost their lives when the schooner sank in two minutes after a terrific explosion had blown out the stern.

EAST BOSTON MAN VICTIM

The tragedy occurred on Nantucket Shoals. The Juneau was out of New Bedford, but all the crew were from Brooklyn, N. Y., except John Colbert, 29, of East Boston, one of the dead.

The other dead are Alfred Khristiansen, 40; Michael Allard, 35, and Donald Murphy, 42.

The survivors are Captain Gustave Olsen, 48; his son, Ole, 17; John Powers, 36, and Richard Delaney, 35.

Leaving New Bedford Friday night, they fished on the shoals for haddock, Saturday and Sunday. At 4 a. m. Monday, an air tank in the engine room exploded.

"I was asleep in the forecastle," said Captain Olsen. "The explosion woke me up, and I heard Murphy shouting that the vessel was sinking.

"The ship went down under our feet. After shouting to abandon ship, I dove into the sea.

"My son and Powers and Delaney also dove over, but the others apparently went down with the vessel. We never saw them.

"SHARKS ALL AROUND"

"It was pitch-dark and there were sharks all around. I grabbed a board and swished it around to frighten them off and I got a chance to take off my rubber boots and clothing.

"We shouted to one another, but it seemed an eternity before I found my son.

"One shark grabbed at the boy's arm but he swung it up and the shark seized a small fish instead.

"At daylight Powers sighted the dories and we got into one. One of the men had kept his shirt on and we tied that to an oar. The Belpamela saw us."

In their athletic costumes of sleeveless jerseys and running pants, the five Dionne sisters are ready to defend the prestige of their native Canada's mapleleaf emblem. Marie, No. 1 on the team, seems to be calling the roll and asking, "Everybody here? Everybody ready?" Annette, with an air of belligerence which isn't really natural to her, looks as if she were demanding, "Did I hear a wise-crack? Just say that again!" Yvonne, with mouth open, may be trying to lead a "Rah, rah, rah!" for our side, or it may be a big "Boo-hoo-hoo!" which is proving her husky lung capacity. As for Emelie, well, you can make up your mind as to what her gesture signifies. And Cecile, if appearances can be trusted, is telling a fish story—and assuring you, "Honest, now, it was as big as this, if onlyit hadn't got away."

CURLEY CALLS ON ICKES TODAY FOR NEW AID

By International News Service

Washington, Aug. 20—After a long round of conferences with government officials ad a luncheon with the Massachusetts congressional delegation, Governor James M. Curley planned to finish off his Washington visit today.

He has conferences scheduled with Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Major General Edward M. Markham, army chief of engineers.

Curley will discuss his entire layout of public works proposals with Ickes, as he did with Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins last evening.

LEAVES TONIGHT

He plans to leave for Boston tonight.

Markham and Curley will discuss the establishment of a national guard camp on Cape Cod.

In their conference yesterday, they took up the Boston Harbor project, involving a state expenditure of $1,000,000, which Curley hopes will be matched by a $4,500,000 federal grant.

Curley said the state had already spent $600,000 on the Cape Cod camp and was seeking a federal allotment of $2,500,000.

After a conference with Secretary of Commerce Roper, Curley revealed that the secretary had promised him that the department's investigation of the textile situation would be reported to him within the next two days.

The governor and his accompanying 18 state Senators had an audience with President Roosevelt. Curley said he "merely introduced the delegation to the President."

Curley played host at lunch to Senator Walsh and the entire Democratic delegation from Massachusetts.

He asked their co-operation in securing adequate federal funds to supplement the $35,000,000 promised by Massachusetts to carry out the public works program in the state.

LISTS KEY PROJECTS

He listed and explained for his guests the key projects in his program, including the Blackstone, Connecticut and Merrimack Valley projects, for which he is seeking a 100 per cent grant from the federal government of $100,000,000.

Included in the remainder of his works program are projects for road construction, grade crossing elimination, the removal of an elevated railway in Boston, harbor improvements, the Cape Cod Canal and the construction of needed buildings.

Woman of Gem Fame Weds Secretly

Mrs. Margaret Bell

By Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20—The Daily News said today that Mrs. Margaret Howkesworth Bell and Harry Content have been secretly married and have engaged the bridal suite of the Normandie, sailing today.

The paper said the ceremony was performed yesterday in the 74-year-old broker's suite at the Sherry-Netherland Hotel.

Mrs. Bell was robbed of $350,000 in jewelry last January at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel in Miami, Fla. Content was with her at the time.

The jewels were subsequently returned by Noel Scaffa, noted gem recoverer, who now is awaiting federal sentence for perjury in connection with the return.

COUNT TO BRING JOSEE TO U. S.

By International News Service

Paris, Aug. 20—A quiet ceremony in little St. Clothilde's, the parish house of Premier Pierre Laval, today completed the marriage of his daughter, Mlle. Jose Laval, to Count Rene Adelbert Pineton de Chambrun, Franco-American lawyer, and descendant of Lafayette.

Following a wedding breakfast, the dark, vivacious, 23-year-old bride and her 28-year-old bridegroom prepared to leave for Canada and the United States.

Although brilliant in the list of French and American notables who attended, today's rites were as rigidly simple as yesterday's civil ceremony in the marie, Leon Berard, minister of justice, greeted Count de Chambrun upon his arrival at St. Clothilde's. The bride came up with her father five minutes late.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of the speaker of the House of Representatives, and her daughter, Paulina, followed. Count de Chambrun's mother is the former Clara Longworth, sister of the late speaker.

At a reception, J. Theodore Marriner, charge d'affaires at the United States Embassy, presented President Roosevelt's congratulations.

4 R. I. MILLS GET TAX WRIT

By Associated Press.

Providence, Aug. 20—Federal Judge John C. Mahoney granted temporary injunctions to four mill companies today restraining collection of federal processing taxes.

The petitioning companies which asked that Collector of Internal Revenue Joseph V. Broderick be restrained are the Warwick Mills of West Warwick, the Royal Weaving Company, Pawtucket; the Crown Manufacturing Company, Pawtucket, and the Highland Mills, a Georgia subsidiary of the Crompton Company of West Warwick.

RELIGION VS. LOVE

Judge Calls Priest and Rabbi

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 20—Supreme Court Justice Alonzo G. McLaughlin today decided to call in a priest and a rabbi to iron out religious differences which have threatened to blast a happy marriage.

Peter Migliccio, who is 22 and a Roman Catholic, and Nettie Markowitz, 20, a Jewess, were married recently in Harrison, N. Y.

The youthful groom charges his bride's mother, Mrs. Rebecca Markowitz, took the attitude they were not really married because the ceremony had not been performed by a rabbi.

Charging the mother made a virtual prisoner of the girl, he began habeas corpus action.

When the case came up today Justice McLaughlin was given the following letter written recently by the bride:

"Dear Peter:

"Darling, I don't think I have wronged because I love you and want to be with you. My mother says if I listen to her I will be free of you, which I don't want, but must, because she threatens to kill herself or says she will die of a broken heart.

"What am I to do? I am going crazy. Fight for me, darling.

"Your loving wife, Nettie."

Justice McLaughlin adjourned the case for a week, saying he would ask a priest and rabbi to compose the difficulties.

350 Women in Riot, Dozen Injured

By International News Service

Millville, N. J., Aug. 20—Violent brawls in which 12 women were slightly hurt and the clothing was torn off another broke out at the Model Blouse Company plant here today.

Fifty women strikers from the Millville Manufacturing Company's textile mill attempted to prevent 200 employes from entering the plant, where there is no strike.

Cat Attacks, Bird Ducks, House Burns

By Associated Press

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 20—A cat and a canary, staging the ages-old drama of the hunter and the hunted, were held responsible today for a fire that destroyed a Brighton home and inflicted burns on the mistress of the pets.

Mrs. David Pickett was lighting a kerosene stove yesterday, when she saw her cat attacking the canary's cage. Dropping the match, she ran to the bird's rescue. When she returned the stove was ablaze.

Before she could summon firemen from a neighbor's home the three-room cottage could not be saved and was destroyed, with a loss of $1700 to her elderly, unemployed husband.

The cat and the canary both died in the flames.

'DEAD' TEN MINUTES

Artificial Heart Revives Dog

By International News Service

Moscow, Aug. 20—"Dead" for 10 minutes, and its body drained of all blood, a dog today was brought back to life, according to Professor Sergei Bruihaneko, noted Soviet scientist, in an experiment that, he said, may make possible "bloodless operations" on human beings.

Developing the theory there are two kinds of death, "definite" and "indefinite," the former not starting until decomposition begins, Professor Bruihaneko put his "artificial heart" to the test at the Physiological Congress.

He told the audience that similar experiments with dogs "indefinitely" dead had succeeded as long as 40 minutes.

In today's experiment, members of the Congress were permitted to satisfy themselves the dog, "killed" by a narcotic, had no reflex actions, did not breathe, and had no heart-beats.

After ten minutes, Professor Bruihaneko started his artificial heart—a series of pumps to force blood through the veins, connected with an apparatus to maintain the proper temperature and pressure.

A lung, taken from another animal, was also used.

In five minutes the dog's heart began to beat. Next it started to breathe, reflexes were noticeable, and its eyes brightened.

A few minutes later Professor Bruihaneko disconnected the artificial heart and the dog's own heart continued to function.

A special laboratory is now being constructed where Professor Bruihaneko will extend his experiments, hoping, ultimately, to make it possible for those whose hearts would otherwise not stand the strain, to undergo operations with the aid of an artificial organ.

He is also attempting to learn the cause of decomposition, to see whether "definite" death cannot be postponed or even prevented.

NORTHAMPTON PROTEST IRES NEEDHAM

Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 20—When the Massachusetts troops of the 26th Division return home, it won't be through Northampton, Mass., Major-General Daniel Needham, division commander, said today.

The reason, he said, is because Acting Mayor Charles Dunn and some of the Northampton citizens apparently do not like the idea of troops holding religious services in the field.

SERVICES TOO EARLY

General Needham and his Massachusetts troops had barely arrived here when they were apprised of the complaint made by Acting Mayor Dunn regarding the playing of religious music at 4:30 a. m. last Sunday, half an hour before the troops moved out of the town.

"As it was Sunday," said General Needham crisply, in answer to the complaint, "many of the troops desired church services.

"In view of the long march ahead of them, the only opportunity for services was at that time. The 102d Field Artillery had a 30-mile hike ahead of it on the way to the army games.

"The band played during both the Catholic and Protestant services. It played appropriate music, as is the custom of the service when chapel is held in the field.

"I regret exceedingly that the people of Northampton were disturbed—but I regret even more that they were disturbed by a religious service."

Meanwhile, watched by German, Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Mexican and Spanish military attaches, the war games went on trial under the eyes of high staff and command officers of the United States.

It was the first test of an entire division completely motorized and mechanized. For the test, the First Division was chosen.

The entire Massachusetts contingent, the 26th Division, is now encamped here and has inspired commanding officers to glowing plaudits as a result of its efficiency thus far.

Major-General Needham said he expected the Massachusetts boys to "show that outfit from New York and New Jersey something that will surprise them."

DRAFT 'WAR' PLANS

The present plans call for an engagement between the 26th and the 43rd, while the rest of the New England National Guard outfit, the 43rd, will engage New York's 27th.

Meanwhile the "Iron" 1st Division of regular Army men will devote most of today to reconnaissance and field work in maneuvers which may revolutionize the theories of modern land tactics.

One much discussed question will be the matter of reserves.

With an artillery mounted on motors, the so-called reserves are highly mobile, capable of covering ground at the rate of 70 miles an hour.

Therefore the infantry is in the unusual position of having its reserves and artillery move with it, instead of remaining behind until a position is made for them.

ROBOT "EYE" AND "EAR"

Intensely interested in that and in the first large scale demonstration of the newly developed devices, such as the "robot eye and ear" for anti-aircraft guns will be several foreign military observers.

Captain Tasuto Nakayamm, assistant to the Japanese military attache, was due to arrive today.

The war games will last for two weeks, after which the troops will return to their bases.

Other Girl Party Denied By Keaton

MRS. LEAH SEWELL

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Aug. 20—Answering his wife's suit for divorce, Buster Keaton, movie comedian, had on file today a complete denial that he and Mrs. Leah Campitt Sewell, wealthy society matron, had conducted themselves improperly during a party last July 4 in a Santa Barbara hotel.

Keaton declared his wife, Mae Elizabeth, was in possession of nearly all their community property, and is in no need of alimony, attorneys' fees or court costs, as she had requested.

STRIP SUSPECT ACCUSED IN 11 COUNTS

Not one, but 11 counts of robbery are contained in the certified copies of warrants on the way to New York today to lodge against a man held there as Boston's "strip bandit."

He gave the name of Luther Rice, 28, of New York City. He was picked out of a lineup there yesterday by Miss Iris V. Beals, 22, of Ivy street, Back Bay, and by Ralph Sharp, manager of a School street shoe store.

Miss Beals and Sharp are two of ten victims who were stripped of their clothing and bound by robbers staging four such "strip" banditries the afternoon of May 16.

Because of the positiveness of the identifications—Rice was pointed out in a lineup of 200 persons—officials here are certain he is their man, they said.

Because of the similarity in the series of four robberies on the same May day, they said they are equally certain the same crew is to blame for all.

Rice, first picked up for trying to pawn a stolen watch in New York, was linked with the Boston crimes through the keenness of a Boston policeman vacationing in New York. He is Sergeant William Harrow of headquarters.

He read a paper which told of suspicion that the prisoner was one of a gang using the same "strip bandit" methods in an airline office holdup in New York, April 24. The watch was part of the loot.

Harrow questioned the prisoner. Then he wired his superiors here. As a result Miss Beals and Sharp went to New York. The warrants were sworn out in municipal court.

APPOINTMENT OF M'GLUE HIT

A letter attacking the governor's appointment of Charles H. McGlue as a member of the state ballot law commission was sent to the executive council today by George R. Farnum, former special investigator for the Boston finance commission.

Farnum said hewrote as a private citizen, McGlue's appointment comes before the executive council for confirmation Thursday. He is former chairman of the Democratic state committee.

Farnum recited the story of the finance commission's investigation of the $85,000 settlement made by the city for damages allegedly caused in connection with the construction of the Kenmore square subway.

He said the Finance Commission reported that McGlue was engaged as attorney for the claimants because he was a political associate of Curley, who was mayor at the time.

Mayor Welcomes Auburn Caravan

A special police escort conducted the Auburn White Caravan through Boston to the City Hall today where they were greeted officially by Mayor Mansfield and E. B. Eldredge, general manager of Courtney & Eldredge, Inc., Auburn car distributors.

The caravan consists of five Auburn super-charged cars under the direction of "Bud" L. K. Barnett, with J. C. Scott, A. R. Kruger and Carl Whitten as assistants.

They left here for Manchester, N. H.; Brattleboro, Vt.; Utica and Albany, N. Y., on a coast-to-coast trip which will take six months.

3 FLIERS FEARED DEAD ON PEAK

By Associated Press.

Glendon, Wyo., Aug. 20—Weary searchers scaled treacherous Laramie Peak today, hunting among its crags for an airplane which they fear crashed and burned five days ago, carrying three widely known Indianapolis, Ind., residents to death.

Led by Walter Higley, veteran Denver pilot, the men hoped to learn the fate of Burnside Smith, 47, transit company president, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Arnott, aerial honeymooners.

Arnell, 28, was an airport manager and his bride, Eleanor, 23, was prominent socially.

The three were unreported after leaving Helena, Mont., Thursday.

A flash of flame in a fog Thursday night, described by ranchers convinced Higley the plane had smashed on the forbidding north face of the mountain.

"The ranchers said they could hear it circling about 8:03 p. m. Thursday," Higley said.

"They said the sky cleared a little and they saw it turn south and hit the peak.

"They saw a flash. A few seconds later there was another flash, and then they saw a big flame that lasted 25 minutes."

Planes from three states were poised for flights to scan the jagged pinnacles.

National Guard Head Indicted

By Associated Press

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 20—Bench warrants for the arrest of Adjutant-General Henry H. Denhardt, head of the Kentucky National Guard, were issued by Circuit Judge James M. Gilbert today.

An indictment charging criminal contempt was returned by the Harlan County Grand Jury.

The indictment grew out of the movement of approximately 700 national guardsmen into Harlan County August 3 to supervise the Kentucky primary election in the county.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 20—President Roosevelt's grandchildren pulled a fast one on Iowa's chief executive, and dark suspicion, as a consequence, was cast in the direction of the governor's military aide.

"Buzzie" Dall

"We want to show you a trick. Please put your hand through this door," the children said.

Governor Clyde Herring, host to "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall in a visit here with their father, Curtis B. Dall, obliged by pushing his hand through the hinge-side of the opened massive door to his executive office. Then he took in hand a glass of water — offered from the other side of the door.

"What," asked the governor, "do I do now?"

"Sistie" and "Buzzie" howled with glee at the governors plight. Helpless, he could neither withdraw his hand nor put the glass on the floor.

"General Grahl (governor's aide) told us," they chorused, "that now you must stand and hold it."

Ends Life With Shotgun

Wenham, Aug. 20—Discovering a shotgun which his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Jewett, had taken away from him and hidden a short time before, Walter G. Bannister, 60, today in the kitchen of his home, today in the kitchen of his home, according to police and the medical examiner.

TOM LEWIS DIES IN BROOKLINE

Thomas A. Lewis, Jr.—better known as Tom Lewis to his many friends in newspaper and sporting circles—died today at his home, 135 Mason terrace, Brookline, after a long illness.

He was 54 years old and had been engaged, during most of his active business career, in newspaper advertising.

He was connected, at various times, with the Chicago Herald-Examiner, the New York American, the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Lewis is survived by his wife, Imelda, and three sisters, Mrs. Russell Foss of Brookline and the Misses Helen and Maude Lewis of Westfield.

Funeral services are to be held Thursday afternoon from the home of the latter two sisters, 60 Main street, Westfield.

Lewis was a close follower of sports for many years and was once mentioned as a possible appointee to the Massachusetts Boxing Commission. Failing health compelled his withdrawal from the field.

SUGAR FROM DAHLIAS

May Supplant Beet and Cane

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 20—Fields aflame with brilliant dahlias may be the source of a sizable portion of America's future commercial sugar supply, the American Chemical Society in convention here was informed today.

A method of producing for market sugar twice as sweet as that now commonly used has been developed by Dr. Wray M. Rieger and Professor Leroy W. Weatherby and research associates at the University of Southern California.

Commercial production already has become a practical possibility, the scientists say, as the result of the working out of a means of manufacturing on basis comparable with that of beet sugar.

Professor Weatherby pointed out that, due to the difference in growing seasons, dahlia sugar could be manufactured in cane or beet sugar plants during ordinarily idle seasons.

Folks—Today's the day! I've been making whiskey nearly 50 years, and at last you can get my own Family's Whiskey at a lot of stores and bars. Tomorrow most all of them will have it.
Harry F. Wilken Sr.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor—it's your price!

MEET THE WILKEN FAMILY

We want you to know us, so here's a picture of the Wilken Family. Reading from left to right, my son William, then me sitting on the barrel, next my son Harry Jr. They've grown up in the business. So has my son-in-law Tom—over to the right.

Our own family's whiskey!

Personally supervised by me and the boys

Quite some time ago I got a notion a heap of people with a taste for good whiskey would get real pleasure out of tasting the Wilken Family Whiskey. And besides—I figured they'd appreciate somebody having a heart when it comes to the price of it.

So I got busy, with the help of my boys, Harry Jr. and William—and Tom, my son-in-law—putting out some bottles of what I think you're going to declare the mildest and tastiest whiskey you ever got a hold of.

So far everybody that's tasted it has said it's the grandest whiskey they've run across yet. I hope you think the same.

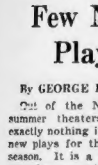
HOLLAND SUMMER Theaters Yield Few New Plays

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Out of the New England summer theaters has come exactly nothing in the way of new plays for the New York season. It is a pity. A few new plays were tried, and one only, if my check-up is correct, has been chosen.

And credit for that one selection is due an actor, Osgood Perkins. Mr. Perkins found a play called "On Stage," by Benjamin Kaye, which held a fascination for him. He hartered his services, between Broadway leads and Hollywood small parts, with the proprietors of the Beach Theater in West Falmouth.



George Holland

• • •

The bargain was that Mr. Perkins would play the lead in "On Stage" in exchange for a good production for the play at the Falmouth summer playhouse. I believe that the Messrs. Chatfield-Taylor, Whorf and Ross, proprietors of the Beach Theater (and Dramatic School), were keen in addition an option to produce "On Stage" this fall in New York, casting and direction and scenery and costuming being what Mr. Perkins attests these various elements should be.

• • •

I saw "On Stage." It is a cerebral orgy by the author of an unimportant play called "The Certain Rises." It is, moreover, a play with a role for Mr. Perkins that is different than the roles he plays so beautifully. The role shows Mr. Perkins holding his head all over the stage, thinking, thinking, dreaming, reasoning—perplexed. I wish he would find himself something like the role of Walter Burns, the managing editor of "The Front Page."

• • •

Well, "On Stage" may turn out to be a smash hit, these doubts to the contrary. If it does, it yet fails to justify the wasted talents shown by the really clever trio of managers at Falmouth who avaded the challenge they might have accepted from authors of the country with untried manuscripts. They produced one new play in ten.

• • •

Raymond Moore, the capable young manager of the Cape Playhouse, has been equally reactionary, and so has Alexander Dean at Cohasset. Mr. Moore gave a try-out performance of a play called "All Bow Down," on which the former Mrs. Jed Harris collaborated, and in which Roland Young proceeded to do himself little good by miscasting himself. This again was the case of an actor bargaining with a manager. Such bargains seldom work to advantage.

• • •

At Ogunquit, Walter Hartwig went to the English archives for a play called "The Farmer's Wife," which your correspondent found pretty woeful. Reports have it that these four important summer theaters have been successful. But they have contributed nothing as laboratories, their first intent.

Mr. Hartwig and Mr. Moore had flings last season at the commercial stage. They bit upon a couple of very, very bad pieces of playwriting. If they were discouraged by those ventures, it is too bad.

For the talented Messrs. Richard Whorf and Robert Ross, good actors, good directors, and all-around young men of the theater, this column holds no brief. They were fortified by the able Otis Chatfield-Taylor and his money.

• • •

I hope next season that they produce one new play in two, and that in all the summer theaters of the New England section, the dramatic schools are kept separate from the producing organizations.

Shirley Portraits

The first two thousand children, accompanied by an adult, attending the performance of Shirley Temple in "Curley Top" at the Scollay Square, Friday, will be presented with a souvenir portrait of the bat, star.

The picture is tinted in natural colors and each one carries little Miss Temple's autograph.

"Curley Top" opens at the Scollay Square tomorrow morning.

Osgood Perkins

Youth Looks at Middle Age

Sylvia Sidney believes love begins at 40 in "Accent on Youth," in which she stars with Herbert Marshall on the Metropolitan screen Friday.

Marion Davies Hailed As Comedienne

If there's a tank town on the map, Pat O'Brien has played it.

Now his Hollywood star is in the ascendant, and his fan mail keeps the postman ringing twice each day.

But once upon a time there were long seasons of road shows, traveling repertory companies, new-play-every-week stock companies.

Pat's newest picture is "The Irish in Us," which opens this week at the Metropolitan. His next is "Page Miss Glory." Cosmopolitan's latest star film for lovely Marion Davies. Pat shares leading masculine honors with Dick Powell, and the other day on the Warner Bros. set the two got talking about the leading women with whom they've appeared.

LAUDS MARION

Pat can't remember them all. But of one thing he's sure. He knows, and he'll tell everybody who'll listen, that Marion Davies is the best comedienne he has ever performed with.

"I don't know why," Pat explains, "but there are not nearly as many comediennes as there are comedians, either on the stage or screen. For every dozen men who can play good comedy, there's just about one woman.

"Maybe the psychologists can explain it. I wouldn't know. Maybe women take life more seriously than men. Or perhaps they'd rather make their audiences weep. That's a funny thing, too.

"In my judgment, it's much more difficult for players to be really funny than it is to be tragic or highly emotional.

"Marion Davies, in the parlance of the show game, 'gives.' That is she never merely walks through a scene and relies upon the situation or the dialogue to win a laugh. She knows the value of the slightest gesture. She uses her eyes, her mouth, her hands and her intelligence.

"A REAL TROUPER"

"Her training in silent pictures helped of course. There she learned pantomime, and the stars of the old silent days know that pantomime is just as much of requisite for screen success now as it ever was.

"She's a real trouper, anyway, and just like everybody else who has ever had the privilege of working with her, one of the most regular and understanding persons in the world."

The "About Faces," the daily feature of the Boston Evening American takes you to the screen of the RKO Keith's Memorial Theater where the current attraction is the movie version of Booth Tarkington's famous "Alice Adams." The rest of the well-balanced program consists of the latest newsreel, a short subject and Haydn at the organ.

Identify the cartoon likenesses of the stars drawn for you today, by filling in the squares which equal the number of letters in their names. Then answer the question pertaining to the life of one of the players, save your solutions until the end of the week and mail all six answers to the "About Faces" Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

The men and women, who send in the neatest, and most accurate answers will be adjudged winners and will receive a share of our weekly awards of $15 in cash and 30 guest tickets to your favorite theaters.

Use the letter "E" as well as the very complete dramatic page of the Boston Evening American as guides. Winners will see their names published in this column every Saturday.

Tomorrow we present number three of this week's series.

Next week we will offer as prizes the most sensational awards of any series!

Spencer Tracy Selected To Head Cast

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Aug. 20—Perhaps my sense of humor is distorted but somehow when they told me at MGM that Spencer Tracy would make a costume picture, I had to smile. I just couldn't picture the virile Spence in velvet and lace doing a hand-kissing act. But this picture, I am assured, is going to be different.

Spencer will be starred in "Toni-Pot" which is an ancient phrase meaning "Drunkard." It's an original story by Daniel Moore and Spence plays a romantic Irish captain of the Grenadiers.

The action takes place in England, France, Italy and Germany. He is going into "Riff-Raff" opposite Jean Harlow next week and his schedule is full for many months to come.

May I make a little prophecy? This coming year we will have more westerns than at any time since the days when Broncho Bill was the hero of every small boy. Columbia is now falling into line with Warners, Paramount and Universal with the plan to produce a series of exciting thrillers laid in the west. Handsome Charles Starrett, former Dartmouth football star, and a charming person, has been signed as Columbia's hero for these "dramers."

• • •

Most stars feel there is no reward for being good and doing everything the studio asks but apparently Pat O'Brien is the exception. He knows now it pays to be a good boy. Jack Warner, without saying a word to him, handed him a new three-year contract.

Not one with options but a straight agreement, one of the few in existence. That is because Pat has never turned down a role because he felt it might hurt him or has never refused to make public appearances when his boss has asked him to do this as a favor, to help a picture.

• • •

If Anna Held knows what is happening, (and we believe she does), she would applaud Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's choice of Luise Rainer for the Anna Held role in "The Great Ziegfeld." Luise is coming right along. With Irving Thalberg as her producer Luise ought to be one of the best known actresses on the screen at the end of next year.

Chatter in Hollywood: June Travis, Warner Brothers' contract player, and Jack Kirkland, ex-husband of Nanc. Carroll and Jayne Shaddue', are expected to march to the altar—and very soon. The little Travis girl's real name is Grabiner and she is the daughter of the owner of the Chicago White Sox.

Ethel Barrymore in "The Constant Wife" on Cape

In one of the most famous roles of her career, Ethel Barrymore opened a week's engagement in "The Constant Wife" at Raymond Moore's Cape Playhouse at Dennis last evening.

Miss Barrymore was enthusiastically received by another of the capacity houses which have become the rule at Dennis.

Walter Gilbert, for many years Boston's favorite leading man, and Hugh Buckler, who came from New York for the production, were featured in the cast.

Others in the company were Cora Witherspoon, Eda Heinemann, Dorothy Blackburn, Flora Campbell, Dudley Hawley and Forrest Orr. Burke Symon directed and the distinctive sets were by Eugene Fitsch.

Mitzi Green, once the child star of the screen, whose debut in the legitimate drama under the direction of Walter Hartwig won unanimous approval, opened last evening at the Ogunquit (Me.) playhouse in "Service for Two," a new comedy by Alice and Laurence Eyre.

With Thomas Ross sharing star honors, other members of the Manhattan Repertory theater company in the suporting cast were A. J. Herbert, Daisy Atherton, Frank Roberts, Violet Beeson, Joseph Curtin, Ernita Lascelles, David Orrick and Cecile Wulff.

Longwood Tennis Tournament Attracts Fashionables

By Betty Alden

IN THE LIVES of most people a trip to Europe is quite an occasion and the first few days back home are usually spent in relaxation and idle reveries of the adventures of the trip . . . But to Isabella Gardner the Atlantic crossing is becoming little more than a commuter's journey . . . Yesterday morning with her family, the George Peabody Gardners, Isabella disembarked from the Carinthia to complete her second voyage abroad this summer and, without pausing to unpack her bags, stepped into the social round as if she had never been away . . .

ISABELLA GARDNER

A few hours after their ship docked, she and her father were among the interested spectators at the opening rounds of the national doubles tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club . . . the transition from European life and travel to life back home will not be as marked for Isabella as it might seem at first glance, for all this week she will be able to chat and mingle with the European tennis stars entered in the tournaments, as they loiter about the clubhouse between matches . . .

Proclaiming the presence of these international tennis stars the low rambling clubhouse on Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, was flying the colors of six nations and the license plates of a large percentage of the cars parked nearby were proof that tennis fans and players alike from all over our own country have been attracted to these important matches.

Most of the feature matches of the afternoon were played on the court directly in front of the clubhouse so social spectators, with a cool protecting awning overhead, and fresh fruit drinks at their beck and call, were comfortably ensconced on the verandah to watch the opening rounds . . .

There we noticed Mrs. J. Brooks Fenno, Jr., waiting to witness the match in which her husband was paired with Henry Guild to face a powerful team of foreign players . . . Long pleasant days of sailing and tennis at Bar Harbor, where they have been visiting their families, have left their mark upon both the young Fennos, who are sporting deeper tans than most socialites . . . Virginia's cotton frock of yellow, red, black and green plaid had most of the national colors in one and was quite the giddiest dress in the crowd . . .

North Shore Folk Attend

MRS. GEORGE WIGHTMAN, one time woman's national champion, who does more than any one person to arouse the interest of young people in the game, was an interested spectator with her daughter, Dorothy, and Mrs. Sharp of Pasadena, mother of Jane Sharp, one of the leading women players . . . Nearby were Whitfield Painter, a prominent Boston sportsman and Henry Guild, president of the Longwood Cricket Club . . .

Feeling more venturesome and energetic, Connie Turner, Frances Proctor and Barbara Proctor Thompson, up from the North Shore for the afternoon, wandered from one court to another to get a peek at all the stars, and away out at one of the farthest courts Mrs. Philip Wrenn, Jr., was a very intent onlooker . . . Her pale grayish blue frock was set off by a vivid cerise chenille toque and matching slippers.

Mrs. John Gorham Palfrey, with Polly and Joanna, stayed until it was definitely announced that Sarah's match with Helen Jacobs was postponed until today . . .

Mrs. Herbert B. Shaw, Helen and Madeline Jackson of Westwood and Miss Ottilie Scott took turns sitting on a big round table on the porch . . . Miss Scott, who is a tennis player herself, although not entered in the doubles, was enjoying her time off, dressed in a jaunty white straw gob's hat, with a blue checked dress and white slippers tied with navy blue ribbons . . . Mrs. Arthur Ingalls was another very attractive onlooker, wearing a black and white flowered cotton dress with narrow ruchings of lace at the collar and cuffs . . .

Bridge Between the Matches

OCCASIONALLY TIME DRAGS for the players waiting to take the courts and bridge and music seems to be welcome diversion in the clubhouse at any time of the day . . .

Mrs. John Van Ryn, dressed in conventional street clothes instead of her shorts, alternated between watching her husband's match and indulging in a little bridge . . . Elena Ciccone, a promising young tennis player; Anna Marble and Constance Babcock, after finishing their own games, enjoyed regular busmen's holidays by intently watching the men's doubles . . .

Boston society is represented in this tournament by Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Kay Winthrop, Virginia Ellis, Mrs. Carl Pickhardt (Marjorie Sachs), Mrs. Wightman, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer and Mrs. F. H. Godfrey . . .

'FIXER' ENDS GARBAGE BURNING

"THE TROUBLE FIXER"

Public Service Department, Boston Evening American

This department has been instituted as a public service for Boston Evening American readers. It will endeavor to solve problems and fix troubles dealing with city, state or public utility service. Requests must be specific and brief. No anonymous requests, nor matters of a purely private nature can be considered.

The Revere board of health reports that garbage burning on Garfield avenue by one of the residents has been stopped, so that no longer will neighbors be affected by the disagreeable odor and smoke.

On August 6, Mrs. C. Murphy of Tremont street, Charlestown, reported a dangerous condition near her home, in that there was no fence on a wall which had a 14-foot drop to the ground.

This, she correctly pointed out, was perilous for the children, and she cited several cases of them getting hurt in falls.

The law department co-operated with "The Trouble Fixer" to see what could be done and an investigation was made.

It was found that the wall in back of 34 Tremont street, Charlestown, is private property, but the owner is unknown. No taxes have been paid on it for many years, but it has never been taken over by the city.

Not only is the city under no obligation to enter upon the premises and erect a fence, but it has no legal right to do so.

The law department reports:

"We are familiar with the location and appreciate the conditions there. Unfortunately, however, we have been unable to find any way that the city could erect a fence on the wall in question without trespassing and involving itself in legal entanglements.

The law department, however, pointed out that it was possible for owners of private property near the property to erect fences that would protect the children.

Kearns-Rausch

Ceremony Held in Syracuse Church

AMONG THE recent socially prominent weddings was the marriage on Saturday at Syracuse, New York, of Miss Fannie M. Rausch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rausch of Syracuse to Lawrence Wheeler Kearns of Taunton and Boston.

The marriage was held at the Immaculate Conception Church with Rev. Herbert Lutz, a cousin of the bride, officiating at the ceremony. Mr Alfred J. Hemmer, a cousin, gave her in marriage.

Bridal Gown

Soft ivory moire, fashioned with high cowl neckline and dolman sleeves, with wide duchess lace trimming the sweeping train, was the bridal gown.

A cap of rose point lace trimmed with orange blossoms, worn by her mother as a bride held the bridal veil. A sheaf of white larkspur and lillies of the valley tied with silver ribbon complemented the costume.

Mrs. Earl Comstock Root, sister of the bridegroom, was the only attendant and Edward White Kearns of Taunton served as best man.

Would Sell Rolls, Self For $400

New York, Aug. 20—Bernard J. Winkler, who as an army chauffeur used to drive President Woodrow Wilson, hasn't had a job for a year.

He drove a Rolls-Royce town car down Broadway, parked, and displayed this sign:

"Car and driver for sale, $400."

He says he's serious.

"When I bought this car, I thought I'd sell it to someone who would hire me at the same time.

"Well, the idea didn't work.

"Now I'm willing to work for nothing for six weeks—if they'll buy the Rolls."

There were no buyers.

Today Winkler will try Park Avenue.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Curious how much interest Elsa Maxwell, the celebrated party girl, has stirred up by her list of "gentleman" and her attempt at a definition of that controversial term.

Even the most serious of editorial pages have pontificated on the subject

Out of politeness, apparently, there is little quarrel with her choice of names but considerable with her definitions, which seem to boil down to negatives.

Robert E. Rogers

He must not be a family man, he must not be an artist or writer, a dandy or royalty.

Miss Maxwell puts the emphasis on manners, as probably she should, but it seems to be manners in a vacuum.

To infer that earning a living leaves you no time for politeness seems drool and

Her keenest hit is that women do not care for gentlemen because they are too "slow."

I suspect that is pretty true of women under forty.

One proof of that is that the movies, which appeal chiefly to women, cast no young men who have any talents for playing the gentlemen.

Ancients like George Arliss, C Aubrey Smith, and Ernest Stephenson are outside the discussion.

The real question is whether the young playboy type can bring exterior and free and easy manners qualifies for the word "gentleman," as the gals obviously believe they do.

Men like Franchot Tone, Robert Montgomery, William Powell, the unscathable Clark Gable

Are there any gentlemen on the screen today, except older actors capable of copying the traditional manners and bearing of an older generation—say, Charles Laughton—and English at that?

Superstition

The American superstition about a gentleman is that it is sufficient to have a heart of gold and to love one's mother.

The rougher the manners, according to this scale, the more certain the gentleman.

Also, completely reversing the earlier definition, unless he works he is barred.

To get a little idea how much the whole question has exercised the best minds, take a look at Burton Stevenson's mammoth, macabonic, three ring, 2600-page "Home Book of Quotations," the book to end all books of quotations.

Almost six closely printed columns testify to the struggle of the ages to define and illustrate

I do not see in it my two favorite definitions.

One reads "A gentleman is never discourteous — unintentionally," a kind of sardonic gloss on John Henry Newman's statement that "it is almost a definition of a gentleman to say that he is one who never inflicts pain."

The other is Chuck Conner's Bowery apothegm

"A gentleman is a guy who kin do whatever he wants to do."

Meaning of course that he will never want to do anything which he shouldn't, which is only a Bowery version of Rabelais's famous remark about gentlefolk whose honor is a matter of breeding and not of compulsion

Definition

Let me pick out from Stevenson some of the less orthodox definitions or descriptions, the less conventional and idealistic ones, those born of wordly observation and common sense.

"Manners and money make a gentleman": Thomas Fuller, ca. 1700.

"According to my mild way of thinking, it is not essential that a gentleman should be bright". Cora Harris, recent American woman writer.

"What's a gentleman but his pleasure?" Gabriel Harvey, 1573.

"A gentleman of our day is one who has money enough to do what every fool would do if he could afford it—that is, consume without producing"; Bernard Shaw.

"We must be gentle, now we are gentlemen"; William Shakspere.

"A gentleman who lives ill is a monster in nature"; Moliere.

"I can make a lord, but only God Almighty can make a gentleman"; King James I.

"Gentlemen and rich men are venison in heaven, very rare and dainty to have them come thither"; John Northbrooke, 1572.

"A gentleman I'll be sworn thou art. Thy tongue, thy face, thy limbs, actions, and spirit Do give thee five-folk blazon"; Twelfth Night.

"If a man is a gentleman he knows quite enough; and if he is not a gentleman, whatever he knows is bad for him." Oscar Wilde in "A Woman of No Importance."

JACK LAIT REVEALS:

Will Rogers as Philanthropist

A fascinating insight into the character of Will Rogers as two roles about which the public knows little or nothing—that of business man and philanthropist—is herewith presented in the third instalment of Jack Lait's intimate life story of the world-famous humorist

By JACK LAIT
Famous Novelist, Short Story Writer, and Playwright Who Has Long Been a Close Personal Friend of Will Rogers.
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Will Rogers was not always a screen sensation. In the days of the silent movies he had made one film which was a complete washout.

Rogers resolved he was not for the pictures. But the first star that came to the mind of Winfield R. Sheehan when sound projection proved a successful experiment was Will Rogers.

Sheehan was then and remained until a few days ago, executive head of Fox Films. He was on a flying honeymoon last Friday with Mme. Jeritza when the shocking news reached him.

Sheehan had been Rogers' boom friend since Will's vaudeville days, and had campaigned with him in 1917 as the champion team of the wartime Red Cross drive, when the theatrical wing collected $2,000,000 in cash.

Sheehan induced Will to take a chance in the new "talkies," and a very reluctant Rogers returned with him to Hollywood, protesting:

"Aw, Winnie, I'll prob'ly lose your picture all up."

The first screen vehicle in which Rogers used his immortal lore and those sparks of personality which were lost on the silent screen was "They Had to See Paris."

Fox made about $700,000 profit on that one and followed with an even bigger take on "Lightnin'."

My own friendship with Sheehan goes back even further than Will's. I having known him since his reporter days.

We sat together today and deplored our common bereavement, and as we looked back, many facts, anecdotes and incidents of Will's life were mentioned. Some of those, to be related in this series, were of my memory, some of Winnie's, and some of both.

But he supplied me with some acutely interesting "inside stuff" about the comedian's business methods.

In eight years, Fox paid to Rogers about $3,500,000; that is, paid for Rogers to Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the Bank of America of Los Angeles, who was Will's adviser, treasurer and guardian.

If Rogers ever had a lawyer, no one knew about it. Everything was "up to Giannini." Rogers' money was paid directly to the banker

Sheehan presented the new soundfilm star with a contract—a rather handsome piece of paper it called for five pictures within two years, at $225,000 per picture, or $1,225,000—a matter of well beyond $11,500 a week

And Will always figured by the week and insisted on being paid by the week—the pro rata of the total divided by 104, and it was so done.

He wasn't much of a hand at figures, and only calculated approximately, never with a pencil, but by muttering as he shut his eyes and concentrated.

The money and other terms were entirely satisfactory, but Will said he didn't want a contract

Rogers looked bewildered at the instrument and said

"I'll take me most three days to read it. What's it say, anyhow?"

Sheehan explained the principal provisions

"That sounds all fair and square," Rogers asserted.

"Then sign," said Sheehan.

Rogers took the pen and on the back of the last sheet he wrote

"I haven't read this thing, but Winnie says it's all right, so it's o. k. with me. Will Rogers."

The legal department of the company ruled it was legal and binding. The contract was later extended with simple initialing of added paragraphs.

Except for Dr. Giannini, his principal faith in verdicts on business transactions was in his wife. When Flo Ziegfeld had demanded Rogers do a new and different act for "doubling" in the "Midnight Frolics," and on the Amsterdam Theatre Roof, he had consulted Mrs. Rogers

"What'll I jaw about?" he asked her, and she answered, "Well, you're always reading things in the papers and making hereafter he never entered into usiness desl without his wife's ice. He consulted with her, also on his selection of stories and cas' She it was who chose Irene Rich for his first leading woman in "talkies."

If it was Mrs. Rogers who started him commenting on politics and public affairs, it was the Red Cross drive in 1917 which really put him on the entire nation's "big time."

Sheehan was a captain of the stage-screen fund team and he enlisted Rogers as one of his workers. Rogers was then drawing $750 weekly in the "Follies" and $250 weekly on the roof.

He immediately gave Sheehan $1000 and signed a pledge card that read "and one-tenth of all my earnings, payable weekly, during the duration of the war."

The Chamber of Commerce met at luncheon daily, and there the teams reported and a totalizator recorded the figures as each contribution was announced.

Sheehan trotted Rogers to one of the luncheons, where there were 35 tables, each occupied by a group representing an industry.

Will made the announcement for the theatrical chapter, and in so doing let go a speech which not only convulsed the membership with laughter, but brought tears as he turned serious, which he could

He could weep, himself, like a baby, and rub his streaming eyes with the cuffs of his coatsleeves.

The word went around New York that here was the foremost Red Cross orator of the emergency.

As years went along he became more and more identified with the organization and frequently flew here and there raising substantial sums for flood or famine or other cataclysm relief, always starting off with his own handout—never less than $1,000 since he grew really prosperous

After deductions for his many heavy charities, he still paid a $263,000 income tax for 1924

I have related how Will laughingly told me he wanted to quit acting business. When St. Peter asked him what he'd done on earth he didn't want to try to get in by saying, "I twirled a rope and kidded myself."

In noble contrast, John Barton Payne, president of the Red Cross, said in a public speech

"When I get to the gates of Heaven and St. Peter asks me for my earthly recommendation, I will merely say, 'I knew Will Rogers'—and he'll let me in."

(Another instalment of Jack Lait's "Life of Will Rogers" will be printed in the Boston Evening American tomorrow.)

ROGERS MEMORIAL

Marion Davies Asks Fans' Aid

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 20—As the world pays tribute to Will Rogers, America's cowboy philosopher, Marion Davies today addressed a message to the motion picture industry and to the millions of screen fans who shared a love for the comedian.

To the Editor:

What are we folks in Hollywood going to do to perpetuate among ourselves the memory of Will Rogers?

He was one of us and a great figure among us.

He was a great writer, of course, and a great political figure.

He was a genuine statesman and a genuine diplomat, because he was a genuine American, and because he brought genuine American strength and directness and simplicity into his statesmanship and his diplomacy as into his writings.

Was he not best known throughout the world, however, for his moving picture work?

People in the remotest quarters of the globe knew his work on the screen—people who had never heard of him as a writer and could not even read his writings in the English language.

That is the marvel of the screen, that it carries the personality and the merit and the reputation of its leading figure all over the world to quarters where the written word could never reach.

However, Will Rogers—the kind, genial, whole-souled friend was best known to us in Hollywood, and most loved by us because best known.

Therefore, a memorial to Will Rogers, good friend and good citizen, should be erected here in Hollywood by the moving picture people of Hollywood, his friends and associates in the world's work of the screen

Of course his fans, his admirers, will want to contribute from everywhere, and we should allow them to help erect this memorial, and welcome them as fellow admirers of this great and good man

But we ourselves should start the monument and finish it.

I wish the Hearst papers would be kind enough to announce our purpose and receive subscriptions, and I wish they would put me down for whatever amount they see fit.

I want to be just one of his friends and one of his fans.

CONSTITUTION DAY RALLY SET ON COMMON

Plans were under way today for the staging of a patriotic rally to be held on Constitution Day, September 17, on Boston Common by members of veterans' organizations and patriotic societies of Massachusetts.

Committees are being formed by members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution and the Minute Women of 1936

D. A. V. FIRST TO ENLIST

Among the first organizations to enlist its services for the Constitution Day observance was the Disabled American Veterans.

Edward Walsh, state commander, will make a trip throughout the western part of the state, starting August 30, to make arrangements for Constitution Day observances in the organization's various posts

In commenting on Constitution Day Commander Walsh said

The Constitution of the United States is the product of a few great minds assembled in brief convention.

MOST WONDERFUL WORK

"As the great statesman William E. Gladstone once said, 'It was the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.'

"As we know, it was the ability of a small body of men who in 85 working days forged the great compact of the people of the United States with themselves.

"Massachusetts played an important role in the framing and adoption of the Constitution and we hope she will play just as an important role on its anniversary.

Rains Tonight May End N. E. Drouth

Rain may fall throughout New England tonight to alleviate the drouth which has caused a fire menace in this section for two weeks

Although it may rain, it will become no cooler, according to the weather man. The temperature is expected to remain in the eighties

With two-thirds of August gone, the total precipitation thus far has measured only .35 of an inch officially.

The longest local drouth recorded was in 1883, when August registered only .39 of an inch of rainfall for the entire month.

18 Nazis Missing In Subway Collapse

By Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 20—Eighteen workmen were reported missing today in the collapse of a portion of the Hermann Goering street subway, now under construction.

Two hours after a section of the street near the Brandenburg gate dropped away only four members of the crew had been brought up.

All four suffered broken bones and internal injuries.

Police, firemen and 300 regular army soldiers were sent to the spot in rescue attempts.

MRS. COSTELLO Stays in Hospital

Reports that Mrs. Jessie B Costello would be discharged today from the J. B. Thomas Hospital in Peabody were denied by hospital officials.

They said she is expected to stay there another week.

Kiley Learns That Mother Is No Frisky Matron

AS ONE OF THE JUNIOR sophisticates of this journal, Walter Kiley, has been picking up points on horse scholarship at Narragansett. Having mastered the elements of snoopery, which is the primary lesson for horse-track beginners, Walter always keeps his ears pointed for fresh gossip from the barns.

Austen Lake

Also, lately, Walter is a dabbler in the betting arts.

Thus when C. E. Shaw, Jr., the one-horse owner, eased up to the Narragansett telegraph booth recently and began to scribble a message, our sleuth laid his nose over Shaw's shoulder and read the pencilled scrawl.

"Mother will arrive this afternoon," said the script, which was consigned to Milwaukee.

Walter sucked the afternoon air through his teeth. "Uh-oh!" he thought.

In the swift mechanism of a mind schooled to decode hidden meanings, "Mother" could mean only Frisky Matron, the Shaw filly in the fourth.

So Walter skinned over to a pari-mutuel wicket and laid his only $20 on the sull, begging for a stub on Frisky Matron's mussle.

Only when the fourth clatter came Frisky Matron blew a fuse in the stretch and finished second. So Walter filed his coupon away as a relic and ate his cuffs for supper.

On the clubhouse portico, C. E. Shaw, Jr., lowered his binoculars, turned to his friends and excused himself. He had to meet a train, he explained, as he legged off to the parking space.

COLONEL JOHN HAMMOND, the New York money fancier, is conspiring for control of the New York Garden. In a printed circular just mailed to stockholders his feats of financial wizardry are catalogued.

Among them is an item telling how he was named to reorganize the Boston Garden in 1934, after it had reported a deficit of $78,660. And how in the next fiscal year he turned that loss into a profit of $5998.

This is worth a whinney!

Because, under Colonel John's spiritual guidance in 1933-34, the Boston Garden did indeed lose $78,550. After that the B. & M. railroad, as guardians of the property, shooed Colonel John and his New York playmates back home aand called Harry Lapham and George V. Brown to nurse it back to health.

By skimping here and pinching there, Brown did squeeze a profit out, amounting almost to $6000. Colonel John would like to claim this victory for his team.

Fuchs' Prize Scholar Graduates

AMONG HIS LITTLE TRIUMPHS with the Braves, Judge Emil Fuchs always took pride in his discovery of young Elburt Fletcher, the Milton ex-schoolboy, who has just been recalled from Wilkesbarre by the parent club.

Having fished Fletcher out of a sandlotters' contest, sponsored in 1933 by this newspaper, the Judge took a papa-pride in the kid's training capers and would sit the St. Pete sessions away in squinty-eyed admiration of the boy's precocious talents.

During the spring trip of 1934, when Elbert's mother feared he might fall behind his high school class through training absence, Fuchs enrolled him in a tutoring school where tourist children of early age sat under the orange trees and piped their lessons in a shrill treble.

It was an inspiring sight to see the husky Braves' first baseman report with the gingham girls and little fauntleroys for his more advanced instruction. There the gilded kids sat with their eyes lying out on their cheeks, while the bronzed, embarrassed youth rehearsed his studies.

At noon the school matron would smile Elburt away in an atmosphere of peach blow and citrus perfume, and he would trundle back to the Braves' camp, with his books in a strap. After a snack he would don his playing woolens and join the slugging practice in the nearby ball park.

In the interval he has been poured over with knowing and comes back as a polished player, ripe for the major leagues. Only, as a melancholy note, Judge Fuchs is no longer the Braves' papa to thrill over his prize pupil's graduation.

Fistic Canaries

AS A COMIC INTERLUDE in the New York fight season, the world's leading prize-ring canaries are meeting in the Long Island Bowl Thursday evening. Buddy Baer, the Livermore thrush, and Jack Doyle, the Irish nightingale, are matched for six rounds of light opera.

This will produce all the stark, naked ferocity of your little sister Tillie playing patticake with the puppy. I have never heard either Jack or Buddy sing, but I have seen them fight, which is in the style of kitchen scuffling with the cook.

They are both dreamy lads with a sob in their throats, handsome dimpled brutes with a slicken shine on their locks and the aroma of "Nuit d' amour" sprayed on their lavender kerchiefs.

I am picking Buddy to win by the width of a corsage bouquet, because I believe Doyle will tag himself on his own chin for a knockout.

This is on the strength of his deathless battle with Phil Donato, an olive-skinned kid who fell unconscious from the draft of Jack's first swing.

It missed Donato by six inches and went winging on until Jack's rubbery arm spiralled about his own neck and bke to have throttled him to death.

This is a battle of one masculine cutie against another male peacock in which the windup will find the ring strewn with bits of lingerie and satin step-ins.

I have seen Buddy sling his boyish bob about while fanning away at Babe Hunt, who is only the husk of his former badmanhood. And finally he flow into a hysteric and gave Babe a billygoat butt with his forehead that fouled himself out of the match.

That was the night Max Baer did his shenanigans with Dick Madden at Mechanics Hall. So that Maxie came in and clucked his tongue at Buddy, who plunged his fighting mittens into his eyes and shuffled off in a bpatuck pout.

PARK Series Fray TONIGHT

JORDANS DUEL ROSLINDALE

With the count one all, the finalists in the Boston park department series, Jordans and Roslindale, will play the third game tonight at Fallon Field, Roslindale.

The Walker Club, which got off to a bad start last Friday against the Retailers, losing 9-3, more than made up for that poor performance by its 5-0 shutout of the intowners at the Dorchester Town Field.

Jim Sites and Hank Bosse will be royally received by the Fallon Field pecans tonight when Johnny Peter, former Harvard star, steps to the mound in an effort to give the home club the edge in the four out of seven series.

Frank Callahan, who finished up last night's game when Joe Pavo was hit on the head by Zennetti's throw to second in the fifth, will go back in the box for the Retailers.

Shea's performance, in which he setdown the storemen with a single hit in the seven frames the game went, while fanning seven men and giving only two bases on balls, was one of the best seen in the sandlots in a good many years.

He never was in better form over his 19 years of sandlot pitching.

Hank Bosse, who is no young fellow himself, contributed a home run with the bases full in the fifth inning that broke the hearts of the Fields Corner fans.

It was the first time this year that a ball had cleared that particular spot of the fence in left center.

Dick Lofrus, another veteran campaigner, played a fine game out in left field. Andy Spognardi, former R. C. captain, has bolstered the infield.

WONDER HORSE UNDER GUARD

Discovery, ace thoroughbred of the 1935 turf season is being closely guarded for the Narragansett $25,000 Special, which wil be run tomorrow. Discovery is favored to win against a classy field. Arthur Aldrich is the officer.

C. M. A. C. Tackles Oilmen

The C. M. A. C. team of Lowell will put on the pressure this evening in its Boston Twilight League encounter against Miller Oil at Waltham Bike Park.

A lot is at stake in the game as the winner will have the choice of home grounds for the Sunday game which will be a playoff game in the series.

In the event that Miller Oil wins the evening, it will play at Lowell on Saturday and be back at the Bike Park on Sunday.

If the Frenchmen win, they will have the first game of the series at their park on Sunday.

Middlesex Laundry, which is very likely to place in the series also, meets the Lowell team at South Boston tomorrow evening, and the rival managers may use that game to decide which team will have a home game the following Sunday in the series. There may be several games at Lowell next week as part of the American Legion programs.

Four other teams in the league are in home and home series this evening with the Lynch Club at Arlington and the Mayor Irwin team of Medford back at Thorndil' a Park against the Cambridge Clubs. Arlington will go back to Cambridge Field tomorrow evening to play the Lynch Club.

The Lynch team won by a 4 to 2 score the last time Arlington was at Cambridge. The Cubs sneaked over a 5 to 4 win on the Irwins last evening at Medford.

RUSSIAN Swims 50 Kilos

Sochi, Crimea, U. S. S. R., Aug. 20 (AP)—The Russian, Nicholai Malin, swam 50 kilometers in the Black Sea in 17 hours and 54 minutes today, much of the time against a high wind. A second swimmer, the Russian, Faisulin, gave up after 31 kilometers.

There is no listed record for a 50-kilometer swim.

40,000 TO SEE $25,000 RACE

Time Supply, Toting Only 115 Pounds, Will Be Threat

By Walter Kiley

Narragansett Park, R. I., Aug. 20—New England holds no monopoly on the interest being displayed in tomorrow's second running of the $25,000 added Narragansett Special, one of the major stake races of the 1935 thoroughbred season.

New York, New Jersey and other leading race centers of the East are equally interested in sitting in as Alfred Gywnne Vanderbilt's Discovery sets sail for its eighth victory in a row.

The influx of race patrons has already started. By auto, train and boat, a steady stream of invaders speamp into Narragansett, and indications point to a new mid-week record crowd of more than 40,000 persons tomorrow afternoon. Railroads are running excursion trains from every conceivable point.

Even hardened turf writers have become excited about the Special possibilities and are making one day pilgrimages for the event.

NEAR AND FAR

Members of the New York Turf Writers' Association are leaving Saratoga flat for the day, despite the fact that one and all of them will be chipped to make a hasty exit immediately after the eight race card has been concluded in order to be on hand for the annual dinner at Riley's at the Spa, the event of events for the turf writing genus.

It seems a foregone conclusion that Discovery, four-year-old son of Display and Aviador, farther back boasting an heritage of the Fair Play strain which produced the wonder horse of all time, Man o' War, will go postwards an odds-on favorite.

This despite the tremendous impost of 139 pounds which Discovery will be forced to carry against the finest field of contenders that could be rounded up for the rich purse offering.

Already the Vanderbilt ace, bought by his wealthy owner as a two-year-old for a reported price of $25,000, is being compared to Man o' War, his iron horse stunt of capturing the Brooklyn Handicap, Detroit Challenge Cup, Arlington Handicap, Bunker Hill Handicap, Butler Handicap, Stars and Stripes, Wilson Mile and the Merchants and Citizens' Handicap in succession, going down in the record books as one of the most notable achievements of all time.

MONEY RECORD

The Special will be worth something like $28,950 to the winner. It is to be run over the mile and three-sixteenths route, and carries one of the richest purses of the year. Nominations and starting fees pile up the extra dividends as the added value.

Provided Discovery makes it nine in a row, he will be well launched on his way toward equalling Sun Beau's record winnings of $376,000, with possibly two or three more good years of racing remaining to him.

A year ago, the four-year-old handicap performer negotiated the same distance in a new world record time of 1.55 flat, a mark which he hopes to have at his mercy tomorrow despite the 139 pounds on his back.

Johnny Bejshak, veteran jockey, who has been up on Discovery in every one of his major triumphs must needs get every last ounce of energy out of his mount.

The field of opposing thoroughbreds ranks with the greatest ever assembled.

A year ago Mrs. F. A. Carreaud's Time Supply captured the Special, and his owner insists that with a burden of only 115 pounds, 24 off that being carried by his great rival, he may upset the form players and repeat.

OMAHA OUT

Others are to be gravely considered, such as Mrs. A. A. Baroni's Top Row, which recently established a new world record over the mile and one-sixteenth route, Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One, Robert Robertson's Dark Hope, Walter O'Hara's Howard and perhaps Agrarian, Riskulus and Ancar, providing the latter are started.

A field of 10 to 12 is likely to stand the finest of a list of 27 nominations originally filed.

Only William Woodward's Omaha, great three-year-old which has been running roughshod over his contention this summer, will be found among the missing.

Walter O'Hara had entertained great hopes of bringing together Discovery and Omaha for the first time in which event the race would have been increased to an added value of $50,000.

But Omaha has been ailing of late, and so Discovery must await a later opportunity to prove his domination over the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont 1935 king.

A. A. U. Head Attacks Nazis

New York, Aug. 20—The United States may not compete in the 1936 Olympic games after all.

Talking over the radio here, Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the A. A. U. and a member of the Olympic committee, urged nonparticipation in the games because of discrimination against the Jews.

"That there has been discrimination has been proved beyond a doubt," Mahoney declared, adding that the Nazis' action was "un-American, unsportsmanlike, uncharitable and un-Olympian."

In 1933 the A. A. U. passed a resolution to the effect that if evidence were established of discrimination against Jews, Amercia would not take part in the games.

Mahoney urged that the spirit of the resolution be carried out.

Mrs. King, Mrs. McBride Net Victors

By Bob Kenefick

Longwood Cricket Club, Aug. 20 Play started slowly in the second round of the National Doubles tournament here this morning.

In the solitary match which was played during the morning Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King, English Wightman Cup star, and her partner, Mrs. John McBride, Short Hills, N. J., romped to an easy victory over the Los Angeles team of Miss Patricia Henry and Miss Jacqueline Virgil.

The hard-hitting English girl was in splendid form and had excellent length and pace off her forehand. Her team displayed the best all-round tennis shown thus far in the tourney.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES
SECOND ROUND

Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King, England, and Mrs. John McBride, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Miss Patricia Henry and Miss Jacqueline Virgil, both of Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—1.

ARKY Aims for N. L. CROWN

By Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 20—They're betting even money in Pittsburgh that Arky Vaughan, star shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be the batting champion of this National League this year.

Some followers of the two-year major league veteran are confident that he might even better the modern all-time hitting figure of .424, which Rogers Hornsby set in 1924, while playing with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Today Vaughan's batting mark reads .407. He has been eyeing the .424 record for the past two weeks. He still has 37 more games before the season ends.

When Arky's batting barometer hovered between .380 and .400 during May and June, experts beheved he was sag in the latter months, as he did last year. Arky fooled them. Within the past 19 days, he added 17 points to his record.

Top Row Returns for $25,000 Race

By Bob Ahearn

Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 20—Just a selling plater entered in a $3500 claiming race here last fall, Top Row, four-year old son of Punnuta, returns to the local layout as one of the contenders in the $25,000 added Narragansett special to be contested tomorrow.

Top Row was claimed for $3500 here at Narragansett last year by A. A. Baroni, western sportsman from Mrs. William Plunkett Steward. The claim has developed into one of the best buys of the turf in the recent wins of the Baroni stake performer can be taken as a criterion.

Star of the early New York campaign, Top Row has earned a total of $33,370 so far this season in purse money. His victories include the Spring Handicap at Bay Meadows, the Great Western at Washington Park and the Empire and Yonkers at Empire City.

In winning the Bay Meadows feature, Top Row set up a world record for a mile and a sixteenth.

WRIGHT RIDES

The son of Peanuts and Top High is now quartered here, being shipped from New York over the week-end, and has been assigned one of the stalls in the new stable, which will shelter the distinguished equine visitors for the special.

As a prelim for the classic, Top Row worked a mile and a furlong in 1:53.3 and one mile in 1:41.

Wayne Wright, America's leading jockey, was an arrival from Saratoga this morning and will be astride Top Row in the special. Wright is contract rider for Joseph E. Widener, who purchased the jockey's contract from Baroni.

Many shrewd horsemen are of the opinion that with Wright aboard, Top Row stands a real good chance in beating the iron horse, Discovery, odds-on choice for the event.

There is a saying on the turf that two-year-olds raced during the winter months never amount to much. This was proved otherwise in the case of Fareno.

This son of Chatterton raced at Miami in his two-year-old career and performed only fairly. As the season went along, Fareno improved steadily. By the time the snow fell he was regarded as one of the top juveniles of the year.

It was in his next season that the Belair racer reached his greatest heights by capturing the historic Belmont stakes, greatest test in the country for three year olds. Fareno ran away from his field that June afternoon running the mile and a half distance pulling up.

FIT AS FIDDLE

Last year Fareno was the winner of the Empire City handicap, Merchants and Citizens handicap at Saratoga, and the Havre De Grace handicap. Then came to this track to win the Rochambeau handicap. His total purse winnings in 1934 amounted to $27,160.

Recent training at Saratoga has been satisfactory, and Jim Fitzsimmons will be sending a dead fit horse to the post tomorrow.

Japan Mermen Defeat U. S.

Universal Service Special Cable

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 20—Sweeping through three of four final events, Japan's mermen established themselves as a definite threat for the coming Olympic swimming supremacy by defeating the United States, 36 to 27, in the three-day dual meet in the Meiji pool.

The Japanese swimmers finished the three-day program by winning the 800-meter free-style relay in the world record-shattering time of 8 52.2. Clipping six and two-tenths seconds off the record they set in the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

The American team was made up of Peter Fick, of the New York A. C., John Macionis, of Philadelphia, Art Lindgren, of Hollywood, and Jack Medica, of Seattle, American middle-distance champion.

Fick accounted for the lone American victory of the day, winning the 100-meter free style

MURPHY Seeks Junior CROWN

HACKNEY WINS N. H. OPEN

By Bill Grimes

Immediately after he won the Massachusetts caddy title in a playoff with Mike Yankowski, Worcester, Jimmy Murphy, the 17-year-old bag toter at Pine Brook Valley, entered the third William Randolph Hearst New England junior championship, which will be held next week at the Sandy Burr Country Club . . .

While on the subject of Sandy Burr, there is a three day open schedule for the Wayland course starting on Thursday and continuing through Saturday . . . Sandy Burr has never been in such fine condition as at present . . . Despite the continued heat spell, the course is as green and soft as though it was one of the watered layouts . . . The fairways and greens are perfect. If weather conditions are favorable, it's almost an even bet that some one will break 70 during the three day open . . .

* * *

A field of 48 New England amateurs are battling for the eight places alloted to this section for the United States amateur championship, today, at the Brae Burn Country Club . . .

Unless they encounter some unusually tough breaks, the Martin twins, Leo and Eddie, should be among the Bay Staters to make the grade . . . They are the most promising young golfers in New England. If they had the same opportunities to play and practice that some of their more fortunate brethren enjoy, the Martins would be nationally known within a few years . . .

They are great competitors, have a bag full of shots, distance off the tees and through the fairways, and are improving in all departments of the game . . .

* * *

Bobby Crowley, the Norfolk pro, is not given to unwarranted praise. Therefore when he declared Dave Hackney's record-breaking 66 at the Manchester Country Club, during the second round of the New Hampshire open championship was the easiest sub par round he had ever seen put together, there must be something to it . . .

While successfully defending his New Hampshire open title, Hackney played practically a perfect round of golf . . . Although he wound up with a score of six under par, he could have been three or even four strokes better . . . With the exception of the first hole, Dave had bolerable putts for birdies and eagles on almost every hole . . .

At the first hole he canned about a 30-footer for a birdie . . . It was one of those rounds that golfers dream of but seldom come up with . . . The Carnoustie butchee boy won the title by a four-stroke margin . . .

Anytime Francis Outmet, Jesse Guilford, Freddie Wright and Eddie Arcuaz are not contenders for national amateur honors there is something noticeably lacking in the interest in the event . . .

Blanche May Be Offered Braves Contract Soon

SOMERVILLE BOY HURLS WELL AGAINST CARDS

By WALTER KILEY

Somerville may add still another name to its list of illustrious sons sent to the major leagues as the result of the very commendable pitching performance turned in by Al Blanche for the Braves in the Monday exhibition with the World Champion St. Louis Cards at Lewiston, Maine.

As a game it was one of those so-so things, won by the Cardinals 8-3.

Neither team was out to take any chances, for the diamond was little better than pasture land, where a fall might have led to a serious accident, particularly damaging to the pennant-aspiring mid-Westerners.

But what was particularly gratifying to the enthusiastic turnout of some 5000 Lewiston fans, forgetting for the moment the presence of their hero, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, was the pitching of Blanche, who allowed only five hits and struck out four in five innings.

The Cards were on to cut to sharpen up their batting eyes for the games this afternoon and tomorrow at the Tepee, last of the four-game series.

STILLS CARDS

Larry Benton was the early victim, being touched up for one hit after another, no less than four of them being of the four-ply variety.

(Note—A well-hit fly which ordinarily would go for an easy put-out cleared the center field fence for a homer.)

But when Blanche went in, the picture changed. His fast ball and curve were mowing the heavy hitting Cards down in rapid order, and his control was excellent.

Manager Will McKechnie was pleased, particularly as he was short of flingers and wanted to save Bobby Brown for today's melee.

And Will informed Blanche that he had something important to talk to him about on the morrow, which might or might not mean a contract for the 25-year-old Somerville youth, who has been hurling to the Braves' batters for the past two summers.

Throughout the present season McKechnie has intimated to Blanche that he might take him on, under contract, whenever the club's ownership status had been definitely settled.

Blanche is a product of Somerville High's Charlie Dickerman. He was entering there as a freshman the year that Danny MacFayden, Shanty Hogan and Haskell Billings were finishing as seniors.

He was given all-scholastic honors two years running, hanging up an impressive strike-out record.

For four years he was the mainstay of the top-notch Providence College team, one of the leaders of Eastern Intercollegiate baseball.

BLANKED SOX

His name was first brought into sharp relief when he held the Red Sox hitless and scoreless for four and one-half innings in an exhibition game against Providence College during his sophomore year.

He had a world of stuff on the ball at Lewiston, and those Cards were trying hard.

It will be no surprise if the news is broadcast shortly that McKechnie has tendered him a Braves' contract.

BRITAIN BOASTS MOST BEAUTIFUL TENNIS PAIR

FREDA JAMES KAY STAMMERS

Darlings of Great Britain. Here is an interesting study of Freda James and Kay Stammers on the lawn at the Longwood Cricket Club as they watched the opening round matches in the National doubles tournament.

FREDA JAMES KAY STAMMERS

A closeup of the most beautiful doubles team in the world, the Misses James and Stammers. Miss Stammers has defeated Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs this season. She teams with Miss James in the national doubles.

Britain Boasts Beauties

By Bob Kenefick

It has been a long time since the historic Longwood Cricket Club has seen as pretty a pair of young ladies as the Kay Stammers and Freda James.

When the two British stars take the court together for a doubles match, they make the prettiest pair ever to grace the clubhouse court at the Brookline Club.

The young ladies are now in Boston competing in the women's National Doubles Tournament as the representatives of the British Lawn Tennis Association. They recently completed their Wightman Cup match with the American team in New York.

Miss Stammers the leading British singles star, has defeated all the great woman stars in the world. She was the only young lady to defeat Mrs. Helen Wills Moody during the California matron's 'comeback.'

Last week in the Wightman Cup matches she walked off the court with a well-earned victory over Helen Jacobs, top-ranked American star.

Coupled with the hard hitting Miss James, she carried off the women's doubles championship at Wimbledon this year.

Their performances in that tourney gave them a rating as the foremost women's team in the world, an honor that was badly shaken in New York last week when they bowed before the sensational play of Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan in a Wightman Cup match.

Miss Stammers' main rival as the most beautiful girl in tennis comes from Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, Cal. The West Coast girl, known as 'Graceful Gracyn,' reigned supreme with the gallery until the arrival of Miss Stammers.

While Miss James does not attract as much attention as Miss Stammers, she is a remarkably good looking girl. Together they make a beautiful pair on the courts

FREDA JAMES KAY STAMMERS

Another interesting pose of Great Britain's beautiful doubles team of Freda James and Kay Stammers as they appeared at Longwood. They start play today in quest of the American national doubles championship. Both are top ranking stars in British tennis, and beauties that have few equals in any sport.

CUBS WIN, 2-1
On Herman's Hit

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (US)—Billy Herman's one-bagger in the eighth sent Ken O'Dea and Billy Jurges scampering across the plate with the runs that gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-to-1 verdict over the Phils here.

Joe Bowman hurled hitless ball for the losers until the sixth, Clyde Shoun, a rookie from Birmingham, made his big league debut for the Cubs and received credit for the win.

FIRPO RISKS TITLE

Jose Firpo of the Argentine will defend his light heavyweight wrestling championship against Chief War Eagle of Canada tomorrow at Mechanics Building.

The bout is under the auspices of Charlie Gordon, and a share of the proceeds will go to the Burroughs Newsboys' Foundation.

It will go best two in three falls. Joe Beston of Quincy, father-in-law of Lou Brouillard, will be third man in the ring.

Ted Germaine of South Boston will appear in the semi-final with Sam Gardner, ex-Villanova football star.

In the specials, Martin Levi, the heaviest wrestler in captivity, will encounter Wild Bill Dolan of Dedham, and Tony Papalino will face Maurice Du Charme of France.

In the 20-minute prelims will be Senor Lopez vs. Buck Jones, Gil LaCross vs. Mickey Travers and Al Taylor vs. Danny Cady.

Western Trip Nightmare for Werber

Grove, Ferrell Hurl as Cronin Prays for Rain

By Joe Cashman

St. Louis, Aug. 20—Billy Werber should long remember this Western trip.

Trouble has walked arm and arm with him since he left Boston.

Today Washington Will is hobbling around with a strained tendon of the left foot. The injury isn't serious, but physicians advise that he stay out of uniform until tomorrow.

So "Dib" Williams will be at the hot corner in the closing double-header against the Browns, and possibly in one of the games of the twin-bill at Detroit on the morrow.

LET'S FIGHT

Werber wasn't away from home 24 hours before his unwelcome companion had caught up with him.

Trying a bit of daring baserunning in the exhibition against the Cards at Battle Creek, he was spiked on the heel by Leo Durocher. Fortunately, he was able to play the next day.

Then, on Saturday, he was hit on the shoulder by one of Russ Van Atta's southpaw slants in the opener here. He refused to believe it accidental because, he revealed since, it was the third or fourth time he had been winged by the same pitcher.

He burned up. After telling the pitcher what he thought of him in a few choice caustic words, he served warning that he wouldn't be careful if he started around the sacks.

A few moments later he sailed into second with spikes flashing in the air and bowled over Tommy Carey, who was waiting for the ball to make a force play.

There was little justification for picking on Carey, but in his anger Bill was obsessed with the idea of getting even, and he didn't care who the victim was.

The other Browns were more than willing to make an issue of it. The Sox speed king was equally willing. Carey, however, suggested forgiving and forgetting and all hands agreed.

Werber, though, doubted the Browns' sincerity when Lyn Lary came crashing into third in the first Sunday game, and the feud was on again for a few moments. It was first believed the [illegible] latest foot injury might have been the result of Lary's slide.

But Broadway Lyn was completely exonerated by one third-sacker's statement that the mishap followed the fielding of a bunt.

The doctor's report on the injury came just as the Monday game was being postponed because of a heavy shower.

HILL PROBLEM

Manager Joe Cronin will be more than satisfied if another shower happens along to wash out today's twin-bill. For, in that event, he would have Grove and Ferrell to open against the Tigers tomorrow.

His pitching problem will be acute if play is possible this afternoon. If he uses his two aces, one of them will either have to remain out of the Detroit series or go back with a two-day rest.

On the other hand, if he gambles on somebody else for mound duty in one game here, he'll be in danger of falling out of third place.

Boss Joe surely is having more than his share of worries these days.

Discovery Wilson's Choice in Mr. Boston Lou vs. Louis

Must Carry Top Weight of 139

This Is Handicap—Dave

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections Made for Past Track)
BEST BET—DISCOVERY

Narragansett Park, Aug. 20—Discovery, king of American race horses, likely will be a 3 to 5 favorite to win the $25,000 Narragansett Special, New England's most important race, at the Rhode Island course tomorrow afternoon.

And in this handicapper's opinion the might son of Display should win, despite the crushing impost of 130 pounds which asks him to concede 24 or more pounds to his six pounds.

With the field of seven promising a truly run race, each horse should show at his best and should have no excuses. It is estimated that upward of 50,000 will witness the running of the special. The stake record, set at 1 57 for the mile and three-sixteenths by Time Sup . . last year, should be lowered as the track is faster than last year.

FIRST—NEDS AFFINITY, ARMFUL, FESTOON

NEDS AFFINITY looms as I over the class in this $2500 top and bottom affair. Whirled six panels in 1:16 2 for a first ARMFUL shapes up as strictly the one to fear on general form. FESTOON, a slow beginner figures to be along in time to save the minor award.

SECOND—CHALLEPHEN, STE. LOUISE, JUBILEE JIM

CHALLEPHEN fourth in the Shawomet Stakes last Saturday needs only to duplicate that performance in order to grace the winner's circle. STE. LOUISE figures close up on the strength of several brilliant efforts over at the other town. PUBILEE JIM, if started, should experience little difficulty in sharing the short end of the purse.

THIRD—GREAT HASTE, CANCEL, QUICK

GREAT HASTE served notice that he was not far away from brackets when he turned in a bang-up fourth to Gold Step at the other town. CANCEL, third to Tahua, should prove hard to down with a bit of improvement. QUICK, usually close up in recent starts, for the remainder.

FOURTH—KAWAGOE, RED WAGON, TIME FLIGHT

KAWAGOE came up all over the lists in the $3500 top and bottom affair. Trainer D. Widener ott shipped in from the "Big Apple" in the pink of condition. RED WAGON, a frequent winner on Chicago tracks the past summer, holds a bit of class himself. He shapes up as strictly the one to fear. TIME FLIGHT displayed high speed in winning a $4000 top and bottom affair last Saturday. He is picking up ten pounds and merits serious consideration.

FIFTH—DISCOVERY, TOP ROW, TIME SUPPLY

DISCOVERY'S great record of eight straight victories clearly places him at the head of all handicap horses on this side of the Atlantic. The Vanderbilt start toted 123 pounds to a new world's record in the Brooklyn. He packed 139 pounds in capturing the Merchants' and Citizens'. Surely those achievements dispel all doubts as to his ability to pack heavy imposts. Breezed four panels in :47.3 for a final this morning and looks fit and ready to run for a king's ransom. Contention, if any, will likely be furnished by A. A. Baroni's TOP ROW. The latter is in nicely under 110 pounds and already has victories in the spring handicap at Saw Meadows, Great Western at Washington Park, and the Empire and Yonkers at Empire City. TIME SUPPLY, Mrs. F. A. Carreaud's good cup horse, figures best of the other four starters.

SIXTH—TECHNIQUE, CRYSTAL PRINCE, LADY FLINDERS, CHEWAWA

TECHNIQUE, on Chicago form, is entitled to a three-star rating in an event of this sort. The Headley mess received her tighteners in a sizzling dash only a few days back, since then she has worked six furlongs in 1 13. CRYSTAL PRINCE, a winner of four straight races, is coming up in the peak of form. He figures all dangerous despite moving up a few pegs. EASIEST WAY, third to Red Ensign, is dropping a ton of weight and must be respected.

SEVENTH—CRISTATE, LADY FLINDERS, CHEWAWA

CRISTATE, a plater with a smattering of class, turned in a corking third to Crystal Prince last trip. A duplicate performance will likely result in brackets for the Frank Kearns' colorbearer. LADY FLINDERS, never better, would have likely won her last but for poor handling. CHEWAWA on general form figures next best.

EIGHTH—ATMOSPHERE, LAST ROMANCE, BOOCAP

ATMOSPHERE, third to R. Pinchot, appeared to be a trifle short of work that day. Several fast morning trials since then should have served to put him on razor edge. LAST ROMANCE, a slow beginner, figures to be strong in time to save the purse from BOOCAP. The latter won his last start and is as good as that effort.

SUBSTITUTE RACE—VACILLATE, PRINCE DRAKE, ON OUR WAY

VACILLATE has several corking Chicago efforts to recommend her for top honors. PRINCE DRAKE'S last effort was in the nature of a conditioner, and should not be taken too seriously. Canadian dope discloses that he is capable of better things.

AGAWAM

Swamped With STALL BIDS

Agawam, Aug 20—The barns of Agawam Park will not be completed for two weeks, but they are already populated with the shadows of horses for which stall reservations have been made.

Horsemen throughout the country, eager to take advantage of Lou Smith's "chain system," are reserving stalls at the hundreds for both Rockingham Park, where a meet will be held from September 16 to September 28, and for Agawam Park, which will open October 1.

Prominent owners who have applied for stall reservations at Rockingham Park and Agawam Park are Bill Fleming, Mrs. A. J. Abel, Harry Brown, Jess Burks, Mart Colford, J. Y. Christmas, H. C. Cornwall, T. D. Codd, "Doc" Crawford, Bobby Curran, George Mayberry, W. Hartman, Ed McGuan, Joe Roberts and Whitney Whitehill.

Fleming has reserved 18 stalls at Agawam Park. Mrs. Abel has made reservations for Treasury Boy, Sassafay, High Flag, Mr. Moritz and others. Jess Burks will ship Flying Cadet, Tiger John, Legender, On Our Way and a half-dozen others.

Midshipman, which made a splurge at Suffolk Downs and won three straight races, is being shipped by Bobby Curran, along with Olamyr, St. Jacks and Mettle, and "Doc" Crawford has made reservations for his winning stable of Fidelis, Sand Baby, Mark Bennett, Annarita, Albuquerque, Hernondas, Onue, Krona and De Valera.

EASY, FOOTBALL AWAIT YOUR TURN

SWIMMIN' TIME STILL HERE

By Damon Runyon
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

New York, Aug. 20—With the dog days snapping at our sandals, it is somewhat surprising to read of calls for the football players to report for training in a few weeks.

The baseball season is just hotting up right good. The horses are still parading under the ellum trees at Saratoga. The tennis players are perspiring. The beaches are agog with swimmers. The good old summer time is all over us, like an umbrella.

Yet the football coaches are coming out from under the rocks and yelling for their players to make ready to limber up.

Among the foreshadowed coaches are Mr. "Ducky" Pond, head coach of Yale, and Dr. Mal Stevens of New York University, who used to occupy the same position Mr. Pond now holds.

Mr. "Ducky" Pond requests his young gentlemen to meet him at Gales Ferry on September 15, and Dr. Stevens wishes to see his boys at Lake Sebago, near Sloatsburg, N. Y., on September 8. And Navy is already at it!

"IRON MEN"

"Ducky" Pond, who wound up his 1934 season as head coach at dear old Yale in what you might call a blaze of glory, has invited 66 pullers to Gales Ferry, which is the place where the Yale crew trains for its boat races.

Mr. Pond's players loosened up their rippling muscles at Gales Ferry for the first time last year. Perhaps Mr. Pond figures it is a lucky spot.

He has engaged his old staff of assistants, including the redoubtable Earle "Greasy" Neale, who is credited by many football observers as the fellow who got that Yale crew which the writers will forever mention as "immortal," into shape to play the entire Princeton game without a change in the lineup.

This was the high spot of Mr. "Ducky" Pond's 1935 coaching career and a terrible shock to the football prognosticators, who had decided that Princeton should win the game by about 20 to 0.

When it developed that Yale was the winner, 7-0, there were more prognosticatorial alibis than hay in a pile.

WATCH HARLOW!

"Ducky" and "Greasy" did a right neat job in winning the championship of the Big Three for Yale. The Yalesmans licked Harvard and Princeton, and no loyal Yale man could ask for more.

Yale, as usual, will wind up its season with Harvard, whose new coach, Dick Harlow, ought also to be emitting some new for his young men to start showing him something.

We do not want to jump the football gun, but if you are looking for any surprises in the Big Three this season, look for them from Dick Harlow. He is amazingly well informed on his football asparagus.

.500 Wilson Still Hitting 'Em

Dave Wilson, New England's leading handicapper, enjoyed another of his numerous good days when he picked four winners in the eight races and had 15 horses in the money in the washday meeting at Gansett.

The Boston Evening American ace handicapper had More News to win in the first, Whopper in the fifth, Cantle in the sixth, and Zevar in the seventh.

Dave started his day right by picking them one, two in the first. More News paid $8.40 to win. The second race did not produce a winner but Dave had two hangtails in the sugar. Airy Heiress, the winner, was picked to show, and San Rafael, selected to place, showed.

In the third, Dave's top selection, Merwich, ran third. The fourth found two more of Wilson's horses in the money —Old Bob and Gift of Roses.

The fifth, sixth and seventh found Dave picking the winner in each and also the show horses in the three races. In the eighth, Dave's Pick, Skipsea, ran second, and his third choice Zombia, showed.

HUMPHRIES' Condition Same

Eastview, N. Y., Aug 20 (INS)—Little change in the condition of Joe Humphries was reported today at Grasslands hospital, where the veteran sports announcer is a patient following a recent apoplectic stroke.

Physicians believe there is reason to hope for Humphries' recovery.

Portland, Me.—George Dunette, 210, Detroit, defeated the Black Panther, 214, Detroit. Black Panther took first fall and claimed injury when he lost the second, refusing to continue.

He admired the young lady greatly but when he met her on the street and lifted his hat the embarrassment of his baldness was more than he could stand! How could he think of romance with the ogre of baldness whispering in his ear that he looked like an old man of 40 or 50? —and it was his own fault! When his hair thinned at the temples he should have cared! It is not natural to be bald. Trabelsie stops the causes. Don't let this happen to you! !

Marines Save Haiti

By Edwin C. Hill

The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News

Our colonial-government inspiods in the Virgin Islands suggests that Uncle Sam could do worse than turn the islands over to the marines.

It is six to five that the marines would do a good job of it and put the Virgin Islands solidly on their feet. The marines have the habit and tradition of good work. When they start something, they believe in finishing it.

Edwin C. Hill

From the Arctic Sea to Nicaragua, they have been trouble-shooters for Uncle Sam in some of his most awkward moments, and they have never failed, as far as this writer knows, to do a swell job.

WORK IN HAITI

I don't mean the rough stuff—the pursuit and annihilation of cacos, or the putting down of unpleasant little civil wars.

I am thinking more of the splendid work they have done in hours of agony, when nature has vented her spite on poor little helpless man. I am thinking of their noble, self-sacrificing, heroic work in flood and famine, in earthquake and fire.

These thoughts spring to mind with the recollection that it was just a year ago in this month of August that the U. S. Marines departed from Haiti after ruling the country for 19 years.

They went to a land which was impoverished, torn by feuds and banditry, politically corrupt and apparently in a hopeless financial condition.

They left a Haiti financially restored, freed of murderous bandits.

Sneered at and vilified by demagogues in the States, they went resolutely at their job until they had made a new country. Of all of Uncle Sam's adventures in the Caribbean, he can be proudest, I thing, of the restoration of Haiti.

BENEFITS GIVEN

Port au Prince, the capital city, is a pleasure to the eye. Streets which used to be littered with garbage are as clean as the streets of Paris or New York.

Sanitation has been drilled home. A complete new system of roads girdle the land. Proper road maintenance has been taught to the natives.

Out of the administration of the marines, new enterprises were introduced in this country of tragic history. Large scale undertakings such as sisal growing and banana growing are under way.

Oddly enough, the August day upon which the marines left Haiti to itself was the anniversary of the passing of that amazing figure, King Henri Christophe, more than a century ago.

Before him it had been a French possession. The French had settled there in considerable numbers. They created great sugar plantations, with slave labor, of course. This was in the day of the Emperor Napoleon.

BLOODY REBELLION

Some of the great planters, who spent the greater part of the year in Paris, leaving their plantations to the management of hard-driving overseers, brought about the conditions of cruelty and tyranny which resulted in a bloody rebellion in 1812, the year which was the turning point of Napoleon's fortune.

Out of this welter of rebellion and bloodshed arose the figure of Henri Christophe.

He was the best man the rebellion produced, and he proved it by naming himself as king and establishing a monarchy.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Wednesday, August 21

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Narragansett. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

Six pairs of tickets to the Narragansett Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 3 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 2 points in each race of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Thursday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Wednesday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners will appear in Monday's editions).

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

A pat on the back for the girls is the result of a summary of past events at Boston wing headquarters!

Ever since the Junior Birdmen movement started, the girls have been taking more and more advantage of their equal footing and opportunities with the boys, have entered contests, formed squadrons, and held their own with the best of them.

Jean Hill of Newburyport and Dorothy Connor of South Boston started the feminine ball rolling when they were two of the four winners of the motto contest and were sent to New York for a sightseeing trip with other wing winners.

Many of the girls showed a money-winning sense of humor in the funny bone contest which ran for several weeks.

In model plane flying contests, an activity to which most of the girls are new, more girls are finding that it doesn't take so much courage to enter. The boys have proved courteous in giving them tips on how to adjust and fly their planes.

Last December at the indoor races, Barbara Maschin of Westfield and Marion Burrill of Providence each won a medal for second place in the single stick event. Barbara in A class and Marion in B class. And in the recent Novice Glider Contest several girls did exceptionally well. With about 125 competing, Barbara Keith of Belmont won 10th prize.

SCORES WATCH

Comets Contest

A large number of spectators witnessed the three events of a contest held recently at the Playstead in Franklin Park. The models of the winners of the first two events flew out of sight at a high altitude. Charles Hasklan won the hand launched glider event with a time of 55.5-5 seconds and Ray Townsend, commander, won the tow line glider event with a time of 1 minute, 55 seconds. The fuselage event was won by Norman Welderman. Timers were the sponsor, Gaylor Townsend, and from Commercial wharf.

Lawrence Kreuger, Ethel Townsend acted as recorder. Prizes were donated by the Roslindale Model Supply Co.

These monthly contests are held to help choose the new officers for the squadron. At the end of 6 months, the points are tallied and the highest point scorers are appointed officers and are taken on a 25-mile airplane trip by the sponsor.

The Comets wish to challenge any other squadron to meet them in a contest to be held late in September. Events will be hand-launched and tow-line gliders and cabin models. Headquarters would like to see several squadrons take up the challenge! Write to Ray Townsend, 1038 Canterbury street, Roslindale.

Cruise Coupons Tomorrow

Coupons for this week's reduced rate excursion aboard the Cape Cod Steamship Company steamer Steel Pier will be printed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

This week's excursion will be across Massachusetts Bay, into Cape Cod Bay, through the Cape Cod Canal and into Buzzards Bay.

On the trip, both ways, the excursionists will pass beneath the new Bourne and Sagamore railroad bridges, which are drawing hundreds every day and evening.

The Steel Pier is one of the finest of coastal excursion boats and furnishes a fine orchestra for entertainment of the passengers, as well as dining salon facilities and a full cuisine.

Clip the coupons in tomorrow's Boston Evening American and take the reduced rate sail Thursday and from Commercial wharf.

'JAFSIE' READY FOR X-9 TALK

Dr. John F. Condon the Jafsie of the Lindbergh case and the savant who aided materially in convicting Bruno Richard Hauptmann, speaks tonight to Boston Evening American Secret Agent X-9 Club boys and girls over the regular club radio hour.

This period is from 6:30 to 6:45 p. m. on Station WAAB. As guest of the club in the radio period, "Jafsie" will tell the boy and girl members, as well as those adults who care to tune in, why crime does not pay.

Dr. Condon, who contacted the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, later murdered, and who identified Hauptmann in court as the man he contacted and with whom he talked, is appearing in person this week on the stage of the Gayety Theater.

Listen in tonight over Station WAAB from 6:30 to 6:45 o'clock.

LOVE BLIND

By Hazel Livingston

Mary in a Dilemma

CHAPTER XX

Lord, she must have been crazy! . . . Why, why, why did she go in the first place? Lalla had practically told her what to expect, though of course even poor Lalla hadn't any idea how rough it was going to be. And that young Mr. Conroy . . . suppose he made trouble? Why did he say he could have them all put in jail? Even if Sid Breen and his wife . . .

If a girl is under age—that Conroy girl looked about 16 . . .

Oh, but he wouldn't do that! A big scandal like that wouldn't help. . . . Could they all be held for witnesses? And their names be printed in the papers, where Ma and Pa . . .

She sat up in bed, shook her head violently.

I'm letting my imagination run away with me, she thought. I'm so scared I'm going crazy! Nobody else is worrying. I'll bet! I'm making it out a hundred times worse than it is.

It was simply a drunken party, where a few people had a little too much, and naturally they did a few things they wouldn't have if they hadn't been drinking, and if that little Conroy girl came, whose fault was it but her own?

Divorcee on Scene

Nobody asked her! She was a cheap, common little thing. She started it. If her husband thought so much of her why didn't he keep her home where she belonged . . .

The first cable car rattled by.

I must stop worrying, and go to sleep. I won't be good for anything in the morning!

But she was still wide-awake when Margot's alarm clock went off at 7:30.

* * *

Samson was late.

Ten o'clock, and no sign of him. Well, Mary didn't worry over that, especially, for he was often that late. Still, he might telephone. Lalla, at least, should know she'd be a little anxious, after last night.

Last night . . . no use thinking about that now. Whatever had happened, had happened.

She put a fresh sheet of paper in her typewriter. This would be a good time to get caught up on that routine typing.

Why didn't Lalla telephone? Probably sleeping it off . . . Nothing to worry about, really.

She spaced the sheet a little more accurately, typed in the date.

The door opened. Ethelyn Piper's carefully waved head appeared in the crack. Her lips moved soundlessly. "Is your chief in?"

"No—nobody's here. What's new, anything?"

"My dear, I had to get out! SHE'S in the office . . .

"Who?—I can't hear!"

Ethelyn came in, closed the door carefully behind her.

"I don't want to shout. My office is just across the hall, please remember! It's that frightful woman—Mrs. Odores Sprague Spegger—the one that pursues the chief—"

"Oh, the beautiful divorcee!"

"Divorcee! I wouldn't say beautiful, exactly. My dear she's been waiting twenty minutes, and I don't DARE tell the chief, don't DARE! And she's ready to break the door down and get in over my dead body.

Call for Samson

"Wouldn't you think these women would know that men hate to be chased like that? He tries to be civil, but when she pushes, and fails all over him . . . well, I suppose I'll have to gather courage and tell him she's here, but he'll kill me—his day is so full, and we have so many important things to do, and then this Spegzen . . . See you at noon!"

"I'll try to—"

"Twelve o'clock then, my dear" Ethelyn tiptoed out, closed the door soundlessly behind her.

She has a lot to worry about, Mary thought. I wonder what she'd do if she were in my shoes with Ross sleeping off a binge, and a beautiful scandal likely to break any minute . . .

Her hands were wet with cold perspiration. She got up and washed them again. What a silly to worry so! Things like that don't happen. Oh, yes, they do. You think you're secure, that you're safe because you're you, and nothing ever happened to you before, and then things start to happen . . . Like home . . . home that had never changed, and never would change . . . and then Aunt Willie . . .

Once more she heard the siren on the ambulance, saw the tall white hospital on the hill, smelled the overpowering sweetness of flowers that are beginning to droop, saw Aunt Willie dignified and young again in death . . .

Things do happen! They do! They do!

If she'd just taken Margot's advice, and stayed away from Lalla and her bushwhacking friends! Leave a perfectly good date with a regular person, like Holden, and go out on a—

Well, it might have been

But it was bad enough, as Margot had indicated when she asked a few pointed questions this morning.

Mary looked at the clock. Almost eleven. A stack of mail unopened. Samson was queer about mail. Not like Bennet who had always been glad to have her open and sort it. Samson seemed to resent her touching it, as she'd given it up, let it lie on the desk until he came.

People telephoned, asked for him.

Two wires came.

Shortly before noon she gathered courage, telephoned to the hotel.

Mr. Samson was not in. Neither was Mrs. Samson.

At one o'clock she tried again. This time she said, "I'm Mr. Samson's secretary. It's really important. Do you know where I could get him?"

At the Hospital

There was a long delay. Then a man's voice. "Mr. Samson was moved to Trinity hospital early this morning. His wife went with him. You might telephone the hospital."

Her fingers were so clammy and shaky she dialed the wrong number twice. Finally she got the hospital, then the second floor desk.

Lalla came to the telephone. Her voice sounded strained. She said: "Sammie says you'd better close the office. Put a 'will be back soon' card, or something on the door, and come here as soon as you can. He's awfully sick, and there's the devil to pay."

"Oh—I'm so sorry . . . You mean, trouble—about last night?"

"Yes, I do. Get out here as soon as you can."

She had to change cars twice. It seemed an endless ride. Until she was actually walking up to the hospital, and wondering which of the many entrances was the right one, it didn't occur to her that she might have taken a taxi!

A nurse tapped on a closed door in a moment: she came out with Lalla. They closed the door carefully behind them.

Lalla wore her brown tailored suit, with a new white pique hat at the smartest angle. She'd even screwed in her big pearl earrings, and made up her eyes. But in spite of it all she looked worn and old.

"We're in for it. Sid Breen phoned me at six o'clock this morning. If I haven't had a night of it, what with Sammie sick as a dog, and Breen waking me out of my first sound sleep—"

"Lalla—TELL me—"

"Oh, it's that Conroy girl. Breen says it's blackmail. They framed the whole thing. That good for nothing husband of hers is out of work—never did work, I guess—and they just thought it would be easy money. Breen's daughter has just announced her engagement—I really think he'll have to pay up and keep it out of the papers—but he swears he won't!"

"Out of the papers—Lalla, they wouldn't—I mean they couldn't really do anything—to us, I mean! We were just there! We didn't do anything—"

"Oh, no! All we did was contribute to the delinquency of a minor—and a few other trifles, like alienating the affections of married men, and—"

"Lalla, you're fooling. You don't mean—"

"Oh, yes, I do! You wait, I tell you there's hell popping"

"But we were innocent—you and I! We didn't—"

Lalla in Tears

"That's just it. We were innocent. You mark my words, we're going to catch it just for that reason. Look at me! Weakening and taking Sammie with me, to give him a good time! And then I— That's the way it goes. I never saw it to fail. When I'm guilty I get away with murder. But when I try to do a good deed something like this happens."

"I'd just die. My mother would simply never get over it. I never could hold up my head again My mother—"

Oh, nonsense. That's nothing But you may lose your job—and so will Sammie. He's not in too good now, and if this comes out—"

"I can't face it—I just can't—I—"

"Don't be silly. Look at me, I'd hate to tell you what I'm facing. Oh, well! And Sammie—poor old Sammie—he's really good. He's awfully bad, too. Really I'm so worried—"

The nurse opened the door, rustled over to them. "Mr. Samson is asking for you, Mrs. Samson."

Lalla dabbed at her eyes.

"I've certainly demonstrated that this is waterproof mascara. Well—I'll have to go to him. Oh, yes, he told me to tell you that Sammie is not to give out any information until you positively had to, and whatever you do—DON'T tell his mother where he is.

"Say you don't know. Say anything, but DON'T tell her. He was awfully worried because the hotel told you the hospital. I had to get the house physician early this morning and he sent him here, that's how they know . . . gee, I wish I knew how sick he is. Goodbye, kid. Keep your mouth shut, and leave the worrying to an expert—"

The nurse opened the door, motioned Lalla to enter.

Mary was alone in the long empty hospital corridor.

The Fall's Classic Suit

By ANNICE BRINK

Need we expound the virtues of the three-piece suit . . . especially when it's beautifully collared in wolf or raccoon, and made of lovely, soft contrasting tweed, and costs under forty dollars (for the month of August only)? We can tell you that fashion experts all over the country predict a rather sensational career for this type suit. And we have chosen one which is not only made very well, but has a flair for the unusual.

For instance, the solid-color tweed jacket is cut on a new idea, that combines a bit of fullness in peplum-effect with a snug waistline. There is swagger fullness in the top coat's back. Glowing shades of dubonnet or grenadine red, rust, ginger or dark brown, and the new-est greens. Miss Barbara Jameson, socially prominent singer from Belmont, models for us. SIMPLE FALL FROCK

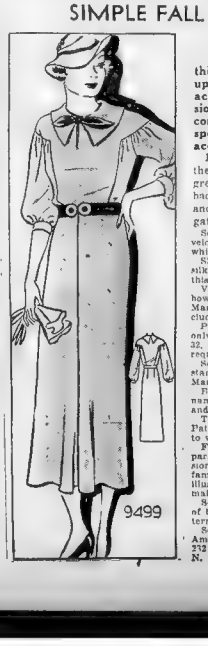
By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9499



A perfect fall frock is this, which can be dressed up with fairly elaborate accessories when the occasion demands, or accented correctly for street or sports wear with tailored accessories.

Extremely simple in line, the clever yoke forms the greater part of the bodice, back and front, while the sides and full, elbow-length sleeves gather onto the yoke.

Soft ripples at the knees develop from a slightly flared skirt which keeps its hipline smooth.

Sheer silk or wool crepe or tie silk are especially suitable for this double-duty frock.

Velvet or grosgrain for belt or bow. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9499 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern

Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern

'Frosty' Fall Silks

BY DOROTHY ROE

WE haven't heard anything as yet about scissors and snails and puppydog tails but we have heard of sugar and spice in the fall fabric lineup.

That's the intriguing name they have given to a group of frosty new silks, designed for that all-important first fall dress.

There is a cinnamon-toast air about the new fabrics, in soft spice tones that look as if they had been dusted with sugar.

Of pure-dye silk, they come in a semi-sheer weight and a frosted weave, sold by the yard or made up in trick new tailored styles for Fall

Apparently you will choose your fabrics by their flavor this season in the sugar-and-spice lineup, you may select from the following array

Ginger, caraway, chicory, mace, sage, curry, anise, pepper and salt, paprika, nutmeg, cayenne, thyme.

The ginger, of course, is a medium brown dusted with white. Sage is a dull frosted green. Paprika is a bright rust with a silvery surface, and so on.

It's a pleasant idea, and the colors themselves are appropriately tuned to the season when the frost is on the pumpkin, if you have a pumpkin.

But whether you have or not, you may have a sugar-and-spice frock, and that's just as good.

What MIGHT Have BEEN

By RUBY AYRES

I SUPPOSE in all our minds there is a little corner which we avoid looking into as much as possible, where the wistful ghosts of the past are stored away, and which, if we are wise, we seldom admit to the light of day.

This week I received a sad little letter from a woman who has been more or less happily married for five years (the words are her own), and now an old lover from whom she parted after a serious quarrel has appeared in her life again with the usual disturbing effect.

She writes—"I thought I was happy till I met him again, but now I realize that he is the only man I have ever loved, and that the years have made no difference. I do not know whether he feels the same way towards me, but my married life is quite apolit because sometimes I am forced to meet him, and yet when he is away from me, I feel restless and unhappy, and nothing seems to be any fun or to hold any interest for me.

There must be many women who will hear the echo of this letter in their hearts, and yet one must be careful not to continue a real and lasting love with the natural "sentimentality" which is often born of such a meeting

It is so true that a thwarted love assumes an exaggerated reality, and because it is so true, it is a great danger.

This man who has come back into the life of my correspondent may no longer care for her, and I hope she will try to convince herself of this, and also that were he to know of her aching heart he might only feel sorry and embarrassed.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Question: How long should hair be kept up in curlers while drying? Mine always seems to come out fuzzy and I am afraid it is because I keep them curled too long.

Answer: How long you should keep your hair in curlers depends entirely on how long it takes your hair to dry. You yourself will be the judge of that. Find out just how long the curls need to become soft and strong. If taken down too soon the ringlets go limp, and if held too long on the curlers they are frizzy

Fashion Flash

ALIX is emphasizing fine lightweight acetate jerseys of supple quality in the fall and winter collection. An abundance of bright transparent velvet is seen and some panne velvet with short pile. Albene clockys in this house are shown in regular designs and in tres bark effects. Taffetas come in faconne and clocky types, and there is an interesting wrinkled pasted taffeta from Colcombet.

A novel use of lame seen at this showing combines the material with pleated chiffon. Plaited gold lame galons, sewn together, make up a striking Bonwit model. For woolens, Alix favors fine angora jerseys or velours de laine of Lanvin type from Meyer. Soft kid is noted in a dress and coat ensemble appliqued with leather in medieval designs and tones.

The most important color in Alix new costumes is reddish brown. A great deal of black and some white are in evidence. Checks of light green and black and fabrics of dull medium blue appear among the models.

Home Hair Dressing

POSED BY JEAN MUIR.

By Juliet Shelby

DON'T go around grumbling if you cannot afford to have your hair set in a beauty salon, for many girls must deny themselves that luxury.

However, if you really want to know something to cheer you up, just let me tell you that many of the glamorous Hollywood stars prefer to take care of their hair themselves.

They shampoo it, brush it, recondition it and set it! And lovely Jean Muir's is one of those stars.

And what's more, Jean's hair always looks as if she had just spent hours preening before a mirror. She never neglects her grooming, and although she is one of the most popular girls in the younger set of Hollywood, she always finds time to keep herself looking attractive.

She puts a half and half mixture of olive oil and castor oil in her hair the night before her shampoo. Then she sets it with combs and bobby pins. And every night of her life she screws her hair up on those bobby pins' "It's inconvenient," she admits, "but I prefer to do it myself."

So there! If Jean does it, you can do it. You all know what bobby pins are, so get a stack of them and let me tell you the name of some new water wave combs that give a wave identical to a finger wave.

The combs are metal, so if you want to sit in front of an electric heater to dry your hair in a hurry, there is no danger of the combs catching fire. Tiny metal clamps hold the combs securely in place until your hair is dry, and they enable you to have your wave as close or as far from your part as you desire

If you wish to know where you can purchase these combs call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Martha Lee's Preserving Advice

By MARTHA LEE

Among the questions we have had recently about canning and preserving, is one on the formation of molds on canned fruit.

Mold forms very easily, and it present in a small amount may be removed from the surface and the remainder of the food eaten with safety.

There is little evidence that moldy food causes illness. If there is a heavy growth of mold, however, the food should be discarded as the flavor and texture are both affected

If the food is to be saved for the coming year, it may be processed again, as molds are easily destroyed by heating for a short time at the temperature of boiling water.

Care must be taken in transferring the food back and forth from jar to kettle, as the molds in the air may contaminate the food while doing this.

SEAL AT ONCE

The better way is to remove the mold from the top of the jar and then place the jars containing the food in the boiling water bath heating long enough to kill the molds. Seal the food at once.

Another correspondent asks what causes the shriveling of pickles. Pickles will shrivel if the cucumbers are placed in heavy syrup, too strong a brine or too strong a vinegar. Pure apple cider vinegar is the best type of vinegar to use for pickling.

This vinegar also keeps the pickles crisp. Some people like to add a small amount of alum to the pickles. One-half teaspoon to two quarts of water is the correct proportion

Mrs. Joseph Guyan of Worcester, offers a recipe for Green Tomato Mince Meat to the fall canners.

GREEN TOMATO MINCE MEAT

Chop one peck of green tomatoes fine. Drain off all the juice, then cover with water and scald. Cover with water and scald three times. Add one peck of apples, pared and chopped fine.

Add five pounds of sugar, 2 lbs seedless raisins, 2 cup suet chopped fine, 1½ cups vinegar, 3 tbsps. salt, 2 lemons, chopped fine. Boil together, then add 2 tbsps. of cinnamon, 1 tbsp. cloves, 1 tbsp. nutmeg Seal in air-tight jars.

Pickling is a delightful way of preserving fruit, particularly peaches. The same process can be used with any of the fresh fruits of the season.

Skin the peaches before pickling by scalding for about 2 minutes. Take large, fair fruit and do not remove the stems. Put them in a preserving kettle and cover with a syrup made as follows:

For 8 lbs. of fruit, use 4 lbs. of brown sugar, 1 qt. vinegar and 2 cupful of mixed whole spices, using fewer cloves than other spices. Tie the spices loosely in a muslin bag. Let all boil together well and then pour over the fruit. Let the fruit cook in the syrup 8 or 10 minutes, or until the fruit is tender, but not broken. Remove from the kettle, put in crocks, boil down the syrup 4 or 5 minutes, and pour over the fruit.

Repeat this process of pouring off the syrup, boiling it down and pouring it over the fruit three successive days. Sweet pickles will keep in crocks if in a cool place. Sealed pears and crabapples make delicious sweet pickles.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

1 qt. onions, sliced
2 sweet green peppers, sliced
1-3 cup salt
1 cup brown sugar, more if desired
1 tbsp. mustard seed
1 tbsp. pickling spice
Vinegar to cover

Sprinkle cucumbers, onions and peppers with salt, let stand 3 hours and drain. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boil over moderate fire, but do not boil. Seal in pint jars

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Family Of 5 His Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

You never know when you're well off. Worrying over my job and the difficulty of providing for six people on a small pay envelope used to make me pretty unhappy at times. But now one of those six — my devoted wife — is gone. And I realize what a happy family life we had together.

She died after an illness of less than twenty-four hours. I think the heat and the hard work she did were to blame. The question is, what can I do with my children?

We live in a neighborhood where the children are very tough, and since her death, mine have been racing the streets. I cannot afford to employ a housekeeper, and there are no relatives on either side who would be able to come in and look out for my children. Do you think, if I advertised, anyone would come for room and board? Worrying.

What are your church, lodge or fraternal connections? If you belong to a church, your pastor should be able to put you in touch with a home for motherless children. Be sure that it's a good one. Those that require a small payment are better than those which are run gratuitously.

If you are a Mason, there are several excellent homes for children connected with the various lodges. If you're a Catholic and a Knights of Columbus, they contribute to the maintenance of children in well-conducted homes.

Until you can get someone of whom you are absolutely certain, better be slow about taking in a stranger who would work for room and board.

They have very well organized plans for meeting problems such as yours at the Council of Social Agencies, and at the Social Service Exchange in the city from which you write me, and the fact that you will be able to pay something for your children will help solve the problem materially. I hope you will write me again, and tell me how you are making out.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married less than a year. I'm 18 and my husband is 22. He likes to go out when he pleases and run around with his unmarried friends and be as free as when he was single. I never go out anywhere, because I really love my husband and I want to keep him. We live with his people. They are lovely to me and I am very fond of them. I can't complain to them about their son. We quarrel most all the time. YOUNG WIFE.

You've heard of the adage, my dear, that it takes two to make a quarrel. And if you fuss and quarrel with your husband, it makes just one more argument for him to leave home and go where he can get a little peace. That's always the husband's argument in such cases.

Give up quarreling; positively do not answer back and see how that will work.

As you really love him, that helps enormously toward reconciliation.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The other day I met an old friend of our family and her little daughter, age six years. We hadn't seen each other for four or five months, and I invited her to have a glass of beer. The little girl had orangeade. This treat which has caused all the trouble was in an open-air garden right on the street. Afterwards the lady went her way and I went mine.

Some busybody saw us and rushed and told my wife, who is very "mad" with me. I don't see any harm in having a single glass of beer with an old friend in an open-air garden where everyone can see you. E. C. H.

Perhaps the busybody who rushed and told your wife colored this simple friendly act to a high degree. As told to me in your letter, the episode seems entirely innocent.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

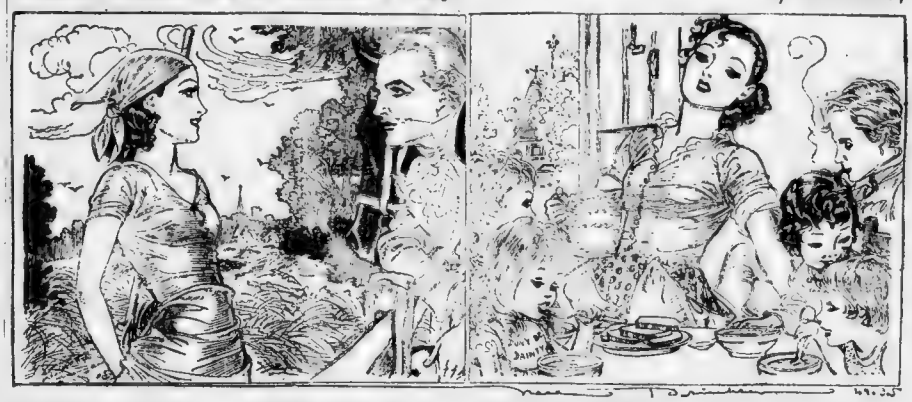
We were such good friends all during our high school days, and this vacation when he came back from college he called and invited me out. We went to dine at a delightful little restaurant, and sat talking until it was very late, and I suggested we'd better go home. I told him I'd enjoyed every minute.

He promised to call the following afternoon, but did not, nor did he send any word. When we met I did not ask him why he broke the date, and I feel very unhappy. I hear of him being at a swimming pool with another girl, and I just want to cry. I often feel like writing a note or phoning, but I don't know what to say. DISAPPOINTED.

As you and this boy have been in school together and are such old friends, you might give him the benefit of the doubt. He may have sent you some word about the broken date which never reached you. Why not invite him to call, or arrange to have some little party and include him, if you wish to make it more impersonal?

'Maude Muller, on a Summer's Day . . .'

By Nell Brinkley



Maud Muller, on a Summer's day,
Raked the meadows sweet with hay.
The Judge rode slowly down the lane,
Smoothing his horse's chestnut mane.
He drew his bridle in the shade

Of the apple trees to greet the maid.
At last like one who for delay
Seeks a vain excuse, he rode away
Maud Muller looked and sighed: Ah me!
That I the Judge's bride might be!"

The Judge looked back as he climbed the hill,
And saw Maud Muller standing still
"Would she were mine, and I today,
Like her, a harvester of hay!"
He wedded a wife of richest dower,

Who lived for fashion as he for power.
She wedded a man unlearned and poor,
And many children played round her door.
Alas for maiden, alas for Judge,
For rich repiner and household drudge,

This is only a snatch of the old poem, "Maud Muller," performed with the sun on new-cut hay, gently melancholy in the fashion of many sentimental poems of a certain day! To see the picture rightly you should read it all.

The writer of "Maud Muller" believed that the Judge who closed his heart and rode away from Maud with her brown ankles and torn gown made a mistake. And that Maud's fate was all awry! Maybe it was and maybe it wasn't. Perhaps Maud was happier with her plain man and her many children than she would have been in the Judge's house. Maybe it was only the Judge who lingered, and then rode away, who made a mistake!

SPECIAL AGENT

By Jack Lait

SYNOPSIS

Alex Carston, Big Town rackets rajah, has just been acquitted on a bribery charge, the judge has denounced the jury as "cowards, traitors, and public enemies," and the lucky Big Shot has returned in triumph to his "business" offices, where he confers briefly with his confidential secretary, the pretty Miss Julie Gardner.

After she leaves, Carston begins to worry about "the income tax thing" . . . He remembers Al Capone, Waxy Gordon, and Dutch Schultz.

Visions of Alcatraz fade, however, as he and his "gundaliers" start making the rounds of the gambling resorts.

At the 122 Club, managed by the suave Cedric Armitage, Carston meets his friendly enemy, Bill Bradford, a newspaper reporter, who is assigned to the big racket stories. Bradford tells Carston that he likes the latter's secretary a lot.

CHAPTER TWO

Alex Carston, the king of the rackets in the Big Burg, seemed amazed when young Bill Bradford, the "square-shooting" reporter whom he feared but liked, frankly blurted out that he was fond of Julie Gardner. Julie was the sort of girl any upstanding fellow might "go" for.

But Carston, to whom she was as a right eye in her trusted capacity of accountant and confidante, had never looked at her in that light; nor had he contemplated seriously the alarming possibilities of her "hooking up" with a man, an outsider, who might turn dynamite to the very bedrock of Carston's whole criminal empire.

Feared No Power

Least of all had he speculated on the possibilities that Julie might love—perhaps marry—a Bill Bradford, a keen, sharp-eyed, stout-hearted newspaperman to whom a story meant more than anything else.

No, not than anything else—than anything else but his honor . . . For on Carston had faith in that word when applied to Bill Bradford, whose code demanded that he publish without fear or favor all that he could prove, and hold sacredly all that he accepted in confidence.

Carston feared no city, state or government power.

He recognized none, with his intricate organization of killers, fixers, perjurors and corruptionists—none save the pestiferous income tax division which had broken some of the otherwise impervious racket bosses; and these would be helpless against him unless they could prove his accounts, and the accounts were known to none but himself and Julie, and were in a code known to none but himself and Julie.

Ordinarily, when a person lived who could send Alex Carston to Alcatraz—that person didn't live long. That was a simple solution. But even Carston, whose nod had sent a score or more men to death by assassination, couldn't think of Julie that way. She was the only human being who knew what both his right and left hand were doing.

With his superauspicious nature, he had never for one moment doubted her complete trustworthiness. But—she was a girl—and if she fell in love—h'mph! Damn! He hadn't foreseen that obvious potentiality . . . He turned to Bradford.

"A Grand Kid!"

"Bill," said the master-gangster, "Julie couldn't get a finer guy than you . . . When's it comin' off?"

"What? Say, I haven't asked her yet. I haven't even told her yet."

A deep sigh of relief swelled the barrel chest of Carston.

"Well, don't worry about her. I won't get her in any jam. An' what's more, I'll knock off any flatfoot what tries to. She's a grand kid an' for a doll she's got more under that blonde hair an' in her heart an' up her backbone than all my wise an' tough mobsters put together . . . An' she's not only dead game, but dead on the level. I don't think she'd squeal on me, after I trusted her, to anybody—not even to a man she'd say yes to on any other proposition."

Bradford smiled.

"Why—what could she or anybody turn up on you. You're just an honest business man manufacturing ashtrays and souvenir spoons, with no taxable income, always being persecuted by the district attorney and always being found innocent by the jury."

"Right. You should o' been a legaler, Bill, defending struggling citizens like me instead of a newshound, attacking 'em . . . What, not going?"

"Have to. Got a date with Julie—dinner."

Julie Radiant

Julie was looking radiant, in a girlish gown that set her blonde beauty off to its fetching fullest. Her eyes danced as Bill entered the little sidestreet cafe where she awaited him. And his face lit up.

"Hello, Queen," he saluted. "Sorry I'm a minute late been tied up with your boss."

"Oh, yes? He should be in good humor tonight after beating that bribery rap."

"He is. But he won't be forever. America's cracking down on the Carstons. He's made clucks of all the law outfits except one, and that one's out after him now, and that one'll take him."

"Income tax?"

"Income tax. Seems shameful enough that racketeers who clip the nation for billions every year, using every felony from subornation to murder, can't be locked by any other method than nailing them because they don't pay honest taxes on their bloodmoney.

"But that's the way it works out. Those special agents have the patience of sheep and the obstinacy of bulldogs and the incorruptibility of granite. Strange, our public services are largely divided into some units that are practically 100 per cent crooked and others that wouldn't budge a crooked hair for millions. This is one he can't buy, can't scare and can't outsmart."

INFATUATION OF DOCTOR REVEALED

CHAPTER 426

By ADELE GARRISON

I braced myself for another searching question as Harriet told me that he had seen a photograph of a nurse in her husband's secret box, not once, but many times.

It was a distasteful business, this of questioning her, but I had no choice in the matter.

She had given me her confidences and asked my aid. If I were to help her, I must have all the threads in my hands that I could possibly gather.

"Forgive me, dear," I pleaded, "but don't you think you are unconsciously exaggerating the number of times you've seen that box? If Edwin guards it so carefully and opens it only in the dead of the night . . ."

My voice trailed away into space as I saw Harriet's face flush and her eyes mirror humiliated resentment.

"I can't blame you for what you are evidently thinking," she said. "That I am spying upon Edwin."

MYSTERY PHOTOGRAPH

"Harriet! Please!" I put up my hand in horrified protest. "You know I meant nothing of the sort."

"I am not sure that I am gratified in thought," she said sadly, "although I have tried so hard never to evince the slightest curiosity concerning the box, or even to look toward it upon the rare occasions when Edwin has opened his safe when I was in the room."

"But, Harriet," I urged, bewildered, "I thought you said he only opened the box in the dead of night, when he thought you were asleep."

"You must have misunderstood me," she said slowly, "I did not mean that he never took out the box before me. I meant that he never took out the photograph, except when he felt certain that everybody was asleep."

She paused and stared straight ahead of her for a few seconds that seemed endless.

"It is hard," she said at last, "for anyone like me, reserved to the point of absurdity, to speak to anyone, even so near and dear as you"—she flashed an affectionate look at me—"of my family life. But to comprehend this matter of the box, you must understand that all my married life I have been not only wife to my husband, but private secretary as well."

NO SECRETS

"And mother, nurse and valet, as nearly as my observation goes," I supplemented, smiling at her. "You certainly have been everything to one man!"

I did not expect any response to my wretched paraphrase, but a faint smile just touched the corners of her lips.

"I think that expresses it as well as anything could," she said. "One result of such an arrangement is that we have practically no secrets from each other. I have the free run of his desk—I have to, in order to take care of his affairs—and naturally, in due course, I give him the run of mine.

"MY WORLD CRASHED"

"We always, however, have had a tacit agreement that each should respect the privacy of a box belonging to the other. Mine is mostly devoted to souvenirs of our courtship and engagement, and of our life together, which I take a woman's sentimental pleasure in looking over—souvenirs which I would be reluctant to let Edwin see, lest he term me sloppy. I also keep in it my memoranda concerning Christmas surprises and gifts for other holidays and anniversaries, which I do not wish him to see ahead of time.

"I know that his box holds a different assortment of things," she went on. "Knowing his boundless generosity, I have always been sure that the box held memoranda concerning cases—the bills which he never turned over to me for collection—grateful letters for life-saving surgical operations, for which he never received a cent. But until my glimpse of that photograph, I never had had occasion to give the box any thought save tender, amused comprehension of Edwin's generosity."

She paused again, and her fingers twisted around each other nervously.

"Then," she said slowly, "there came a night when my world crashed around me."

CROCHETED SQUARE
PATTERN 942

YOU CAN add richness to your home with scarfs, cloths, pillows, bedspreads, all made of this lovely square.

You can make them using alternating squares of plain linen or do them entirely of crochet.

An antique Italian lace inspired this square and though it is so easy to crochet, it has all the richness of this lace. Do it in string, and you'll find the squares rolling off your hook in no time. Do it in a finer cotton, and you'll have a medallion that will compare to the finest laces.

Pattern 942 comes to you with detailed directions for making the square shown; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

MRS. CULBERTSON ON BRIDGE

Bunched Strength

Most strong hands are hopelessly wrecked when there is no entry to the hand opposite them.

The full value of honor combinations usually depends upon leading toward high cards.

The finesse, one of the simplest features of Contract Bridge cannot be attempted if the hand holding the high cards must do the leading.

In the following deal skillful maneuvering will succeed in making possible vital finesses.

Kept Down
At Their Proper Strength

The bidding.

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 N.T. (1)	Pass	3 N.T. (2)
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) South's hand because of its 4-3-3-3 distribution is best suited for an opening notrump bid.

Having five plus honor-tricks with nine honor-cards to increase the trick taking possibilities of the hand, South is justified in bidding two notrump originally.

This is not, strictly speaking, a forcing bid, for North may pass if his hand contains less than one half honor-trick. Seldom is an opening two-notrump bid dropped short of game, however.

(2) North may not hesitate, he must do his duty and bid game, for the bid of two notrump has asked him to do so if he has one-half honor-trick, which his hand contains in the diamond suit.

West opened the four of spades. East played the Jack, and South chose the unusual play of holding up.

His plan of play required that the hand with the long spade suit be unable to get the lead later, the only chance of making his contract unless the King of diamonds happened to be a doubleton in West's hand.

Another line of play apparently offered a better chance of success.

After winning the first trick with the ace, South took continued spades and West captured the Queen with his Ace.

Realizing the futility of a spade continuation, he led the ten of clubs; East played the four, and South won with the Jack.

South then put his plan into operation. He led a low diamond, the nine being dummy's play.

East could not afford to win the trick; it would have established dummy's suit, while South retained the diamond ten to lead to dummy. East ducked and let the nine win.

At once the diamond Queen was led from dummy; East again played low, and South finessed. He had succeeded in making the diamond suit yield three tricks. It was no time to switch to another suit.

He led dummy's six of clubs and when East played low the Queen was successfully finessed.

The Ace of clubs came next, followed by the low club, which threw East into the lead with his King.

East had nothing to lead but hearts, permitting South to make his ninth trick by playing the Queen and retaining the Ace.

Mrs. Beeckman On Manners

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Although I knew that when a lady is introduced to a gentleman she shakes hands or not according to whatever she wishes to do, I would like to know if there is any usual custom if it happens in your own home or in the home of a friend? Does it make any difference if the gentleman is old or young?

2—Quite recently I was in a gathering. These people did not all know each other, but we all knew the hostess. It happened that the people were not all introduced to each other. Is it a young lady's place to go and speak to anyone she happened to know or had met before?

It seems to me that the hostess made a mistake. But when the takes place, does it make any difference if it is an older gentleman or older lady, or a young gentleman that has not been introduced to you? G.

1—Always a hostess should shake hands with every guest, man or woman or child, whom she is welcoming into her home. And this holds true to of a cohostess, say the daughter of the hostess.

And when a woman is greeting guests in the home of a friend she would more likely than not shake hands with any guest who comes to that home. And it would make no difference if the guest were a man or a woman, and whether old or young.

2—The "gathering" implies that there will probably quite a few guests present, say at a tea or something of that kind. And accustomed hostesses at that kind of party usually don't make the attempt to take an arriving guest about the room introducing him or her to every other guest present at the party.

Instead she introduces the guest to the group standing near, and, if there is time to the moment, to a person or group of guests who she thinks will be especially congenial to the arriving guest.

Then she takes for granted that the introductions will "spread" as the guests chat together, or that the guest will take introductions for granted.

And "under friend's roof" introductions are taken for granted, and guests should never stand on ceremony about an introduction.

Two people who find themselves together, strangers, in a hostess living-room, would say naturally that together, making their own introductions.

Terror in the Mill Race

Spike Nearly Stopped This Story From Appearing

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Line up while I tell you the terrible tale of Frank L. Barry of 1205 Jeffrey st., Asbury Park, N. J.

Frank might never have been let in for that big scare of his if the Government hadn't been so heartless. In the fall of 1918, it signed an armistice and threw Frank out of his nice safe job of fighting Germans. Then, on top of that, they shipped Frank back to the United States, where, as the statistics of the column have shown time and again, you are three times as likely to run into an adventure as any where else on the face of the globe.

Frank got back to the states in the summer of 1919 and was sent to Camp Dix, N. J., to wait discharge. At the camp, Frank had a certain amount of time on his hands.

Swimming had always been one of his favorite sports, and it wasn't long before he had found an ideal spot.

"This alleged river," he says, "was nothing but a small creek. The deep spot was caused by a dam, which, years ago, had supplied the power for a grist mill. The roof of the mill afforded an excellent high dive for the more daring lads on our frequent swimming parties, but being a rotted diver I looked around for some other means of thrilling the town's damsels who came to swim or to watch the rest of us. It has long ago been recorded that he who looks for trouble will soon find it. I did!

"What I found was the sluice that goes with most water power dams. It started under the old mill and extended some fifty feet beyond the tumbling structure—a long wooden chute, constructed of heavy enduring oak planking, its bottom covered with many years' growth of soft, slippery moss.

"It carried the dam's overflow down into a bubbling whirlpool and a miniature set of rapids, and my bid for the ladies' attention was the daring scheme of shooting the rapids from out of that sluiceway."

Well, sir that sounds like one of the most hair-raising stunts imaginable, but Frank says it was no trick at all. All you had to do was keep your head high in the bubbling foam until you got out of the rapids. The slide down the long sluice was the easiest part of it, because the smooth moss greased the way as the water carried you down the incline. But one day Frank found something beside moss in the bottom of that sluiceway.

That day Frank had borrowed another lad's bathing suit in which to take his swim—a bright red one that would make quite a picture in the greenish-white foam of the rapids below the dam. He put it on, dived into the water and, as he had done countless times before, started to go head first down the sluiceway towards the rapids.

The shallow, rushing water picked him up and carried him at express-train speed toward the rapids. He kept his head up, but this time the water didn't carry him high on its surface as usual.

"It bounced along on the bottom," says Frank, "and as I flashed toward the mouth of the spillway, something protruding up out of the planks struck my abdomen just below the last rib. It was hard, scratchy. There was no particular pain, and for the moment I thought little of it. But as I left the chute and shot out into the rapids my usual calm left me and I was seized with panic. For suddenly I felt that my whole abdomen had been ripped open and was flapping against my legs in the water.

"Why didn't I faint? Why wasn't I weak? Those questions flashed through my mind. What happened was clear enough. A rusted spike had worked itself up out of the old planking and I had hit it at high speed. The terrific rip had come so suddenly that it had torn the outer walls of my stomach without my immediately feeling its worst effects.

"I realized that it would be only a minute before I succumbed from loss of blood, and I knew I had to get to shore. But I also knew, from seeing men terribly wounded in the war, that I didn't dare exert any great effort in that condition. So I dog-paddled ever so gently out of the whirlpool, rested myself on the rocks in an inch or two of water, and slowly—ever so slowly—rolled over on my back.

"Still there was no great pain. My stomach felt only scratched—and yet I could feel its outside walls flapping against my legs as I moved. I was afraid to look, but I realized I'd have to do it sooner or later, and slowly I turned my eyes down toward the gaping wound. At the same time I slid my right hand gently down my thigh to lift the slap of flesh back into position. And it arrived to lift—not flesh—but a big flap of my red bathing suit.

"Yes I had hit a spike and ripped—a bathing suit. But a long scratch on my body showed me what might have happened if I'd struck that spike just half an inch lower in the water."

Tomorrow, a new member from New Hampshire tells of battling a dangerous wild beast in a Grafton, N. H., Cavern.

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

HOW TO WIN $100.00

And Membership in The Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

It's all very simple. There are no rules, and everyone is eligible. Just write down the facts of your most thrilling adventure and mail it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Remember, the story must be TRUE. Don't worry about how well you can write. Floyd will take care of that. Floyd will pay $10 for every story printed and an extra prize of $100 for the best story of the month. Keep a copy of your story if you wish to have it, AS NO STORIES CAN BE RETURNED. Do not send valuable pictures or souvenirs of your adventure. Send the FACTS.

WOOLEN WORKERS

To Hold RECENT Gains

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

A coalition movement promises to prevent a return to pre-NRA days in the textile industry. Progressive manufacturers and workers are reported to have joined hands to preserve better working conditions.

This situation, restricted to the woolen and worsted industry, is distinctly heartening as it practically removes the fear of strikes in the fall. For as we pointed out yesterday, internal industrial strife is the only serious cloud on a very cheerful New England horizon. Immediate tangible results will be preservation of the 40-hour week and the two-shift system. These in prospect to the 48-hour week and three-shift system.

Contrasted with the cotton textile industry woolen and worsted workers, while undoubtedly able to stand improvement, are working conditions are happily situated. This is perhaps due to the relative concentration of the industry. Where the cotton industry is spread out in a territory that sprawls along the whole eastern coast, woolen and worsted mills are still largely a New England institution. The result is mills do not have to compete on a sectional basis. The great drawback of this is that newer cotton mill sections are decidedly backward and the older ones cannot improve working conditions without harmful results on production, which meant no work at all in the North.

* * *

Notebook—All the above is not new and probably conditions will remain as is until progressive action by individual states or more successful organization of labor brings reforms . . . It is an industrial problem that must be faced by New England and it will do no good to try and hide it behind the door . . . With the picture firmly in mind, we would not go back to a forecast made here about three weeks ago . . . We said that the cotton industry had approximately reached a low . . . Conditions within the industry were seen as favorable for an upswing . . . We see nothing to date to contradict this . . . Indeed, we do see many indications of improvement . . . Most important of which is definite indication of revival in fine cotton goods.

* * *

The sudden whping away of stock values so far this week is attributed to any number of causes. Many of which are amusing. Take the promise of a punitive levy for taxation for instance. The same people who were saying less than a month ago that the market topped when Livingston now blame it for the decline. Others point to a steady rise for over two weeks. To this last we ask where was the steady rise? In a two-week period the market as a whole barely moved ahead. Take any representative average of all groups and convince yourself. The writer keeps a personal average which stood at 66.69 on August 5. Since then the high attained was 67.20.

* * *

Shorts: We do not claim our average is perfect . . . Yet it is impossible to disregard the fact it could not improve its high by a point in all this time . . . The nub of the whole matter is that the market went its distance and was ready for a logical rest . . . Whether the declines to date will suffice or not is the only question and must wait on market action . . . To us it has always seemed foolish to try and fit the news and business reports to market behavior . . . The market itself is the best barometer and those who follow it closely need not wander far afield to explain its action.

American Bar Association Warns Against Corruption of the Constitution

"A state may alter in two different ways—either by amendment or corruption of the Constitution."—Montesquieu.

THIS pregnant quotation from the celebrated French writer on laws and government was quoted in a report of the Committee on Administrative Law of the American Bar Association in its recent annual convention in Los Angeles.

That there is now on foot a conspiracy to alter the form of the Government we are living under no one in his rational senses will deny.

The Brain-Trusters OPENLY ridicule the principles of individualism and competitive democracy on which this Government was founded.

The President of the United States boldly urges the passage of a law—the Guffey coal bill—WITHOUT REGARD TO ITS CONSTITUTIONALITY, contemptuously dubs as "horse-and-buggy" ideas certain restraining provisions of the Constitution, and suggests the possibility of so amending the Constitution that our form of Government will not only be "altered" but will be CHANGED INTO A DICTATORIAL AUTOCRACY.

The corruption of the Constitution has been attempted in the NRA, the AAA and many other measures, both pending and passed.

If the Supreme Court, as it has so far, continues to prevent this corruption, a gigantic effort will then be made to transform the United States of America by those in power into a European Caesarized state by amendments that WILL PUT TO DEATH THE REST OF THE BASIC LAW OF OUR DEMOCRACY.

* * *

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and the Communistic-minded men with whom he has surrounded himself are the first rulers of this country to say:

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IS A FAILURE!

THE CONSTITUTION BE DAMNED!

The amendments which have been proposed to the Constitution are plainly a CORRUPTION of the text of that document, a violation of its spirit and a degradation of the values embodied in it.

An amendment which will give Congress and the Executive supreme power over the industries, the farms, the business and the labor of this country is an amendment to invalidate THE SUPREME COURT, TO ABOLISH ALL STATE RIGHTS, TO INVADE, ACTUALLY AND POTENTIALLY, ALL CIVIL RIGHTS, and to break down every legal obstacle to UNRESTRICTED AND UNTRAMMELLED TAXING POWER.

* * *

THE American Bar Association, with clear vision, is fully alive to the great catastrophe toward which the revolutionary forces in Washington are heading:

"The steady, almost unperceived, march toward collectivism in the management of wealth, debtor and creditor relations and dependency status will either compel amendments to the Constitution TO UNLEASH THE PRESENT CURRENTS AND TRENDS FROM FURTHER RESTRAINT or some effective means for the preservation of constitutional government on the traditional American plan will be brought out.

"A brake must be put upon this contagious fever for placing business under a license system, such as was attempted in bills pending before Congress—a license system by which the citizen's right to engage in an honorable calling is subject to revocation for violation of some regulation which a commission has made."

We have in Washington today an Administration that is bent on breaking through all constitutional restraints—the most reckless, irresponsible, Constitution-inimical cabal that has ever ruled a free country.

In the constitutional monarchy of England and the sensitive parliamentary system of France these invasions of fundamental principles of government would not be tolerated for a day.

The CORRUPTION of our Constitution would be a prelude to the complete ALTERATION of our form of Government.

* * *

AS the American Bar Association solemnly warns, a political crisis is approaching in our country which is the most vital we have ever confronted, not excepting the Civil War.

For this contemplated usurpation of all individual and constitutional rights by the Socialists in power at Washington aims at the complete enslavement of ALL Americans and the rise of what Thomas Jefferson warned us against all his life—the MONOCRAT.

$20,000,000 Hush Money?
No, Just a Coincidence

The State of Ohio will get $20,000,000 of relief money, following a visit of its Governor to the White House.

The State of Ohio will NOT hold a special election this year for a Congressman-at-large to fill the seat of its Representative Truax, recently deceased.

This news also follows the visit of Ohio's Governor to the White House.

Moreover, it comes soon after the special election in Rhode Island, where a Raw Deal candidate took the worst licking in Raw Deal history.

Nobody, we trust, will have the bad taste to hint that the $20,000,000 which Ohio gets is "hush money," handed out to prevent that State from registering at the polls its opinion of the Washington Administration.

It is evidently just a coincidence.

And if it happens to be a most convenient coincidence for the Administration, who can be blamed for that?

Air Traffic Course
For University

Dr. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, aviation pioneer and oldest commissioned naval air force World War veteran, blazes a new trail.

He establishes at Norwich University a Professorship of Air Traffic, Regulation and Transportation.

His gift enables the hundred-year-old educational institution to be FIRST in investigating, studying and teaching air transportation and regulation.

President Porter Adams of Norwich, himself a flier and aviation authority, calls Dr. Cabot's gift:

"One of the most potentially important events in the history of both aviation and Norwich."

Dr. Cabot hopes he has started a movement which will lead to setting up an international safety code for the air.

All thoughtful men will hope for its success.

Keep Streets Clean
Everywhere

Constables from the Public Works Department are called on to aid the police in a campaign to keep South Boston highways clean.

The campaign was started when complaints became numerous about offenders throwing papers and refuse in the streets.

The campaign could well be extended to other sections, both in and out of Boston.

Probably education along sanitary lines would be even MORE effective than prosecution.

The Permit
Does It Sound Fishy?

The Navy Department has decided to name a submarine being built at Groton, Conn., the Permit.

The official announcement tells us the name is that of a fish.

We ask you, does it sound fishy?

Or like what the Communists CAN'T get when they seek to spread their poison in a community guarded by the American Legion?

Let's Do It Here
Help for Burdened

An Associated Press dispatch this week related that Chinese farmers had been freed from 4100 illegal taxes.

The farmers' benefactor was an official educated in the United States.

WHY NOT CALL HIM BACK?

And let him do something about the situation here!

OUT WITH THEM!

The Comintern, in session at Moscow, recently announced that Communists in all countries were adjured to stand side by side with liberals of whatever party in defense of democracy and freedom and against Fascism.

On the face of it, that was an abandonment of Communist tactics in the past.

Communists were all avowed enemies of democracy.

But now the truth is out again.

William Fieck, German delegate to the Comintern, in a more recent speech explains that the "alliances" which the Communists now desire with "certain bourgeois elements" are mere EXPEDIENTS, to be discarded at a moment's notice.

These "alliances," in sum, are to be the old familiar Communist tactics of "boring from within"—"joining" liberal movements in order to BETRAY them.

The able leaders of organized labor are not fooled any by the Communist methods.

As Moscow was announcing its plans, William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, and the Federation's Executive Committee sat down at Atlantic City to purge union ranks of Communists.

"When it is clearly proven," said Mr. Green, "that a member of one of our unions is a Red carrying out Moscow's orders, the union will be called upon to EXPEL him."

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

LIVING SCENARIOS

Bored? Sick of doing the same old thing in the same old place with the same old people? Sore because you can't go to strange places and have amazing adventures like luckier souls?

But how do you know they have adventures? Going places is no guarantee that you'll have an adventure when you get there.

You may ship to Borneo or Bangkok, Congo Free State or Brazil . . . watch jungle witch dances or mysterious Llama rites . . . yet remain in your own soul as commonplace as a cake of kitchen soap.

Elsie Robinson

GIFT OF ADVENTURE

For the gift of adventure lies all in your own eye. If you have the gift you will see the commonest incident guilded with glamour, rich with mirth or reeking with tragedy. And if you haven't—baked beans for you!

Frances Marion has it, and for years, on many a screen, she has been sharing it with you. Remember "THE CHAMP" "EMMA," "THE PRIZEFIGHTER AND THE LADY"? Frances Marion did them all and, unless you have the soul of a woodtick, you sniffled and snickered, shuddered and snorted through hectic moments—then emerged, blinking and stumbling, feeling as if you had somehow lost yourself in another's life and had just found yourself again after a long journey.

WHICH YOU HAD! For that's where Frances Marion finds her adventures—under the other fellow's skin.

And that's where you may find them, too, and live through endless Arabian Nights, yet never leave your walk-up flat for your job behind the counter or before the kitchen stove.

And if you want a road map of instructions, grab yourself Frances' new book. Then proceed to do likewise.

"VALLEY PEOPLE"

The book is called "Valley People" and is a John Day publication. It's about the people who live in a lonely, dusty valley north of San Francisco—just such a valley as you've seen many a time, with prosaic fields and drab clusters of buildings.

And, at first sight, you might think that the people in it were also prosaic and drab. But peer beneath their eyelids, as Frances Marion has . . . tiptoe at midnight to a half drawn blind . . . and you'll find yourself in a breathless world of terror and ecstasy, horror and delight.

Young Anna Larson—big Lily Boss—silent Lizzie Skerrit. In the eyes of the world one was a poor cracked thing—one was a harlot—one a murderess. But under Frances Marion's wise eyes Anna becomes—

No, I won't tell you. Find out for yourself. Or go without—and shame upon you! For here is life as you have thought it ought to be, with all its secret mystery and wonder and romance, and the key to it all is in anyone's hands.

BENEATH THE BLUB

You have only to look long enough, deep enough—beneath the dull blur of surface misunderstandings and the marks of fear and laziness and greed and cruelty put upon us all—and there is the quivering human soul in its infinite variety.

"Valley People"—there's a book that will change your life if you'll let it. No, it isn't a great classic—Miss Marion never intended it should be.

It is something infinitely more helpful than that in these discouraging and disappointing days through which we all are passing.

It's a magic password to the enchanted "Aladdin's Cave" of every man's life . . . a password which will enrich you, if you will use it, more than jars of rubies and chests of diamonds.

So buy that book, and then get busy on Mary Jones, John Smith, Bessie Brown and Sam White.

Or even on Exhibition A—for, believe it or not, you yourself are the most sensational scenario you've ever seen.

New York Day by Day -:- -:- By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 20—Most high towers in Manhattan now have a suicide guard or squad as a preventive against self-destruction. The lone visitor is usually under suspicion, for a would-be suicide never brings a companion in a tryst with death.

In the past few years there have been nine sudden plunges from various observaories. The deadly circle of three is invariably manifested.

That is, someone leaps and two others follow in space of a few days. So far guards have frustrated more than a dozen attempts.

Two were climaxed by fierce and tottering struggles on the parapets. And one was diverted by a running fire of talk while an attendant from the rear expertly looped him with a lasso. Each one expressed gratitude and declared the impulse was of the moment.

There is a specious theory that a falling body loses consciousness the first 500 feet of drop and that the method is painless.

This has been disproved by parachute jumpers who have fallen far greater distances and been conscious of every sensation.

Clay Morgan, who press agented the Normandie into first page banner lines, has the most complete indexed compilation of joker, gags and stories extant.

For 20 years he has jotted down the key word to every one heard. They run into thousands and all are variations of eight different humorous situations. Ed Wynn still owns the biggest library of wit and humor, having shelved more than 9000 volumes.

Often a gag that seems shining with sophistry of the modern day will be a variant of some remark of Ben Jonson or some other wag of long ago.

I talked to a gentleman—the most joyous I've run across in months—on the phone this morning about an astonishing recovery he had from a business upset in his importing business.

Over night a foreign imbroglio beached him high and dry along with 28 employes and not a chance to make a penny for months, if ever. For three days not a bite passed his lips and he dozed off for not more than an hour nightly. He lost 11 pounds.

The fourth morning he fell into sound slumber at dawn, slept until 3 in the afternoon and awakened thoroughly refreshed, amazingly calm and hungry.

He ate a whopping ham-steak breakfast and at his office the first letter opened, mirabile dictu! was an offer of a job that paid him more than the income he had been making and in a city where he had always wanted to live.

Lord Northcliffe on one of his visits told a group of reporters in an off-the-record chat over a midnight snack of some mysterious mental contagion that seemed to inform him of success before it arrived.

The details are vague but it was when he launched his first newspaper venture called "Answers." He had used all the money he had and could borrow. Then came a sudden impasse in financing. He needed a sizeable sum and could not raise a tuppence.

He was for two weeks in the lowest depths. Unable to sleep, he was walking through deserted Curzon street and of a sudden felt exhilarated, a surge of inexpressible happiness he fancied might be the fevered forerunner of delirium.

He went home and fell instantly asleep. When he awakened there was a telegram from a bank in Manchester that it would see him through. He had forgotten he had appealed to them. "Answers" made him rich.

'Dear Govt' -:- By Winston Norman

U. S. Govt
Wash, D. C.

Dear Govt:

I have just thought up a Wonderful Plan to help the American People get a little fun out of their Govt. Why don't Congress go on a tour of the U. S. A. like our Circuses do?

There isn't no reason why Congress has to set in Washington all the time, Mr. Roosevelt could send them a telegram wherever they was, he could let them know what Bills to pass, and Congress could vote "Yes" from anywhere in the U. S. A. They could pitch their Circus Tent in all of the outlying precincts, where the U. S. Public could have a good look at what they elected.

Take how this Plan would learn my little boy Wilbur for instance. Little Wilbur has been to the Zoo, and saw monkeys and them forms of Animal life, but he hasn't never laid his eye on a Congressman, and he wouldn't know if they stood on their hind legs like a monkey or crawled on their belly like a snake.

I was talking to a friend about my Share-the-Congress Plan, and he says:

"That is a wonderful idea, I would be glad to pay 25 cents admission to see them boys jump through a Hoop," he says, "and that way Congress would be makeing money for a change, instead of spending it."

My friend says that maybe Congress could pick up a little spare cash with Side-Shows.

"Take Bearded Ladys, for instance," he says, "All of these Congressmen that isn't Clowns would be Bearded Ladys if they let their whiskers grow."

I and my friend was real excited about my Share-the-Congress Plan, he says to me:

"In that case, we will sell plenty of Soda Pop, because I need a few empty bottles to heave at some of them senators."

"But you can't heave bottles at a Senator," I says, "because that would be CONTEMPT OF THE SENATE, they would give you 10 days in jail."

"In that case," he says, "they better give me 20 days in jail, and quite a few more Pop Bottles, because Contempt is the way I feel about the House of Representatives too."

Yours truly,
W. Norman.

Isn't It So?

A great deal of suffering springs from want of knowledge.

It isn't the flowers we strew on the graves. It's the words of the living that tell.

Text For Today: "They that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and turn many to righteousness." —Daniel 23:3. Suggested by the Rev. James Bancroft, Church of the Messiah, Woods Hole.
